HOME MISSIONS' NEEDS

Work Among the Unchurched in the Rocky Mountain District.

REV. MR. GRAY'S EXPERIENCES.

Cowboys, Ranchmen and Herders Hungry for the Gospel—Preaching Backed by a "Gun."

Those members of the Congregational church who stayed away from the meeting last evening missed one of the most interesting addresses on Home missions ever given in that church. Rev. W. C. Gray, who has been a missionary among the cowboys, ranchmen and sheep men of the Northwest for the past twenty-five years, was the speaker and his vivid accounts of the existing conditions in that further border of our great country carried the conviction that there is a vast territory within our borders where the Christian religion has hardly reached.

The speaker graphically described the fight that he personally and in company with his devoted wife, has waged among the class of people in the mining towns where they did not want nor would they give a hearing to a "gospel slinger."

'A Connecticut divine," said Mr. Gray, "has said that there was no frontier to this country, that it was all filling up so rapidly that what we knew as frontier when Chicago was a village had all disappeared. But I tell you that we are in a more critical situation from an Anglo-Saxon and orthodox church viewpoint cut in the Northwest than ever before.

"I have heard through a letter that it is purposed by a syndicate of capitalists to bring to our shores within a certain period 250,000 Russian Jews and these propose to settle within twenty miles of New York city.

These foreigners are soon going to work their way to the new and fabulously rich country in the Rocky Mountains and that without being instructed in Christian living.

From figures at hand Mr. Gray said that 92 per cent. of the people in the vast territory where he labors are outside the church. "But," he said " that is not because they do not want the gospel, but because they cannot get it. They are hungry for the story of the Cross ,but there are not enough funds to live on while working among these souls. Wyoming, practically undeveloped yet, is rich beyond the dreams of mortals. Rich in fertile lands, coal, iron, gold silver and asbestos, and when it is opened up there will be a rush to this promised land. Are you going to allow the millions of immigrants which come to this land of ours every year to obtain the ballot and assume the duties of citizenship without preparing them for church life? There are very few Christian schools there. There are only about fifteen churches to each State. Half of the churches are pastorless. It will shock you to know that one-third of the area of the United States is in the same condition."

One story will suffice to show the need for Christian workers in the Rocky mountains. Mr. and Mrs. Gray went into a tent town where other missionaries had been driven out and one who backed them murdered. Mr. Gray proposed to plant Christianity in that town and there was but one way to do it. With his wife he prepared to hold a meeting in the main street. They erected a tent and when the time for the meeting arrived they opened up their services armed with Colt revolvers, Mr. Gray keeping his trained gun upon the greatest bully of the town through his coat pocket. The bully saw he was absolutely at the mercy of the preacher and failed to create the disturbance which had been on the cards fearing the minister's gun. The meeting proceeded without a hitch and at the end the bully showed he was beaten by coming forward and shaking Mr. Gray's hand. The Gospel became firmly imbedded in the hearts of some of the people in that town and today there is a flourishing church built of brick a large share of the expense of which was borne by the bully who threatened to do up the "Gospel sharp.'

Several other touching incidents were related including instances of the chivalry of the cowboy and every body present left the meeting convinced that the United States is still a fertile field for the missionary right at home. The only thing needed to take the Gospel to those who are actually hungering for it is money.

Mr. Gray declared that the giving of the vote to the women had been a wise move in Wyoming as it is due almost entirely to them that gambling and other voices have been practically eliminated from their towns and high license prevails in the incorporated cities.

RECITAL PROGRAM OF MME SCHUMANN-HEINK

The program for the recital by Mme. Schumann-Heink at the Plainfield theatre, tomorrow night, includes the aria "Oh! Rest in the Lord" from "Elijah," "Oh! mon Fils" from the "Prophet," a lullaby by Herrmann, and Schubert's "Erl King." The artist has the reputation for being very liberal with encores and it is to be hoped that she will sing two numbers which she has often renders with magnificent effect, Brahm's "Sapphische Ode" and the "Drinking Song" from "Lucretia Borgia." Some of her admirers have also asked her to sing Nevin's "Rosary."

The committee of the Musical Club have reserved one of the boxes for Mme. Schumann-Heink and it will be occupied by some of her children and friends.

The parquet and about half the first gallery, and all the boxes have been sold, but the remaining seats in the gallery are as good as any in the house. The low price of admission to the upper gallery affords a rare opportunity of hearing this great artist, and it ought to be crowded.

F. S. NEAL'S ANCESTOR WAS AN EARLY SETTLER

Among the earliest settlers in the village of Plainfield during the first decade of 1800, was the grandfather died on Tuesday. He was a Hollander by birth; a worker at the weaver's old Dutch ancestors in the religion of the Synod of Dort. His name was Conrad Neal. When he came to town just about one hundred years ago, there were fewer than one hundred men old enough to vote here.His a short distance northeast from Plainfield avenue. The one story building was torn down only a few years ago.

Conrad Neal first came into public notice as a subscriber to the old First Baptist church, when its house of worship was erected in 1818. He became a pewholder in their congregation for seven years. At this time contributor towards the building of a meeting house by the few Presbyterian people of the village. He was one of the constituent members of that church at its public organization in 1825, bringing his certificate of membership from the Reformed Dutch church of New York city.

50,000 RED CROSS SEALS ON SALE TODAY

The local branch of the Red Cross Society have placed on sale today the seals for use during the coming holidays. Owing to the demand from the storekeepers the society was compelled to send for 10,000 more seals this morning. It's a cent for every seal and a seal for every cent from now until after Christmas. Help the good work along.

The following story is told as an actual fact by a New York druggist:

"A haggard looking woman, speaking with a strong Irish brogue, walked into a West Side drug store in New York the other day and asksumption Cure. While the clerk was wrapping the package, she conversed volubly of Mike, her husband, who was sick with consumption. She said one of her neighbors, Mrs. Casey, had told her that the bottle of medicine she held in her hands would surely restore Mike to health. So she had saved 50 cents from the scant earnings she made over the washtub in order that her husband might have a chance. As she turned to go away, her eye was attracted by a sign upon which was this legend in big red letters, "Buy Red Cross Christmas Seals, and help Cure Consumption. A penny for a Seal."

From the few cents in the palm of her hand, the woman drew out a nickel and holding it to the clerk, said, "Oi'll take five of thim. Sure, with this bottle of medicine, and thim things stuck on Mike, he'll be well in a wake."

JUNIOR BOYS' BANQUET

Hope Chapel Organization Enjoys Supper and Helpful Addresses.

PROMINENT SPEAKERS HEARD.

Dr. W. T. S. Lumbar and Rev. G. A. Warner Tell the Youthful members about the Right Way of Living.

The importance of boys' work and the special care needed in the development of the youthful members of the community, were subjects brought out and dwelt upon by men prominent in this field of effort at a public initiation and banquet of the Junior Boys' department of Hope chapel, last night. The principal addresses were made by Rev. Dr. W. T. S. Lumbar, pastor of the Mount Pleasant Baptist church of Newark; Rev. George A. Warner, of Holy Cross church; C. W. Bingeman, secretary of boys' work at the local Y. M. C. A., and A. M. Harris, superintendent of the First Baptist church junior department. Their remarks were of brief duration, but the kind that leave an impression upon the minds of those for whom they are intended.

Sixty members of the junior department enjoyed the banquet, thirty of whom were initiated during the evening. Promptly at 8 o'clock Mitchell's orchestra of six pieces struck up a lively air and the thirty regular members of the organization marched into the room, taking alternate seats on each side of the main table. After an opening prayer by Dr. Lumbar, the thirty new members were ushered into place at the speakers' table. In addition to those already mentioned were Charles F. August, leader of the junior department; G. Herbert Condict, superintendent of Hope chapel Sunday school; B. F. Tallamy and other invited guests. Arthur Walls, president of the junior organization, presided as toastmaster in a very capable manner.

Dr. Lumbar was the first speaker and gave the boys a plain, everyday talk on the right way of living. He pointed out that it is the manly, upright fellow who commands respect and admiration and makes the best citizen. The boy who tells falsehoods, he said, and prefers to be a sneak is always found out and never amounts to anything. He urged his hearers to make the most of themselves while they are young, living the right sort of lives, being manly at all times and above all avoid deceit and evil associations.

Dr. Lumbar was followed by Rev. George A. Warner, whose remarks were in a similar strain with added thoughts. He declared that in order to live right, it is not necessary for a boy to lose his manliness or his boyish enthusiasm. Good, healthy sport is always conducive to proper morals and fits the body for the tasks that come later in life. It is impossible to drive a boy or fool him into doing the right thing, Mr. Warner said. He must realize it himself and determine to shape his own course, keeping to it with the help of the influences that are always to be had for the asking. In conclusion the speaker told his young auditors that mistakes were always made but the proper thing to do is to make an honest confession to parents or pastor and to resolve not to make the same one twice.

Brief addresses by Messrs. Harris, Bingeman, Condict and August followed and letters of regret were read from Congressman Eugene F. Kinkead, of Jersey City; Mayor Charles J. Fisk and Mayor-elect Moy, who had been invited but were unable to be present. Several excellent solos were rendered by Bertram F. Tallamy, accompanied by Joseph Denny.

The supper was an elaborate affair and was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone. It was served by a committee of women composed of Mrs. Charles G. August, Mrs. Thomas Hendry, Mrs. Gertrude Rittenhouse, Mrs. Donald McInnis, Mrs. Aaron H. Snyder and Mrs. Walter Bradford. The Sunday school room where the banquet was held, was festooned with bunting and a large American flag graced the platform.

The affair was arranged by Mr. August and credit is due him for its complete success. He was assisted by President Arthur Walls and Secretary Harry Shirley, of the Junior department.

LECTURED AND FINED FOR BEATING A HORSE

Right on top of the announcement yesterday that the local branch of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was proposing to interest the children in the work of humane education, N. S. Nicholaysen, an employee of Levering & Garrigues foundry, detected Henry Mobus, of Newark, cruelly beating a horse near Dunellen. Nicholaysen jumped on a main line trolley car bound for this city and followed Mobus, but the horse went so fast under the lashing from Mobus' whip that the trolley car was distanced.

However, Nicholaysen caught up with the rig in front of a saloon on West Front street where the driver had stopped for a drink, and calling Patrolman Birmingham's attention to the condition of the horse and the chase after the driver, had the latter arrested. The horse was taken to Cole's stable and cared for while Mo-Hoesen, the special agent of the humane society, was notified and she immediately had Dr. Carpenter, the society's veterinary surgeon, examine the horse. The condition of the animal was pitiable.

William Callahan, a livery man of the East End, also saw the horse on its arrival here and declared that the driver ought to be arrested. All three persons testified before Judge William N. Runyon in the city court this morning and after a lecture a fine of $15 was imposed, which Mobus paid. He denied that he had abused the horse, but his testimony was painfully weak.

Another case brought to the notice of the judge and Mrs. Van Hoesen was that of William Bird, a hackman, who left his horse standing in front of a saloon on Park avenue last evening and took a pleasure trip to New York. The horse was abandoned at 7 o'clock and was found by Patrolman Messler still standing at 2 o'clock this morning. The patrolman cared for the horse and arrested Bird on his arrival here from his trip. He was fined eight dollars.

Rev. Dr. Chas. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, officiated. He read appropriate scripture verses, offered prayer and made a few comforting remarks to the bereaved members of the family.

There were many floral tributes, including those from Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. & A. M., and Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., of which Mr. DeMeza was a member. The burial was in Hillside cemetery and the pall-bearers were Edward O. Clark, William MacD. Corbell, Francis J. Blatz, Thomas Quinn and George Graves.

MERCHANTS CLERKS' HOP

Association's Guests at Dance and Supper Numbered Five Hundred.

ALL HAD A JOLLY GOOD TIME.

Theodore J. Shirley Chairman of Committee for Successful Event at Sebring's Hall Last Night.

The supper and dance tendered to their employes by the Merchants' Association last night in Sebring's Hall was the most successful affair of the kind ever held by that organization. Upward of four hundred invitations had been issued by the committee and nearly five hundred young people were present. Dancing began at 8 o'clock and ended at 2 this morning. An intermission was taken at 11 o'clock to permit the guests of the association to enjoy a collation provided for them.

During the evening many of the prominent merchants of the city dropped in to watch the dancers and enjoyed one of the liveliest spectacles they had seen in many a day. The arrangements for the affair were in charge of a committee of which Theodore J. Shirley was chairman, with the following members as assistants: A. E. Force, H. P. Greenwood, M. C. Van Arsdale, J. S. Johnston, H. Schuldenfrei, A. C. Lohrman and Herman Schwed. Charles Suhr's Imperial orchestra furnished the music.

The supper and dance was given to the employes by the merchants and all the expenses were defrayed by them. The young people showed their appreciation of their employers' generosity by a round of cheers before the dancing finally broke up.

In speaking of the affair during the evening Chairman Shirley said that it was probable that another dance would be given before the end of the season and in any event the merchants proposed to make the dance and supper an annual affair for the benefit of their clerks. The Merchants' Association having been merged with the Board of Trade into the new organization, the Chamber of Commerce, will make no difference in the social enjoyment which it is proposed to maintain indefinitely.

The supper was served by Erwin Y. Nenighbor, of Thomas Timbo's, in the rear of the hall, a part of which was partitioned off for the purpose. Eighty dinners were served at a time and it took a half dozen relays to complete the service. A good menu was partaken of by all present.

The officers of the organization: President, A. E. Force; first vice-president, H. Schuldenfrei; second vice-president, F. A. Duttenhoffer; secretary, H. P. Greenwood, and treasurer, J. S. Johnston.

The next euchre will be held at the home of Mrs. T. O. Budenbach, of Carlton avenue, after January 1.

Jem Mace, the former champion heavyweight fighter, died yesterday in London, aged 79 years. He died penniless and did not have enough to provide himself with the actual necessities of life.

BI-PARTISANS PLANNING FOR THE NEXT CAMPAIGN

Encouraged by the victory they obtained at the municipal election on Nov. 8, when they succeeded in defeating the Republican mayoralty candidate by electing G. W. V. Moy, members of the Bi-partisan Municipal League held an informal discussion last night. Nothing of importance transpired, there being merely an exchange of views, but all were enthusiastic over the outlook.

In the near future the members of the organization will be called together by President R. Henry Depew to plan for the coming year, it being agreed to make the organization permanent.

Mayor-elect Moy today reiterated that he would have nothing to say about appointments or plans until after he assumes his office on January 1. Neither would he give an inkling as to what he will recommend in his first annual message to be delivered to the Common Council on the first of the new year. There is considerable speculation as to whom he will appoint as corporation counsel. The only one who appears able to make a correct guess is Moy himself, and he's not telling.

ENDEAVORERS TO HEAR REV. DR. J. F. MORGAN

Jessie Burdick the chairman of the prayer meeting committee of the C. E. Union, has completed arrangements for the rally mass meeting of Endeavorers to be held tonight at the Seventh-Day Baptist church. An address will be delivered by Rev. Dr. J. F. Morgan, Sr. of the Claremont Presbyterian church, of Jersey City, on the subject, "Bible Study: Its Place and Importance in the Christian Endeavor Life."

President Frank Stewart, on behalf of the local union, will extend a greeting to the newly orgnaized Endeavor Society of the West End Tabernacle, and will present the attendance banner to the society that has the highest percentage of its active and associate members present at the meeting.

Christian Endeavor songs will be rendered by a male quartet, comprising William Smith, of the Park Avenue Baptist church; E. D. Young, of Trinity Reformed church, and Dr. O. B. Whitford ,and Roy Titsworth, of the Seventh-Day Baptist church.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MISS EVELYN HILLMAN

The funeral service of Miss Evelyn Hillman, daughter of Mrs. Sarah K. Hillman, was held at the late home yesterday afternoon and was largely attended by relatives and friends, including many young friends and schoolmates of the departed; also the Sunday-school class of which she was a member.

There were many beautiful floral tributes from the Sunday-school and Young Women's Missionary Society, of the First Baptist church, of which Miss Hillman was a member.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, conducted the services, reading appropriate Scripture selections and making a few remarks in which he spoke of the fact that Miss Hillman was one of the Sunday-school class of nine young women baptized by himself, and Miss Hillman was the first one to break the circle. During the service Mrs. Charles K. Shreve sang, "We Will Never Say Good-Bye in Heaven," "Bringing in the Sheaves," and "Safe In the Arms of Jesus."

The burial was in Hillside cemetery and the pall-bearers were Egbert Fountain, Heber Cubberly, Stanley Jacobs, Leslie Leland, Clifford Hillman and Leslie Slocum.

Assemblyman Tumulty for Martine.

Assemblyman Joseph P. Tumulty, of Jersey City whose term will expire with the convening of the Legislature in January, issued a statement yesterday in which he urges the Assemblyman-elect of Hudson county to declare their intention of standing by the voice of the people as expressed at the September primaries, when James E. Martine received the endorsement of the Democratic voters as the successor of Senator John Kean.

CONFESSES TO FORGERY

Charles E. Davis, Alias McDonald Believed to be Notorious Crook.

HAD LOOT IN HIS TRUNKS.

Outfit for Further Crimes Discovered Under Mattress—Wife May Be Implicated, Too.

Charles E. Davis, alias McDonald, who has been held at police headquarters since last Friday pending extradition to Connecticut and which he has been vigorously fighting, confessed to three clergymen of this city this morning that he was a forger and guilty of the charge brought against him by James Toole, proprietor of the Duncan House, of New Haven, and has withdrawn his fight against going back to the Elm city. Incidentally it has been discovered that Davis has been crooked for some time and had contemplated further operations for getting money and perhaps anything else he could lay his hands on without the formality of giving an equivalent.

After his admission that he had passed the worthless paper an accident revealed the hiding place between the mattresss of his bed at Truell Hall an outfit for forging cashiers' checks which would be hard to beat. When the local police picked up Davis at the behest of Detective Captain Thomas Dunn, of New Haven, they probably captured one of the slickest crooks in the country.

Mr. Davis was very cooly trying to sell the wife of a local clergyman a seal-skin coat at about a quarter of its value and had offered to sell coats of the same fur to Chief Kiely, but as these things are expensive the people approached were shy at investing. A search of the seven big trunks which Davis brought here with him revealed silverware and other things stolen from hotels in various parts of the country. This time today and if the persons from whom it was stolen make the necessary complaints Davis will probably have enough sentences imposed to keep him in jail for the rest of his natural life.

By informing some of the Masons in this city that he was of the craft, Davis got in bad. Three men who are well known Masons put him to a test yesterday afternoon and revealed the fraud. That settled it so as obtaining help in his predicament was concerned. One of these men was even going so far as to take Mrs. Davis to his home so that his wife might be a companion during the trouble, but that worthy object was rescinded when the truth became known and it is believed that Davis' wife is in as deep as he is. They have a one-year-old child.

The rubber stamps found under the mattress are neat imitations of the cashier's check of the American Bank and Trust Company, of Portland, Oregon. Accompanying the stamps was a bundle of blank bank drafts which were probably intended for use whenever the funds of the couple should run short.

Mr. Davis has had the services of W. A. Coddington in his battle against extradition and while the struggle had not been ended this morning, it is likely in the light of recent disclosures that this course will be pursued. Davis confessed to three clergymen that he had committed forgery in the New Haven instance and was advised by one of them to cease to fight extradition and go back to New Haven and throw himself upon the mercy of the court. Davis promised to do this, but the trunkful of stolen property may have some bearing on the attitude of the judge before whom he is arraigned.

When Davis was shown an impression taken from the rubber cashiers' stamp this morning in his cell at Police headquarters he nearly collapsed. The evidence of his wrong intentions was too apparent to admit denial. Whatever sympathy had been engendered because of his wife disappeared when the final disclosures were made.

A lot of the jewelry found in Davis' trunk has been listed at police headquarters and will be made public tomorrow. It is not at all certain that it was all taken from other places besides Plainfield.

Judge Coddington retired from the defense of Davis this afternoon after a conference held in the office of Chief Kiely at which Mayor Charles J. Fisk and others were present. A thorough investigation of Davis' short stay in this city will be made before he is turned over to the Connecticut authorities on the check forgery charge.

JUDGE LINDSEY'S OPINION OF WOMAN'S INFLUENCE.

Not long since at a meeting of the State Federation of Women's Clubs in Canon City, Col., Judge Ben Lindsey, of Denver, made a stirring address, paying a high tribute to what women had done for the welfare of municipalities. "Women," he said, "are always opposed to the evils that menace the nation or the home, and can be depended upon to fight valiantly for the right as they understand it. Denver owes much to the public spirit of the women of that city. The city's playgrounds were made possible by them, and their interest in Denver's welfare is making it one of the most attractive and beautiful cities in the land. What a country needs is a quickened public conscience, which can be brought about more quickly by the women than anybody else. Juvenile courts do not stop crime, but they assist in bettering social conditions. Boys and girls need justice instead of charity, and the appeals of the women's clubs of the country to co-operate in an effort to improve social conditions, and thereby help them to become better men and women than their natural inclinations lead them to be under the present system, have done a vast amount of good."

CHILDREN PLAYED REAL JOKE ON SCHOOLMASTER.

When George H. Kiser, of MacAlpin block, Morristown, principal of the Hillside School, Morris Township, returned to school Tuesday morning, after a honeymoon trip, he found the schoolroom decorated with old shoes, rice and pictures of himself and bride on the blackboards in the room. He started in housecleaning, and quickly cleared the room of any traces of the young folks' pranks before school opened for the morning session.

Then seating himself on the platform of the chapel to conduct the morning exercises, he awaited the arrival of the school children. They came marching in to the tune of the "Lohengrin" wedding march, played by one of the teachers of the school.

"What are you playing that for?" asked Mr. Kiser, but he got no reply, so admitted the joke was on him.

Mr. Kiser was married last Thursday to Miss Jennie Hann Hoffman, of Middle Valley. The couple went to Washington on their wedding trip.

Lost Clerk; Wins a Wife.

Behind the announcement of the engagement of Miss Rose Vine, stenographer for the State Railroad Revaluation Commission, and Frank Millner, one of the Trenton Playground Commissioners, is the story of the losing of a confidential clerk and the winning of a wife. Miss Vine, whose home is in Elizabeth, entered Mr. Millner's employ four years ago. She left him three years later, and since then he has been paying her court, with the result that the engagement is announced and the wedding will soon follow.

Dolls! Dolls! The biggest stock in Plainfield. Compare our values and you will buy here.

In no season, heretofore, have we exerted greater efforts or expended more time to assemble a stock of Holiday Goods, Toys and Dolls, so thoroughly complete in every way as you will find here this season.

Nor must we fail to mention a word about values, you can depend on it, that the same generous values which prevail at this store year in and year out, will be as much in evidence during the present holiday season as during any time since we have been in business.

Our careful search of the trade markets afforded us the opportunity of securing many unusual values. In every instance where we were able to affect a saving in price, we pass our good fortune on to you.

Probably you think it is a little early to think of Xmas purchases—but it is not—one can never make Xmas purchases too early. Purchasing early allows you to make selections leisurely, allows you to have choice from fullest assortments, stocks which are at their very best NOW.

And—we want to mention this—we must purchase holiday stocks, as you know, months and months in advance, so once an article is sold no more of that article can be had again this year. This fact alone should influence you to make your purchases just as early as possible.

So as to make shopping for you just as easy and convenient as possible, we have assembled all our toys and dolls in our splendidly equipped daylight-lighted second floor—here you will find attractive displays, plenty of room and ample stocks.

Can we expect you to inpect our stocks tomorrow.

M. & A. TEPPER.

N. B.—Santa Claus will make his headquarters in our Toy Department beginning Monday, December 12, and will be glad to meet his little friends.

GOLF.

Six applications for next year's national championship tournaments have been received at the United States Golf Association headquarters. Those desiring the amateur tournament are the Apawamis Club, of Rye, the Philadelphia Cricket Club and the Denver Country Club.

The Essex Country Club, of Manchester, Mass., has asked for the open championship, while the Nassau Country Club and the Garden City Golf Club have announced that their links are at the disposal of the women.

So far as the amateur championship tournament is concerned, surprise will doubtless be felt at the failure of the Deal Golf and Country Club and the Oakmont Country Club, of Pittsburg, to place themselves in line for the fixture. As far back as the annual meeting two years ago the Deal club declared itself for 1911, and it was generally understood that Oakmont would seek the attraction, especially after the success of W. C. Fownes, Jr., one of its leading members.

Apawamis has already been the scene of two metropolitan championships, while last summer the national open was run off at the Philadelphia Cricket Club. As applications do not close until December 1 there is yet time for additions to the list.

Action to determine the championship courses will be taken at the annual meeting of the association to be held in Chicago on January 14.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

With undiminished vitality in its fun "Three Twins" will appear at the Plainfield theatre on Tuesday night, December 13. It spins a plot of amusing complications around the tried and tested attractions of a chorus which goes through attractive evolutions of mechanical contrivance, and the leading players who are never at a loss for means to keep up the mirth. Two twins are fruitful enough for confusion, a third and flatly bogus "Twin" makes a very havoc with identities. There are dances that are delightfully pretty, catchy songs, novelties in chorus groupings and effects, stunning costumes and attractive stage settings. The chorus is made up of pretty girls, who can both sing and dance and who work with well trained decision. So the piece runs merrily to a conclusion to Mr. Hoschna's melodious music and gaiety furnished by Mr. Clifton Crawford, Miss Marie Fanchonetti and others.

POSTMASTER'S WARNING ON SENDING XMAS MAIL.

That senders of Christmas mail should put their address on mail matter is strongly insisted upon by postmasters. Through the inadvertence of many people many packages are sent with incomplete addresses, clogging the mails and delaying the service. The placing of the sender's address in the upper left hand corner will furnish means by which the omission may be supplied.

Another way in which the public can assist in the expeditious delivery of mail, is by sending their Christmas presents a week ahead. This would prevent the congestion of mail Christmas Day, and prevent delays in delivery.

They also call attention to the fact that Christmas seals should be placed on the back of packages, and advise the public before affixing them to packages going abroad to ascertain the countries where they are forbidden, as such packages will be retained by the domestic postal authorities.

The mail in the foreign registry and money order department has increased noticeably in the past week, the daily average receipts increasing. It is expected that this will be almost doubled the week before Christmas.

Miss Grace Smith, of Brooklyn, has returned home after a visit with friends here.

John VanPelt, of Millstone, has been visiting his son, Harvey VanPelt, of the West End.

Mr. and Mrs. George Reilly, of Jersey City, who have been visiting here, have returned home.

Frank Rickett, of the borough, continues to improve from a serious operation performed at the hospital.

Frank Stewart, of West Second street, was operated upon Tuesday at the hospital for appendicitis by Dr. N. W. Currie.

John English, of Westervelt avenue, who has been in the hospital for the past few weeks under treatment for a gunshot wound in the leg, continues to improve. The bullet has not yet been removed, the physicians deciding that it was not best to do so at present.

THE WATER REPORT.

We are not disposed to criticise finally the report of the expert, James H. Fuertes, on the problem of the water supply until the full text has been published and carefully considered, but his conclusions already reported in these columns convince us that the outlook for a satisfactory and unburdensome municipal system of water supply is not as promising as we would wish. We are neither for nor against public ownership. We are like the man from Missouri—we want to be shown.

One of Mr. Fuertes conclusions is that the Plainfield-Union Water company should be left in possession of its pumping station in the Netherwood section, at liberty to pump all the water it can get, both from its gravel wells that have been in use for nearly twenty years, and from its new deep rock wells, now being driven, and convey it to cities and towns for sale as it does at the present time. This pumping of Plainfield water away from Plainfield is the real serious grievance we have against the private corporation. The people of this community properly feel that the water beneath the surface of Plainfield should be conserved for our own use. Unfortunately, however, this object cannot be accomplished by any of the various plans suggested by the expert.

Besides, the water company, according to the report, is to be left in possession of its franchise to continue business in this city, in direct competition with any plant the city may build, the company having the advantage of being entrenched in every street. If the mains of the company now in the streets should be purchased or condemned, without the present pumping station, what could prevent the company from laying a new system and competing with the public plant, which it would be the better able to do because of its large business outside?

It is suggested in the report that the city obtain a supply of surface water from the Lamington, Raritan or Passaic river, but having long enjoyed the water drawn from artesian wells it would never be satisfied with a surface supply, constantly liable to pollution, even though it should be filtered. Filtration makes water clear, but not pure. To treat a city's water supply with chemicals to sterilize pollution may be within the powers of science but the people prefer water that does not require such treatment. The surface supplies proposed by the expert may as well be dismissed from consideration—at least for the present.

The report does not propose to obtain water from the gravel beds under the city, because that source, the expert says, is now being taxed to the limit of its capacity by the water company. Our municipal plant, if it gets water from the wells must drive them down into the rock beneath the gravel, where it is said a supply can be obtained independent of that which the water company now draws from the gravel. But the report states, and it is known to everyone who has visited the Netherwood section recently, that the water company has been busy for nearly a year in driving a series of wells deep into the very rock that Mr. Fuertes refers to. These wells are not yet in use, but no doubt they soon will be. The question, therefore, is, how long will it take the company to exhaust the supply in the rock? The fissures and interstices in the rock probably cannot hold as large a supply as the loose and more open gravel.

According to the expert a pumping plant can be constructed to draw either eight million gallons or four million gallons a day from the rock. He has certainly made no test of the quantity of water that can be gotten from the rock because no wells designed to obtain a large quantity have been driven into it, except by the water company, and those wells have not yet been used. A test of one or two wells for a few hours amounts to nothing. Wells on which a growing city must rely can only be properly tested by actual use through a term of years, including seasons both wet and dry. How Mr. Fuertes can tell that the city can get eight million gallons of water a day, from a series of wells that have not been driven or tested, is a mystery that may be explained by him hereafter.

The report shows that its author does not yet know the quality of the water that may be obtained from the rock, much less the quantity, because one estimate of the cost of the proposed plant is based on obtaining soft water from the rock, and another states that if it should be found that the water is too hard, it may be treated to make it soft enough for use. We know that the water in the gravel is hard, and it is quite likely that the water in the rock is still harder.

Suppose that the city should succeed in locating wells that would furnish a sufficient supply for the present, what would prevent the water company from driving other wells in the vicinity of the city's wells and sharing, if not exhausting, the city's supply? The company is not only authorized, but is bound to get water somewhere for its customers, and it serves a number of rapidly growing communities. The city cannot command a monoply of sub-surface supply. At best, the city and the company would have an equal right to any source available, as long as it lasts.

It is stated in the report that a 'new deep-well supply if soft water is yielded by wells' would cost $714,000; and that a "new deep-well supply if harder water requiring softening is yielded by the wells," would cost $841,000. It is fair to assume that the water from the deep rock wells would be hard, and experience has shown that it is necessaay to add at least forty or fifty per cent. to the first estimate of the cost of a large public work, whether it be a sewer system for a small city or a gigantic enterprise like the Panama canal. The original estimate of the cost of the canal was $140,000,000, and as a matter of fact the actual cost will be about $500,000,000. The original estimate of the cost of construction of the new court house at Elizabeth was $250,000, and it transpired that the actual cost was $590,000. And the limited experience of Plainfield in such matters tends to confirm the fact that the actual cost and the original estimate of a large public work are almost always very widely apart.

It would be unsafe to assume, we believe, that the cost of any system of water works sufficient for the present needs of the city and for its probable growth during the next ten years, would be less than a million dollars. And the report tells us that we should not expect to obtain water at lower rates than those now charged by the company.

The outlook, therefore, according to the report seems to be this—the city can build a system of water works and engage in competition with the water company for the business which the latter now has and for new business as the city grows. The city may also engage in a struggle with the private corporation for the unknown water supply in the rocks which the company is now tapping, or may, perhaps, obtain a supply of water from a distance. The ultimate consumers are to pay the rates now prevailing. In the meantime, and all the time, the company is strengthening its hold on the supply which ought to be reserved for Plainfield to the extent of our needs now and for all future time.

WHAT IS NEWS?

Every now and then some notoriety-seeking minister of the gospel for want of some other sensational subject to attract the curious will tell what he knows, or what he does not know to be more correct, about the newspaper. He wil handle his topic "without gloves," denouncing the modern newspaper as vicious and scandalous. And he generally concludes his discourse by teling what he would have a newspaper print. To the men who have made the business a lifelong study, his ideas are refreshing in that they are amusing if nothing else. The New York Times in touching on this habit of a certain class of preachers said:

"When newspapers are discussed in public, they are always charged with printing only crimes and horrors, and usually they are exhorted to mend their ways and devote all their space to exploitation of the good, the true and the beautiful. In other words, they are accused of giving the news and asked to abandon the habit.

"We notice with satisfaction, therefore, that Dr. Aked on Sunday preached a sermon in which he frankly recognized the fact for a thing to be news it must contain some element of the exceptional, and that while the good citizen going quietly about the performance of his duties is a highly commendable element in the community, he must in some way vary his routine before he becomes a claimant for the newspaper attention. But while Dr. Aked admitted this, he seemed to regret the necessity for doing so, and we can't for the life of us see why he should.

"That is the way the world was made. The newspaper is only a collection of the things that people here, there, and everywhere are noticing and talking about. Its critics do daily in their narrow field exactly what they condemn it for doing in its wider. At home and on the street and in their shops they observe, comment upon, and are interested in the more or less exceptional. And there is no ground whatever for the charge—Dr. Aked didn't make it, by the way—that the newspapers care only for the criminal and the horrible. Some of them, like some people, have reprehensible leanings that way, but the great majority of them are at least as ready to exploit the virtues as the vices, joyous events as sad ones. And they do it every day in the year, to an extent which in the aggregate is certainly large, and probably exceeds the chronicling of criminality and misfortune.

"It is news when a man goes wrong, and it is not news when he merely stays right. Were this not so the would would be a place indeed miserable and wicked—which, everything considered, it isn't."

Horace Greeley's illustration of what is and what is not news is probably the best that has been given. In instructing a 'cub' reporter, that great man said that if he sould see a yellow dog, with a wash boiler tied to his tail, dashing madly down the street barking as loud he could that would not be news. But if he saw that same dog, with that same boiler tied to his tail, moving slowly down the street all the time trying to wag his tail and appear hoppy, it would be real news. The reverse of the common-place is news.

Politics may make strange bedfellows, but it never made Senator George Silzer, of Middlesex, to register himself as a "Jim" Smith man. One only has to look in Silzer's eyes to size him up as a man who would be true to himself and to his party.

"BOOKS FOR OUR BOYS" SUBJECT OF LECTURE

The subject of the next lecture in the series "How to Know Our Boys," now being given on Friday afternoons in Y. M. C. A. hall by Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews has been changed. The topic to be considered tomorrow afternoon will be an especially timely one, "The Books Our Boys Ought to Read." An outline of the lecture follows:

1. The moral worth of the books that boys read; the "Good" book not always the best book, the harmfulness of the harmless book and the "moral of so-called 'bad books;'" the books of information and inspiration; awakening and developing the taste of the boy for good literature; the moral value of books on mechanics.

2. How to train the boy to read the "Book of Books;" how to use particular books to correct particular faults and develop particular virtues in boys; books as friends; training the boy to love and own a library.

At the close of the lecture there will be an exhibit of one hundred of the best books for boys. A large number of these have been chosen from the new books and are just the ones for mothers to give their boys for Christmas. Others are older books in holiday dress, but all of them have been selected because of their power to inspire and help the boy to a noble living.

There will be a special exhibit of books in charge of Miss Bowman, the librarian of the Plainfield Public Library. These are "The Books Boys Read" and comprise, in part, twenty-five books of fiction the titles of which were furnished by the library assistants in charge of the children's (12 to 15 years) room of the New York City Libraries. Miss Bowman has added to this list a number of books of all kinds, most read by the boys of Plainfield. Mr. Mathiews in his lecture will tell just why the boys read all these books and how in this group, parents may find the best material for moral and religious training.

The calendar, picture and poster exhibit of last week proved to be so popular that will be continued tomorrow afternoon.

The lecture will begin at 3:30 but Mr. Mathiews will be at the Y. M. C. A. building at three o'clock to meet any mothers who desire to confer with him.

GOLD WATCHES FOR M'ALEER'S ALL-STARS.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 1.—The members of the All-Stars baseball team, which played a series of exhibition games in this city and Washington prior to the world's series, have been presented with a gold watch by the Athletic Baseball Club in recognition of their services in aiding Manager Mack to keep his players on edge for the series with the Cubs.

The All-Stars received one-half of the receipts for the exhibition games less the expenses, but the officials of the Athletics thought the players should be rewarded in some other way and each man of the team was sent a gold watch suitably engraved. Those who received the presents in addition to Manager William McAleer, of the Washington Club, are: Pitchers, Walsh and White, of Chicago; Johnson, of Washington; catchers, Street, of Washington, and Sullivan, of Chicago; infielders, Stahl, of Boston; Elberfield, Schaefer, McBride and Cunningham, of Washington; Lord, of Chicago, and outfielders, Milan, of Washington; Cobb, of Detroit, and Speaker, of Boston.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

"A Yankee Circus," said to be one of the best musical comedies now on the road, will appear at the Plainfield thatre, Saturday afternoon and night. Mirth and melody abound and follow each other in rapid succession, and there is here and there a touch of real pathos in the eceedingly realistic lines of this clever play, which bring back to the old timers the days of the one ring circus and the pretty circus girls, funny clowns and tinseled sawdust knights. There is a clever plot in the play, and new and novel circus and vaudeville acts, original and catchy songs and the chorus of girls are said to be the prettiest and best drilled on the road this season.

Tickets for the performance of Miss Henrietta Crosman in "The Duchess of Suds," at The Plainfield theatre, went on sale yesterday morning and already there is a big demand for seats. Miss Crosman has always been a favorite with Plainfield theatregoers and the fact that Effingham Pinto is a member of the cast, will lend a double interest to the performance on Monday night. The play made a decided hit in Philadelphia, the critics declaring that it is one of the best comedies of the year.

In "The Duchess of Suds," at The Plainfield Theatre next Monday Evening.

W. S. Gummere for Chief Justice.

According to the story in today's New York World, President Taft will, on Monday name William S. Gummere, of Newark, for chief justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, and will send that name to the Senate for confirmation. Mr. Gummere is now chief justice of the New Jersey Supreme Court. He is fifty-eight years old and has resided the greater part of his life in Newark.

Will Give a Pound Party.

A pound party will be held at the Nurses' Home, adjoining Muhlenberg Hospital, Wednesday afternoon, December 7, from 3 to 6 o'clock, for the benefit of the tuberculosis pavilion. A cordial invitation is extended to everyone interested in this work. Donations of all kinds, dry groceries, including cereals, canned fruits and vegetables, patotaes, oranges and grape fruit will be acceptable.

PLUCK OF A MAGICIAN

Houdin's Experience Among the Marabouts of Algeria.

AN ARAB TRAP THAT FAILED.

The Great French Conjurer Stood the Test and Then by Another Trick Cowed His Infuriated Antagonists. The Story of Palmer's Curse.

There are some points of resemblance between the story of the great French conjurer, Robert Houdin, and the marabouts and the story of Palmer's curse. The first named tale is, strictly speaking, incredible only when regarded from the oriental point of view.

In the fifties the administrators of the French African empire were seriously hampered by the fanatical marabouts, who by their tricks of juggling persuaded their followers of their own supernatural powers and used this belief to fan the spirit of insurrection. Houdin was sent officially on a French warship to Algeria to confound them. While his task proved easy, the trip was not without its dangers.

In Algiers he had allowed himself to be shot at with pistols loaded by the marabouts. But once in the interior, when he was absolutely without the tools of his profession, he was forced to repeat the experiment. He was frightened, but he did not allow his fears to be perceived. He persuaded his audience to postpone the test until next morning in order that he might pass the night in prayer, as he was without the talisman that he needed if the feat was to be performed immediately.

The night he devoted not to prayer, but to insuring his invulnerability, and the next day before a great horde of Arabs he submitted to the test. The French conjurer insisted that in the sight of every one the pistols should be loaded by his enemies themselves. Then he calmly took his place and gave the signal. The sound of the pistol had not died away when Houdin opened his lips, showing the bullet held firmly between his teeth.

His infuriated adversary reached for the other pistol, but the conjurer was too quick. "You could not harm me," he said, "but now see how much greater my powers are than yours. Behold the wall." He fired, and out on the whitewash at the exact spot of his aim there crept slowly a great splotch of blood. The marabouts, in terror, cowered before the prowess of the European magician.

Less fortunate in his fate than Houdin was the English orientalist E. H. Palmer. He fell a victim to fanaticism, but the story of his terrible curse will long be repeated and cause shudders to run round Bedouin campfires. Only upon the theory of metempsychosis can be explained his extraordinary powers of assimilating the languages and ideas of the east.

He was brought up in the conventional atmosphere of England, but when he turned his attention to oriental subjects he did not merely learn; he simply absorbed. Not only were Persian, Hindoostanee and Arabic perfectly familiar to him, but he knew every obscurity of the slang of the camel drivers, and during his long voyages in the east his European origin was never suspected. Just as Houdin had been officially employed by the French government, so Palmer was by the English, but in a more intimate capacity.

Before the exploit that proved fatal he had many dangerous adventures. Once he was led away by a treacherous guide and betrayed to an Arab gang who meant to rob and kill him. He guessed their intentions, and when they began to inflict upon him petty annoyances he pretended not to notice them. Finally, however, the abuse became too obvious to be longer ignored. He sprang to his feet and drew out a letter that he had received from an English lady. "This to me! Down on your knees, you dogs, and kiss the handwriting of the sultan!" Down on their knees, cowed and groveling, fell his 300 captors.

In 1882 Palmer was sent on a secret service mission among the Bedouin tribes to persuade them against joining the rebellion of Arabi Pasha. He was betrayed and shot. But just before his death he laid upon his assassins the weight of his terrible curse. Now, in the east a curse is something not to be regarded lightly, and Palmer's was one of particular awfulness.

It was his last means of defense, and, while it did not save him, it blasted the hearing and destroyed the lives of those upon whom it fell. They shrank away from one another in horror. Some of them confessed their crime and were executed; all of them within a few months came to violent deaths. Palmer's curse is still remembered with terror in the east.—Bookman.

Got More Than the Cigar.

He was dining at a restaurant in the neighborhood of Leicester square, and while he was sipping his black coffee and firing 500 glances to the minute at a girl in a fluffy pink and white dress a stranger gracefully commandeered his overcoat. He had just reached the door when the owner tapped him on the shoulder.

"Pardon me, sir," he said meekly, "but would you allow me to get another cigar from my coat pocket in case I do not meet you again?"

Keep alive in your breast that little spark of celestial fire called conscience. —Washington.

A LITTLE THING.

A little word
Just letters three,
One syllable,
Short as can be,
So tiny, seems
Beyond one's banns,
Yet it can wreck
The biggest plans.

It nullifies
The highest praise;
On surest things
It puts new phase,
A promise great
I brings to naught,
It alters e'en
The finest thought.

There's not a word
For meaning ridged,
Can beat it in
The unabridged;
The grandest plans
Oft feel its cut—
That mean and measly
Little "but."

MANY COATS.

"There's a fellow that puts a different color coat on almost every day."

"He must be a millionaire."

"No; he's a painter."

His Motive.

When her husband used the mallet
He must of thought, of course,
That the bump he gave would save him
The disgrace of a divorce.

Useless Law.

"The copyright law is nothing but a hold-up game on the part of the government," remarked the would-be humorist.

"Why," rejoined the writer who had arrived, "I thought it an excellent law."

"Well, it isn't," answered the other. "Why, I never copyright my jokes, and no one ever steals them."

Friendship's Tribute.

Gladys—Did you see what the society column of the Daily Bread said about Nia Gillard the other morning? "She moves with ease and grace in our most exclusive circles!"

Maybelle—Yes, I read it. It's dead certain that the editor who wrote that had never seen her on roller skates.

The Sarcastic Answer.

He had one hand tied up in a cloth.

"What's the matter?" queried the party with the rubber habit.

"Burned my fingers," replied the victim.

"How?" asked the other.

"Heaping coals of fire on an enemy's head," was the answer.

His Homecoming.

Neighbor—What was that loud noise I heard early this morning?

Lady Next Door—I guess it was the dawn breaking, you heard.

Neighbor—The dawn breaking!

Lady Next Door—Yes. It generally breaks with a crash in our front hall.

Exactly.

"Wasn't King George about to go on an ocean voyage at the time of King Edward's death?"

"Yes, but he had to give it up in order to mount the throne."

"Postponed on account of reign, eh?"

A CRAZY MAN.

"I want a divorce from my wife."

"On what ground?"

"Insanity."

"How long has she been that way?"

"She isn't that way; I was to marry her."

Changed.

With lemons going up and up
To heights we never knew you
May believe she loves you not
She hands a lemon to you.

Doomed.

"I see that Hamilton, the man-bird, smokes cigarettes."

"Then it is a race between the flying machine and the cigarette as to which gets him first."

Sympathizing With the Landlady.

"And what would you say if you had a boarder that wouldn't eat no canned stuff at all?"

"I'd say he was uncanny."

The Riverman

By STEWART EDWARD WHITE

Copyright, 1908, by the McClure Company Copyright, 1907, 1908, by Stewart Edward White

"One other thing," concluded Orde. "I want this investment to get no farther than the office door. You see, this is for Bobby, and nothing spoils a man sooner than to imagine the thing's all cut and dried for him, and nothing keeps him going like the thought that he's got to rustle his own opportunities. Bobby's going to have the best education possible. He's going to learn to be a lumberman by practical experience, and that practical experience he'll get with other people. No working for his dad in Bobby's, I can tell you. Then, when he's worked into the harness a little, the old man will take him out and show him the fine big sugar pine and say to him: 'There, my boy; there's your opportunity, and you've earned it. How does Orde & Son sound to you?'"

"How does Orde & Son sound to you?"

Taylor nodded several times.

"I believe you're on the right track. Count on me."

As Orde walked home that evening after a hot day his mind was full of speculation as to the immediate future. He had a local reputation for wealth, and no one knew better than himself how important it is for a man in debt to keep up appearances. Nevertheless decided retrenchment would be necessary.

Chapter 29

NEWMARK marched precisely down the street to Heinzman's office. He found the little German in. Newmark demanded a private interview and without preliminary plunged into the business that had brought him.

"Heinzman," said he abruptly, "my partner wants to raise $75,000 for his personal use. I have agreed to get him that money from the firm."

"Proceed," said Heinzman shrewdly.

"As security in case he cannot pay the notes the firm will have to give he has signed an agreement to turn over to me his undivided one-half interest in our enterprise."

"Vell? You vant to borrow dot money of me?" asked Heinzman. "I could not raise it."

"I know that perfectly well," replied Newmark coolly. "You are going to have difficulty meeting your July notes as it is."

Heinzman hardly seemed to breathe, but red blazed in his eye.

"I intend," went on Newmark, "to furnish this money myself. It must, however, seem to be loaned by another. I want you to lend this money on mortgage."

"What for?" asked Heinzman.

"For a one-tenth of Orde's share in case he does not meet those notes."

"But he vill meet the notes," objected Heinzman. "You are a prosperous concern. I know somethings of your business also."

"He thinks he will," rejoined Newmark grimly. "I will merely point out to you that his entire income is from the firm and that from this income he must save twenty odd thousand a year."

"If the firm has hard luck"— said Heinzman.

"Exactly," finished Newmark.

"Vy you come to me?" demanded Heinzman at length.

"Well, I'm offering you a chance to get even with Orde. I don't imagine you love him."

"Vat's de matter mit my gettin' efen with you, too?" cried Heinzman. "Ain't you beat me out at Lansing?"

Newmark smiled coldly under his clipped mustache.

"I'm offering you the chance of making anywhere from thirty to fifty thousand dollars."

"Perhaps. And suppose this liddle scheme don't work out."

"And," pursued Newmark calmly, "I'll carry you over in your present obligations." He suddenly hit the arm of his chair with his clinched fist. "Heinzman, if you don't make those July payments what's to become of you? Where's your timber and your mills and your new house and that pretty daughter of yours?"

Heinzman winced visibly.

"I vill get an extension of time," said he feebly.

"Will you?" countermarked Newmark.

"Vell, maybe," laughed Heinzman uneasily. "It looks to me like a winner."

"All right, then," said Newmark briskly. "I'll make out a mortgage at 10 per cent for you, and you'll lend the money on it. At the proper time, if things happen that way, you will foreclose. That's all you have to do with it. Then when the timberland comes to you under foreclosure you will reconvey an undivided nine-tenths interest—for proper consideration, of course, and without recording the deed."

Heinzman laughed with assumed lightness.

"Suppose I fool you," said he. "I guess I joost keep it for mineself."

Newmark looked at him coldly.

"I wouldn't," he advised. "You may remember the member from Lapeer county in that charter fight and the $500 for his vote. Try it on and see how much evidence I can bring up. It's called bribery in this state and means penitentiary usually."

"You don't take a joke," complained Heinzman.

Newmark arose.

"It's understood, then?" he asked.

"How so I know you play fair?" asked the German.

"You don't. It's a case where we have to depend more or less on each other. But I don't see what you stand to lose, and anyway you'll get carried over those July payments," Newmark reminded him.

Heinzman was plainly uneasy.

"If you reduce the firm's profits he iss going to suspect," he admonished.

"Who said anything about reducing the firm's profits?" said Newmark impatiently. "If it does work out that way we'll win a big thing. If it does not we'll lose nothing."

He nodded to Heinzman and left the office. As he entered the office of his own firm his eye fell on Orde's bulky form. He paused involuntarily, and a slight shiver shook his frame—the dainty, instinctive repulsion of a cat for a large, robustious dog. Controlling himself, he stepped forward.

"I've made the loan," he announced. "The banks wouldn't touch northern peninsula, so I had to go to private individuals."

"Don't care who deals it out," laughed Orde.

"Thayer backed out, so finally I got the whole amount from Heinzman," Newmark announced.

"I didn't know he was friendly enough to lend us money."

"Business is business," replied Newmark.

From the moment Orde completed the secret purchase of the California timberlands from Trace he became an unwitting participant in one of the strangest duels known to business history. Newmark opposed to him all the subtleties, all the ruses and expedients to which his position lent itself. Orde, sublimely unconscious, deployed the magnificent resources of strength, energy, organization and combative spirit that animated his pioneer's soul.

Newmark worked under this disadvantage: He had carefully to avoid the slightest appearance of an attitude inimical to the firm's very best prosperity. If the smallest incident should bring clearly before Orde that Newmark might have an interest in reducing profits he would know the logic of the latter's devious ways. For this reason Newmark did not dare make bad sales, awkward transactions. The profits of the first year were not quite up to the usual standard, but they sufficed. Newmark's finesse cut in two the firm's income of the second year. Orde roused himself. With his old time energy he hurried the woods work until an especially big cut gave promise of recouping the losses of the year before. Newmark found himself struggling against a force greater than he had imagined it to be.

The end of the fourth year found Newmark puzzled. Orde had paid regularly the interest on his notes. How much he had been able to save toward the redemption of the notes themselves his partner was unable to decide.

What Orde regarded as petty annoyances had made the problem of paying for the California timber a matter of great difficulty. A pressure whose points of support he could not place was closing on him. Against this pressure he exerted himself. The margin of safety was not as broad as he had reckoned. But in any case, if worse came to worst, he could always mortgage the California timber for enough to make up the difference, and more. Against this expedient, however, he opposed a sentimental obstinacy. It was Bobby's, and he objected to incumbering it.

Affairs stood thus in the autumn before the year the notes would come due. Navigation remained open into November. No severe storms had swept the lakes. The barge and her two tows had made one more trip than had been thought possible.

The weather continued so mild that Orde decided that they take on a load for Jones & Mabley of Chicago.

"Did intend to ship by rail," said he. "They're all 'uppers,' so it would pay all right. But we can save all kinds of money by water, and they ought to skip over there in twelve to fifteen hours."

Orde departed for the woods to start the cutting as soon as the first belated snow should fall.

To Newmark, sitting at his desk after Orde's departure, reported Captain Floyd of the steam barge North Star.

"All loaded by noon, sir," he said.

Newmark looked up in surprise.

"Well, why do you tell me?" he inquired.

"I want your orders."

"My orders? Why?"

"This is a bad time of year," explained Captain Floyd, "and the storm signal's up. All the signs are right for a blow."

Newmark whirled in his chair.

"Are you afraid?" he sneered.

Captain Floyd's countenance burned a dark red.

"I only want your orders," was all he said. "I thought we might wait to see."

"Then go," snapped Newmark. "You heard Mr. Orde's orders to sail as soon as you were loaded."

Captain Floyd went out.

Newmark arose and looked out of the window. From the government's flagpole he caught the flash of red from the lazily floating signal. He was little weatherwise, and he shook his head skeptically. Nevertheless it was a chance, and he took it, as he had taken a great many others.

Chapter 30

TO Carroll's delight, Orde returned unexpectedly from the woods late that night. He was so busy these days that she welcomed any chance to see him.

After breakfast Carroll accompanied her husband to the front door. When they opened it a blast of air rushed in, whirling some dead leaves with it.

"I guess the fine weather's over," said Orde, looking up at the sky.

A dull lead color had succeeded the soft gray. The heavens seemed to have settled down closer to the earth. Whirlwinds scurried among the dead leaves on the lawns, chasing them madly around in circles.

"Winter's coming," shivered Carroll.

Carroll resolved to take a drive, as she enjoyed blustery weather. She stopped for Mina Heinzman, and the two walked around to the stable, where the men harnessed old Prince into the phaeton.

They entered Main street, where there was a great banging and clanging of swinging signs and a few loose shutters. All the sidewalk displays of vegetables and other goods had been taken in, and the doors, customarily wide open, were now shut fast.

"I wonder where all the farmers' wagons are?" marveled the practical Mina. "Surely they would not stay home Saturday afternoon just for this wind."

Opposite Randall's hardware store her curiosity quite mastered her.

"Do stop!" she urged Carroll. "I want to run in and see what's the matter."

She was gone but a moment and returned, her eyes shining with excitement.

"Oh, Carroll," she cried, "there are three vessels gone ashore off the piers! Everybody's gone to see."

"Jump in," said Carroll. "We'll drive out. Perhaps they'll get out the life saving crew."

Carroll drove straight ahead until Prince stood at the top of the plank road that led down to the bathhouses. Here she pulled up.

Carroll saw the lake, slate blue and angry, with whitecapped billows to the limit of vision. Along the shore were rows and rows of breakers, leaping, breaking and gathering again. These did not look to be very large until she noticed the twin piers reaching out from the river's mouth. Each billow as it came in rose sullenly above them, broke tempestuously to overwhelm the entire structure of their ends and ripped inshore along their lengths, the crest submerging as it ran every foot of the massive structures.

"Look there—out farther!" pointed Mina.

Three little toy ships—or so they seemed compared to the mountains of water—lay broadside to just inside the farthest line of breakers. Two were sailing schooners. These had been thrown on their beam ends, their masts pointing at an angle toward the beach. Each wave broke in a deluge of water that covered their hulls completely from sight. With a mighty suction the billow drained away, carrying with it wreckage. The third vessel was a steam barge. The shoreward side of her upper works had given away first, so now the interior of her staterooms and saloons was exposed to view as in the cross section of a model ship. Over her, too, the great waves hurled themselves, each carrying away its spoil.

"Poor fellows!" cried Mina.

"What?" asked Carroll.

"Don't you see them?" queried the other.

Carroll looked, and in the rigging of the schooner she made out a number of black objects.

"Are those men up the masts?"

"Are those men up the masts?" she cried.

She set Prince in motion toward the beach.

At the foot of the bluff the plank road ran out into the deep sand. Through this the phaeton made its way heavily. Already the beach was strewn with pieces of wreckage. The crowd gathered at the pier comprised fully half the population of Monrovia. It centered about the life saving crew, whose mortar was being loaded. A stove-in lifeboat mutely attested the failure of other efforts. When the preparations were finished their chief aimed the mortar and pulled the string. The dart with its trailer of line rose on a long, graceful curve. The reel sang. But the resistance of the wind and the line early made itself felt. Slower and slower hummed the reel. By a good 300 yards the shot failed to carry over the vessels.

"There's Mr. Bradford," said Carroll, waving her hand. "Couldn't they get the lifeboats out to them?" she asked as he approached.

"No."

"But surely they will never get a line over with the mortar!" said Carroll. "That last shot fell so far short!"

"They know it. They've shot a dozen times."

At this moment from the river a trail of black smoke became visible over the point of sand hill that ran down to the pier. A smokestack darted into view, slowed down and came to rest well inside the river channel. There it rose and fell on the swell. The crowd uttered a cheer.

"Come and see what's up," suggested Bradford.

He hitched Prince to a log and led the way to the pier.

The Sprite was lying close under the pier. Harvey, the negro engineer, leaned against the sill of his little square door, smoking his pipe.

"I wouldn't go out there for a million dollars!" cried a man excitedly. "Nothing on earth could live in that sea!"

"What are they going to do?" asked Carroll.

"Haven't you heard?" cried the other. "This is one of Orde's tugs, and she's going to try to get a line to them vessels."

Bradford turned abruptly and brushed toward the tug, followed by Carroll and Mina. At the edge of the pier was the tug's captain, Marsh, listening to earnest expostulation by a half dozen of the leading men of the town, among whom were both Newmark and Orde.

"Gentlemen," said he crisply, "I'm entirely willing to take all personal risks. The thing is hazardous, and it's Mr. Orde's tug. It's for him to say whether he wants to risk her."

"Good Lord, man, what's the tug in a case like this!" cried Orde.

"I thought so," replied Captain Marsh. "I'll take her out if I can get a crew. Harvey, step up here."

The engineer hoisted his long figure through the doorway.

"Harvey," said Captain Marsh briskly, "we're going to try to get a line aboard those vessels. It's dangerous. Will you go?"

"You all goin', suh?" he asked.

"Of course."

"I reckon I'll done half to go, too," said Harvey simply. He swung lightly back to the uneasy craft below him.

"I want a man with me at the wheel, two to handle the lines and one to fire for Harvey," said Captain Marsh.

"That's our job," announced the life saving captain.

"Well, come on, then."

Captain Marsh shook the hand which Orde, stooping, offered him.

"I'll try to bring her back all right, sir," said he.

"To h— with the tug!" cried Orde "Bring yourself back!"

Marsh entered the pilothouse.

"Cast off!" he cried. The "jangler" called for full speed ahead.

"Brave chaps! Brave chaps!" said Dr. McMullen to Carroll. "But, do you know, to my mind, the bravest of them all are that nigger and his fireman nailed down in the hold where they can't see nor know what's going on."

The tug had rounded the end of the pier. The first of her thousand enemies, sweeping in from the open, had struck her fair.

"She can stand that, all right," said one of the life saving crew. "But wait till she drops down to the vessels."

The Sprite was now so distant that the loom of the great seas swallowed her from view save when she rose on the crest of some mighty billow.

"There, she's turned now!" cried some one.

Beneath the trail of black smoke she had shifted direction. With startling swiftness the Sprite darted out of the horizon into full view. For the first time the spectators realized the size and weight of the seas. One moment the whole of her deck was visible, the next her bow alone showed high as the back suction caught her and dragged her into the hollow. A sea rose behind. Nothing of the tug was to be seen. It seemed that no power could prevent her being overwhelmed. Yet somehow always she staggered out of the gulf until she was again cast forward like a chip.

"Maybe they ain't catchin' p'ticular h— at that wheel to hold her from yawing!" muttered the tug captain.

The Sprite rushed at the outer line of breakers. The combers crested and fell with a roar, just as in milder weather the surf breaks on the beach. A woman in the crowd screamed. But at the edge of destruction the Sprite came to a shuddering stop. Her powerful propellers had been set to the reverse. Thus she hovered on the edge of the breakers, awaiting her chance. If one of the waves should happen to crest and break, the water, catching the tug on her flat stern deck, would indubitably bury her. The situation was awful in its extreme simplicity. Would Captain Marsh see his opportunity before the law of chances would bring along the wave that would overwhelm him?

Two or three of the townsmen walked up and down. One woman prayed aloud in short hysterical sentences.

"O God, save them! O Lord, O Lord!"

Orde stood on top of a half buried log, his entire being concentrated on the maneuver being executed. Only Newmark apparently remained as calm as ever.

Suddenly, without warning, occurred one of those inexplicable lulls that interpose often amid the wildest uproars. Between two waves the Sprite darted forward directly for the nearest of the wrecks.

"She'll collide!" some one shrieked.

But the tug swerved and turned on a long diagonal across the end of the bar.

TO ENFORCE BLUE LAWS IN DUNELLEN SUNDAY

All candy stores, barber shops, cigar stores and bootblack stands in Dunellen will be closed next Sunday in accordance with an ordinance passed two months ago by the Common Council. The new law is the fruit of a relentless agitation carried on by the church folk for Sunday closing.

The enactment of the ordinance is in a large measure due to the efforts of Councilman Robert F. Bogardus, who is a leading spirit in the First Presbyterian church and is business manager of the Christian Intelligencer. Mayor Sanford, who has the united support of the Council and church members, declared that the law will be enforced to the letter.

Restaurants and drug stores are the only places of business that will be permitted to keep open on the Sabbath. Before the new law was adopted there was some talk of prohibiting the sale of Sunday newspapers, but that suggestion was overlooked in framing the ordinance.

ARISTOCRACY OF MINDS THE VERY LATEST FAD

Mrs. Vance Cheney, founder of the School of Living and Health, with headquarters at the Hotel Collingwood, New York, delivered a lecture on the subject of "The New Aristocracy," yesterday afternoon at the studio of Mrs. McNeill Hopcraft in the Babcock building. There were about thirty-five women present, who listened with interest to the exposition of the doctrine of "The New Aristocracy." The doctrine is an application of new thoughts and new ideas to the old order of things without a disarrangement of the present mode of life, being an aristocracy of minds and kindred spirits, not of wealth, antecedents or blue blood.

It is supposed to suggest a new plane of living, the lecturer explained, where men and women can meet together on a mutual basis. It is primarily an aristocracy of the mind, to develop self-command of one's faculties, self-control, self-knowledge and the spirit of service.

Mrs. Cheney talked about an hour, at the conclusion of which she was asked questions relative to the formation of a League of Right Living and Thinking in this city. Miss Bertha vanNuis Willis sang a solo to the evident pleasure of the women present. She was obliged to respond to an encore. Miss Bertha Whitney was at the piano.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Wall Street's View.

There can be no doubt concerning the attitude of the New York Sun towards the candidacy of James Smith, Jr., for the office of United States Senator. In an editorial published yesterday morning, the Sun said: "The people of New Jersey are entitled to the services of a man of superior ability and proved usefulness in the senate, and they should see that they get such a man." This is the closing paragraph of an editorial in which the Sun belittles the candidacy of James E. Martine. The only man in view on the Democratic side of the house who is a candidate for United States Senator, and who can show "proved usefulness in the senate" is James Smith, Jr. In sizing up the situation the Sun, of course, takes a Wall street view of it, and if Mr. Smith goes to the senate he may be relied upon to cater to the Wall street interests—Trenton State Gazette. PHILLIES PLAN BIG EXHIBITION SERIES.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 1.—From the way the Phillies are working to make up a route for the playing of exhibition games with minor league and college clubs on the return trip from Birmingham, Ala., next March, Manager Dooin's players will have plenty of work to put them in trim for the interleague series with the Athletics.

President Fogel expects Manager Dooin to divide his players into two teams, the way Connie Mack has always done, and have the teams play every day from the time they leave Birmingham until they reach Philadelphia. The last games will probably be played at Baltimore, with the Eastern League club of that city, on March 29 and 30, which will enable the Phillies to reach home the night before their first game with the Athletics. It is also expected that games will be arranged with Washington on March 27 and 28. Last spring the Phillies played Baltimore first and came to Philadelphia from Washington.

SAYS DR. COOK HAS NEW TALE TO TELL

According to an article to appear in Hampton's Magazine, Dr. Frederick A. Cook has stated frankly that he does not know whether he reached the pole or not, and that when he convinced himself that he had reached the goal so many had strived for and lost, he was half crazed. His only reason, Dr. Cook is reported to have said for making this statement, "was to clear himself of the charge of faker which had made him virtually a fugitive for more than a year."

Dr. Cook, according to the magazine, does not make this explanation to clear his skirts as a geographer and discoverer, as it were, but to regain the sympathy and confidence of his fellow citizens. He is quoted as saying that his mind was affected by months of privation in the Arctic seas and that he believes the public will believe he was sincere when he made the assertion that h had discovered the pole

Dr. Cook, it is declared, has told of his travels since he left New York in November, 1909. The statement from Hampton's says he spent much of his time in London, where he frequently met and was recognized by Americans. It adds that he says he never sought to disguise himself, but openly walked the streets with his wife and children. Hampton's says he hopes to return to this country within two weeks to spend the Christmas holidays.

KING'S DAUGHTERS WORK

Encouraging Annual Reports Read at the Meeting of the City Union.

NEED A LARGE NURSERY.

City Nurse and Nursery Matron Tell of Their Work—Balance in Treasury—Mrs. Dodge's Address.

The great and constantly urging need of day nurseries was the topic of a talk given by Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge, at the semi-annual meeting of the City Union, of The King's Daughters, held in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Dodge, president of the Federation of Day Nursery work, has just returned from a trip around the world in the interest of that work. She has been absent about a year and during that time 248 day nurseries have been established in various parts of the country.

Mrs. Dodge spoke of the need of this work, especially in factory towns where, she said, it had been proven that the lives of thousand of children had been saved. She read statistics to show that many children die under the age of two years for lack of care and proper nourishment, and the exception to the rule was in Lowell, Mass., where the day nursery work is far advanced and great efforts are made to provide not only instruction for mothers in the care of children, but to give the children the proper care and feeding. Mrs. Dodge also gave an interesting account of the day nursery work as she found it in Japan.

The speaker brought words of encouragement from the field, showing the great progress that has been made all over the world in the work she represents.

During the meeting twelve of the fourteen local circles of King's Daughters, presented reports, showing that each one is in a flourishing condition with many new members added to the roll. It was reported that since last May, with August omitted when he Day Nursery was closed, there had been 2,121 cared for at the nursery during the year, the number being made up by the days' attendance, the total number, of course, being much less. At present there are twenty-eight babies at the nursery and only four cribs.

The need of a larger nursery and more help is apparent, it was reported, if this work is to be carried on successfully. The city nurses, Miss Olive DeLany and Mrs. Bird, matron of the day nursery, are often called upon to teach mothers how to prepare food for their children and otherwise care for their offspring.

Miss DeLany made 793 visits from May 14 to November 26, attending several operations and assisting in the care of several cases of incurable disease. There were two deaths and sixty new cases were reported during the above period. This report was presented by Miss Lillian A. Force, who is chairman of the nurse committee.

The report of the treasurer, Mrs. Anna Most showed that the total expenses since May for camp and Day Nursery work was $2,459.22, and there is a balance of $384.36 now in the treasury. This work cannot be carried on for less than $250 a month.

Mrs. Frank W. Jones, as president of the City Union of The King's Daughters, presided at the session yesterday. At the conclusion of the talk by Mrs. Dodge and the business tea was served by the members of the Loyal Daughters' Circle, of which Mrs. Peterkin is the president.

FORMER CUSTOM HOUSE OFFICIAL TELLS LIFE STORY.

James Busten, formerly a Custom House official, and, at one time worth $250,000, gave the story of his life at the Salvation Army meeting, last night, telling how drink robbed him of everything and when taken into the Salvation Army Industrial Home, the rag man would not give him five cents for all he possessed.

After being in the home for a time he was converted and today is living a Christian life, delivered from the power of strong drink. "Beside robbing me of money and a three-story house in New York city," said the speaker, "drink robbed me of my wife, family and friends and left me a helpless wreck where every door was closed against me, but the door of the Salvation Army."

CIVIC BODY'S DIRECTORS

Chamber of Commerce's First Regular Meeting is Largely Attended.

ELECT THE EXECUTIVE BOARD.

Leon R. Thurlow and Mayor Fisk Talk of Municipal Improvements—Annual Banquet.

The first meeting of the newly organized Chamber of Commerce was held in the Board of Trade rooms, last night, and permanents arrangements were made for the incorporation of the Chamber. The meeting was called to order by President Babcock and A. S. Herr, secretary pro-tem, read the minutes of the previous meeting.

Upon motion of Mr. Jeffery, the rules were suspended and the election of a Board of Directors held, the board to hold office until the annual meeting of the Chamber, which will be held on the fifth of January, 1911. President Babcock appointed A. E. Force, H. B. Sweeney and C. J. MacNabb as tellers. The result of the balloting was announced as follows: D. J. Carney, B. Frank Coriell, F. A. Duttenhofer, D. W. Littell, P. J. McDonough, H. Schuldenfrei, T. J. Shirley, M. C. VanArsdale, J. V. E. Vanderhoef, L. B. Woolston and John Ulrich.

While the tellers were at work, former Health Inspector Leon R. Thurlow delivered a most interesting talk on the matter of garbage collection and disposal. The remarks of the speaker were followed closely by the members of the Chamber and were the cause of considerable discussion following the adjournment of the meeting. Mr. Thurlow's address will be found in another column.

Mayor Fisk was then recognized by the President of the Chamber and he was called upon for a few remarks. The Mayor discussed briefly the matter spoken on by Mr. Thurlow and also referred to the lighting of the city with particular reference to the business section. The Mayor was of the opinion that this matter had been talked about for a sufficient length of time and he expressed the hope that Plainfield's business section would receive the illumination it deserved before any great length of time has elapsed. The Mayor also spoke of his efforts to have a factory located in the town and gave an outline of his talk with the persons involved in the transaction of moving their manufacturing plant from a suburb of Chicago into Plainfield. The Mayor's enumeration of the advantages of Plainfield as he outlined them to the prospective locater of a factory showed his familiarty with every phase of the city's life. Both the Mayor and Mr. Thurlow received a hearty vote of thanks from the Chamber for their remarks.

The question of a Chamber of Commerce dinner was then brought up by Mr. Jeffery and it was moved that the president appoint a committee to get busy on this affair. Judge Ulrich spoke of the general sentiment of civic bodies in regard to holding this affair on Lincoln's birthday, inasmuch as there would be absolutely no partisanship involved and it was voted by the chamber that February 13 be the date.

The enrollment in the chamber showed sixty names and there is not the slightest doubt, considering the splendid feeling of enthusiasm which was manifested at the meeting, that the co-operation of all the good men of Plainfield who are willing to sacrifice a little of their time and money for the advancement of the city's interests, will result in a civic body whose name and fame shall be known throughout the State. A meeting of the board of directors will be held in the immediate future and an earnest effort will be put forth to present the work of the chamber to the attention of every citizen of Plainfield whose character and standing are such as to make him desirable as a member of the organization.

"COUNTRY ROMANCE" GIVEN AS A BENEFIT

The entertainment, "A Country Romance," given for the benefit of the Baptist Boys' Battalion, was largely patronized last night at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium and everyone in the cast received much deserved applause. The young men and women presented this pastoral play with all the aplomb of old time actors, the incidental singing and other musical numbers being rendered with ease and grace.

The scene of the play is the sitting room of a country farmhouse and the play delightfully brings out the quaint old time love scenes characteristic of the times in which farming was the greatest industry in the country. The play will be repeated tonight and it is expected that a large audience will again gather to hear the young people.

The cast of characters follows: Silas Simpson, Ernest Conover; Mirandy Simpson, Violet S. Van Winkle; Grace Simpson, Beulah M. Van Winkle; Jack Fairfax, Harold Leadbetter; Chauncey Lippincott, Horace N. Adams; a lawyer, Howard Parry. Mr. Parry also took the part of Judd Goodman. Miss Lillian Mundy was an accomplished pianist and Harold Leadbetter the soloist. The musical numbers consisted of "Home Sweet Home," "Down at the Huskin' Be," "Without You," and "Put on Your Old Grey Bonnet."

SERVANT GIRL A THIEF

Emma Konala Nabbed While on Way to Railroad Station.

HAD TRUNKFUL OF STUFF.

Mrs. Joseph D. Phillip and Mrs. M. A. Zook the Victims—Tried to Dispose of Loot at Headquarters.

A clever arrest was made by Detective Sergeant Flynn last night, in the person of Emma Konala, a German servant who in four months of domestic employment in this city, had managed to aggregate a great quantity of the finery so much sought after by fastidious females, at the expense of her emyloyers.

The young woman was first employed in the home of Mrs. Joseph D. Phillips, of Denmark road, and during the three months of her service managed to steal many articles of value and get away with them. Leaving Mrs. Phillips the woman took employment from Mrs. M. A. Zook, of East Sixth street, and here again she began to appropriate things belonging to her employer.

Notwithstanding that twenty dollars in wages was due the young woman last night, she did not choose to wait for it, but packed two grips with things belonging to Mrs. Zook and started for the railroad station, evidently with the intention of making a get-away to New York. Detective Sergeant Flynn intercepted her on Watchung avenue at the corner of Fifth street and brought her to police headquarters, where, in an attempt to do away with some of her loot, she was caught in the act by Captain Frederickson.

Miss Konala is about twenty years old and comely, but according to the police is an experienced hand at the game. Among the goods taken are silk underwear, lace sunshades and other articles of feminine apparel whose value has not been estimated. The woman was remanded for a further hearing tomorrow morning before City Judge William N. Runyon.

Mrs. Phillips, who is in Atlantic City, has been notified of the arrest and will probably come back to identify some of the stuff stolen which the young woman acknowledges as belonging to her.

WHITE PLAGUE CAMP SITE DECISION DEC 9

Two communications, signed by a large number of residents, one from Elizabeth and the other from Plainfield, and both accompanied by resolutions, were received by the Union County Board of Freeholders, yesterday, urging that the proposed tuberculosis camp be established at the respective places. The Plainfield petitioners want the camp located on the mountains back of Scotch Plains while the Elizabeth people want it located near that place.

The petition favoring the site at Scotch Plains contained the greatest number of points in favor of the local site, they being elevation, pure water supply, opportunities for raising products, and a building which can now be used for administrative purposes. In addition this land can be purchased for a reasonable sum, while other suggested sites cost a great deal more.

The board decided to hold a special meeting on Friday, December 9, when this matter alone will be discussed with a view to deciding on a site.

Resolutions were adopted yesterday providing that all books, bills and vouchers be opened for the inspection of any newspaper or citizen; that all newspapers and citizens are invited to inspect all bills paid by the county for any purpose and that for the convenience of such newspapers and citizens; who may desire to inspect them, the clerk of the board is instructed to be in the freeholders' room at the Courthouse for the next ten days, between the hours of 9 and 12 o'clock in the morning, excepting Sundays.

Mrs. Leonard Young.

Mrs. Leonard Young, of 309 West Second street, died at her home at noon today, following a brief illness. She was forty years old and leaves one son, Leonard Young, Jr. Her husband is a barber and formerly conducted a shop on Somerset street. He is located at Roselle Park at the present time.

Men's Club Meeting.

The Men's Club of Warren chapel will meet tonight at 8 o'clock and Superintendent H. C. Krebs, of the borough schools, will deliver an address on "Grant." All men are invited.

SUIT AGAINST CENTRAL FOR BIG DAMAGES FAILS

A verdict of no cause for action was rendered in the United States district court in New York, yesterday, against Henry Alexander, of Liberty street, this city in his suit to recover $15,000 damages from the New Jersey Central Railroad. The case had previously been heard twice, once at White Plains and once in New Yorrk, being dismissed each time on technical gounds. It was finally heard yesterday and the jury reached its decision in a short time.

Alexander, who is colored, was riding on one of the company's coal trains about 6 o'clock in the morning one day two years ago, when his injuries were received. He claimed that an employe pushed him from the car, causing him to fall beneath the wheels. He was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital, where both legs were amputated. The suit for damages was based on the alleged action of the employe while the railroad simply contended that Alexander was trespassing on its property and fell from a train as he was in the act of stealing coal. The plaintiff was represented by a New York lawyer.

In speaking of the case today, one of the railroad officials said that as a result of this case steps would probably be taken to indict some of the witnesses for perjury.

SCHUMANN-HEINK IN SONG RECITAL TONIGHT

Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink will sing tonight in the Plainfield theatre under the auspices of the Musical Club of Plainfield. Her selections are those which are favorites with the concert loving public and the indications are that the house will be filled.

It was noised abroad that this wonderful operatic star intended to curtail her program here in order to sing at a benefit to be given in Newark tonight for the families of those who perished in the recent holocaust in that city. The story is absolutely false. Madame Schumann-Heink will fulfill her contract here and will not leave for Newark until after 11 o'clock, when she will be taken in an automobile. The Plainfielders who attend the recital tonight will be given the full value of their money.

PROTESTING AGAINST TAX ON THEIR AUTOMOBILES

The Union County Board of Taxation held a two hours' session in the Common Council rooms, this morning, for the purpose of receiving complaints from taxpayers who had any objection to make to their assessments as levied by the local Board of Assessors. A large number of taxpayers appeared, stated their reasons for complaint and in a number of instances corrections were made by the board.

Automobiles figured in several complaints before the board, persons claiming that they did not own machines when the levy was made or that they had disposed of their autos and do not now possess them. All of the local assessors were present to discuss the complaints with dissatisfied property-owners.

A Surprise Party.

PEPPARD NAME OF CROOK

Alleged Forger Taken to New Haven This Morning to be Arraigned.

MARRIED IN BUENOS AIRES.

Wife is of a Refined Boston Family—Exonerated from Participation in Crime—An Episode.

After a search conducted by Chief of Police Kiely and Detective Captain Thomas J. Dunn, of New Haven, Conn., last night, documents were discovered which revealed the identity of the forger who has been masquerading under the name of Charles E. Davis and Charles E. McDonald. The man's real name is Dr. John Leonard Peppard, and he is a native of Nova Scotia. He is a graduate of McGill University, Montreal, Canada. His wife comes of a well known Boston family. Her full name is Margaret Agnes Fulton and is a graduate of Smith College. The couple were married at Buenos Aires, Argentina, on November 28, 1908.

The couple confessed this morning to having burned a mass of papers in the furnace of Truell Inn, where they boarded, some of which would have revealed stories of crimes committed in other places. The search last night was mainly for the purpose of finding these papers and as they were not found the trunks were released and only the stolen goods contained in them confiscated. These pieces of silverware and other articles will be shipped to New Haven subject to garnishee and held for identification by any who may be able to identify them.

Peppard was taken to New Haven this morning by Captain Dunn and parted from his wife in Chief Kiely's office. Their final words to each other must have been of an affectionate nature for when they were parted tears were seen to be coursing down the woman's checks. Mrs. Peppard has been cleared from any participation in the crime charged to her husband and will in all probability go to her parents' home in Boston today.

The jewelry which was found in one of the trunks is all claimed by Mrs. Peppard as her personal property and she has been allowed to retain it. While searching the apartments of the couple last night, Chief Kiely missed one of the very fine razors which he knew Peppard owned and after a long search found the missing blade sewn in the lining of a magnificent buffalo robe which was among the articles that the man wanted to sell.

TALK ABOUT THE CHURCH AT DINNER OF THE FLOCK.

"Our Church," was the general topic discussed at the Park Avenue Baptist church last night, following a dinner which was enjoyed by about 170 members. The feast was prepared and served by the women of the church. The Sunday school room, where it was held, was artistically decorated for the occasion.

After the dinner Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire, pastor, who presided, called for suggestions and criticisms regarding future work of the church. Every department of work in the church was treated and views to strengthen the weak places. Among those who entered into the discussion were George E. Hall, superintendent of the Sunday school; Miss Florence G. Hawkins, George W. V Moy and David M. Runyon and others. The remarks by Pastor Maguire were very helpful and encouraging.

In discussing plans for the coming year, it was suggested that special meetings might be advantageous, but no formal action was taken. It was decided to place a tablet in the church in memory of the late Dr. Robert Lowry, who was a beloved pastor of the church. He served the church as pastor without any salary.

Reception to New Pastor.

Rev. Henry J. Johnston, former pastor of Grace M. E. church, the borough, now pastor of the First M. E. church, Hoboken, will be given a welcome reception Monday night by his congregation, clergymen of the various churches and their wives and laymen. Mr. Johnston succeeded Rev. Dr. C. L. Mead, who has gone to Baltimore. He comes from the M. E. church at Port Jervis, N. Y.

A Birthday Party.

Miss Edna E. Smith, of the borough, entertained about thirty-five young folks on Wednesday in honor of her thirteenth birthday. A pleasant evening was spent playing games. She received some handsome presents. Guests were present from New York and Rahway and this city.

WHY THE CITY SHOULD COLLECT THE GARBAGE

Consulting Health Officer Makes Timely Address Before Commerce Chamber.

HE GIVES THREE REASONS.

Urges That Municipal System Supplant the Disgraceful Broken-down Wagon Service—For Economy and Health.

An instructive and timely address on the need for a municipal system of collection and disposal of garbage and ashes was delivered by Consulting Health Officer Leon Thurlow at the Chamber of Commerce meeting last night. It will be recalled that annually for the last nine years, the Board of Health has urged the Common Council to rid the city of the unsanitary and disgraceful condition and to introduce a public system for the removal and disposal of both ashes and garbage.

Mr. Thurlow's address follows:

"To a person looking for a home, Plainfield can boast of attractions second to none in the State of New Jersey. The schools, streets, police and fire departments, the city government, are all modern and maintained for the best interests and comfort of the residents. In one respect, however, Plainfield is sadly behind the times—in the collection of garbage, ashes and rubbish. The method of collecting this municipal waste today is what we might expect to find in a small country town. While all the cities about us have modern methods, we have broken-down wagons, horses and cans, the householder at the mercy of the licensed collector,—who collects or not, as he pleases, and when he chooses—and finally the garbage fed to hogs and brought back to Plainfield in the form of pork.

"I want to give three reasons why these conditions should not be allowed to exist, i. e.:

"First, on account of the expense.

"Second, on account of the inconvenience and discomfort to the residents.

"Third, because of the possibilities of the spread of disease.

"(1) Expense: I have placed this first as it is considered by many to be of far more importance than the others.

"There are in Plainfield, at the present time, twenty-one garbage collectors, licensed by the Board of Health, and twenty-eight ash collectors, licensed by the Common Council. These men have the entire city as a field for business and they have no uniform charge. The average householder probably pays from $12 to $15 per year for the removal of the garbage and ashes from his premises. I think that it may be conservatively estimated that $25,000 to $35,000 is spent annually in Plainfield for the removal of garbage and ashes from about one-third of the houses.

"In Montclair this work is done by five one-horse wagons and one two-horse wagon at a cost of $21,500; this includes the cost of disposal by burying in trenches—a cost of ninety-seven cents per capita. In other cities, this work is done at a cost per capita varying from seven to sixty cents; therefore I can see no reason why this work should not be done in Plainfield as cheaply as in other cities, which would certainly be a saving over what is now spent. The entire city could then be taken care of by six neat, modern, sanitary wagons, instead of the twenty or more now in use, which are for the most part, broken-down, unsanitary affairs.

"(2) From the standpoint of convenience and comfort: A municipal system of collection and disposal would certainly be a great advantage over the present method. As I said before, the householder is at the mercy of the collector, who takes the garbage away if it suits his convenience, but if it does not, then the householder must hunt for someone else. During the summer months, a continual stream of complaints is received by the health department of the failure of collectors to remove the garbage of their regular customers.

"In addition, many complaints of the bad odors from the garbage wagons are received. The Board of Health has tried to improve these conditions by requiring garbage to be collected in water-tight metal cans with tightly fitting metal covers, and having all collections in the business portion of the city made be-

GOLF.

Following up the offer read at last year's annual meeting of the United States Golf Association of its course for the amateur championship of 1911, the Deal Golf and Country Club made a formal application yesterday with Secretary Watson just as the time limit expired. The by-laws state that any club wishing to hold a championship must file its application on or before December 1, and that the list of applicants must be sent out by the secretary with the call for the annual meeting. At this meeting, to be held in Chicago on January 14, the delegates decide the matter.

If the usual rotations are followed the next amateur will be at a Metropolitan or Pennsylvania course, the women's at New York or Boston and the open in the West. The professionals had expected to play at the Chicago Golf Club, but it has not asked for anything. A letter postmarked December 1 would be a good entry still. The Deal course has great distance and with little labor may be made as stiff by bunkers as any one could wish. President Byrnes and J. F. Shanley, Jr., of Deal, were at Brookline for the last amateur and took occasion also to visit Myopia. They have studied other links also to gain suggestions for an amateur championship. As the course is on the surf washed New Jersey coast, it is an attractive one for a September fixture.

Six other clubs have registered applications. Three ask for the amateur, the Apawamis Club of Rye, in the Metropolitan Golf Association district; Philadelphia Cricket Club, where the last open championship took place, and the Denver, Col., Country Club. The only applicant for the open is the Essex County Club of Manchester, Mass., where R. E. Hunter won his intercollegiate title last September.

There are no specific applications for the women's championship, but the Nassau Country Club and the Garden City Golf Club have placed their links at the disposal of the U. S. G. A. for either of the three title contest.

Nothing has been heard from the Oakmont Country Club of Pittsburg. Oakmont is the home of W. C. Fownes, the present titleholder, and has been gossiped about as a probable applicant.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

Zbyszko, the Giant Pole, who is to be the star of the wrestling revival at the Grand Central Palace, New York, tonight, arrived in New York Wednesday night after a successful tour of the Eastern States. Zbyszko's part of the lengthy program which Joe Humphries has arranged is to throw Tom Jenkins, the former champion, and Andrew Kindrat, the Lithurian giant, each in thirty minutes. Jenkins, in writing to Humphries from his training quarters, says the big Pole will have sufficient trouble preventing himself from being put down.

Humphries says the carnival will be the biggest thing of its kind ever attempted and that everything connected with it will be strictly honest and on the level, with Charley White as referee. Outside of the Zbyszko bout, the program is as follows: George Bothner against two men, Tom Boles, of Wales, and Gus Larsen, of Sweden, Bothner agreeing to throw both in twenty minutes; Will Bingham, the English champion, against George Niflot, now instructor at Columbia; Joe Rogers against three heavyweights, and Bingham in a second bout with Professor Jillis, the Japanese jiu jitsu expert. In this match Bingham will don the Japanese harness and agrees to throw Jillis within fifteen minutes.

DIAMOND BUTTONS FOR WORLD'S SERIES UMPIRE.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—President Johnson, of the American League, Tuesday announced there would be diamond buttons for the four umpires who participated in the world's series, just the same as for the twenty-three members of the victorious Philadelphia team. In the past the National Commission has limited the jewelry to the players, the manager and owner of the winning club.

This new departure will provide for emblems for Hank O'Day, Charles Rigler, Tommy Connolly and Jack Sheridan, the arbiters, as well as for President Ben Shibe and Manager Connie Mack, of the Athletics, and President Thomas Lynch, of the National League. The emblems will be forwarded to the players and officials within a few days, according to President Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Meary, of Jersey City, have returned home after a visit with friends here.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, is detained at home by a slight illness.

COLECTION OF GARBAGE

fore nine o'clock in the morning. While this bettered conditions to a certain extent, it did not relieve the residential section.

"This past summer, more complaints of the accumulation of garbage were received by the health department than from any other source. Our house-to-house inspection revealed the fact that many of the rear yards were in bad condition, due to accumulations of ashes and garbage. This was particularly true of the poorer sections, where the people were unable to pay for the removal of their garbage, and as a consequence, were obliged to burn it, bury it or throw it over the back fence.

"Compare these conditions with a modern systematic collection, where the garbage is removed at certain stated intervals, from every house in the city.

"(3) The possibilities of the spread of disease by garbage: The relation between the health of a community and accumulations of garbage is chiefly through the medium of flies. A pile of garbage, stewing in the sun, not only exhales nauseating odors, but the warmth of the decaying matter creates a most favorable breeding place for flies. And flies are recognized carriers of most of the contagious disease, so that everything possible should be done to reduce the number of their breeding places.

"You have seen flies feeding on sputum in the streets: It might easily have been the sputum of a person suffering from tuberculosis. From the sputum, with its legs and body covered with the bacilli, the fly goes to the food on the table, to the baby's bottle, the children's toys and many like places. By abolishing the breeding places of flies, the spread of communicable disease is limited accordingly.

"As a remedy for these conditions, let us first consider the collection of the garbage and ashes. There are two ways in which this may be done by the city: By contract and by municipal collection.

"In either case, the garbage can be taken from a proper can in the rear of each house, at least three times a week in summer and once or twice a week in winter; it could be conveyed to the place of disposal in a few water-tight, steel garbage wagons, and the work done in such a manner as not to be a nuisance.

"The collection is comparatively simple, it being merely a question of dividing the city into proper districts, having a sufficient number of wagons and men to do the work, and the proper ordinances and rules. If collection was all that was necessary, Plainfield would undoubtedly have had its municipal system long before this, but after the garbage is collected, it must be disposed of, and to do this in an economical, satisfactory and sanitary manner, is a somewhat serious problem for a city of the size of Plainfield.

"There are five methods of disposal in use today:

"1. Burying.
"2. Dumping on land or at sea.
"3. Feeding to swine.
"4. Cremation.
"5. Utilizing by reduction.

"Of the first three, little can be said in their favor. Montclair has recently had trouble with the State authorities on account of the nuisance arising from the burying of garbage.

"Cremation, or destruction by fire, requires a special "destructor or furnace.' Cremation is now practiced by a great many cities with very good results. There are so many kinds of furnaces that it would be impossible to go into the details of each. While the initial cost of a destructor would be high, it would dispose of the garbage of Plainfield in a sanitary manner, and the cost of maintenance would be reasonable.

"Utilizing by reduction: This is briefly the extraction of the grease from the garbage. The plant for this is quite elaborate and expensive, and I have seen only one that is operated without much odor—the one at New Bedford, Mass. There is, however, a plant in one of the suburbs of Montreal which is, I believe, successfully generating sufficient steam to operate generators to light the city.

"The initial cost of these plants was naturally a stumbling block for Plainfield, but three years ago, a plan was thought of whereby the garbage could be collected and sent to a place where such a crematory or utilization plant was already in operation. The matter was thoroughly studied and the contractor who at that time had the contract for Newark and who was building a utilization plant, was consulted, and satisfactory arrangements could have been made with him to dispose of Plainfield's garbage. The one obstacle was transportation. Trucking was too expensive, the Central Railroad of New Jersey would not carry it, and the Public Service Railway could not, under the laws of the State.

"This latter obstacle has since been removed, for under the laws of the State of New Jersey for 1910, a municipality has the right to erect sheds for the storage and loading of garbage on cars; and this same law gives the trolley company the right to transport garbage over its lines.

"I recently asked the counsel of the Public Service Corporation if the company would consider the transportation of the garbage from Plainfield to Newark or some other place, and approximately what the cost would be. I had hoped to have his answer in time for this meeting, but unfortunately was unable to do so. An arrangement of this kind, if it was properly worked out, would solve the problem of the disposal of the garbage.

"The disposal of the ashes is so simple that I need only to mention it. All about Plainfield there are low lands that require filling in. The ashes could be used for this purpose.

"In my annual report to the Board of Health, I am going to recommend that a joint committee from the Common Council and Board of Health be appointed to investigate this matter. There is no question but that the time has come when we should have municipal collection of the garbage, ashes and rubbish, and an organization like the Chamber of Commerce, could do much toward obtaining it."

An Appeal From W. C. T. U.

The W. C. T. U. makes an appeal for articles to be shipped to Captain George Benn for his work among the sailors. Contributions of fruit, nuts, candies, fancy crackers, mittens, sweaters, caps, picture books, small toys and paper dolls for children on canal boats wil be acceptable and wil be received at the W. C. T. U. rooms Thursday, December 8, when the committee of which Mrs. M. C. Dobbins, is chairman, will be there to receive and pack them for shipment.

Hinchcliffe for Martine.

Former Senator John J. Hinchcliffe, the Democratic leader of Passaic county, is out for the election of James E. Martine. He is quoted as saying that if senators Silzer, Price, Cornish, Fielder and Gebhardt, all Democratis, did not vote for Mr. Martine to succeed Senator Kean, they would stuffify themselves.

W. C. T. U. Parlor Meeting.

The W. C. T. U. will hold a parlor meeting Thursday afternoon, December 15, at the home of Miss Anna Boice, on Park avenue, when Mrs. T. C. Bodine, who attended the national convention held in Baltimore, will present a report.

Howard A. Colby in Maine.

The current issue of "The American Golfer," edited by Walter J. Travis, contains an excellent picture of Howard A. Colby, of this city, "shooting" a deer in the Maine woods. The head of the deer is just discernible to the left in the middle pine tree. Mr. Colby writing to "The American Golfer," says that the deer have become so tame that he was able to pitch a golf ball over one and get a photograph at the same time.

Watchung Springs Plant.

Owing to the increased demand for their ginger ale product, the Watchung Spring Water Company is building a large addition to its plant on Mountain avenue. The addition is fifty feet wide and 100 feet deep, one story high, and will be used for storing ginger ale consignments ready for shipment.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

"The Duchess of Suds," Henrietta Crosman's new play, will be seen at the Plainfield theatre on Monday night. This is a costume play and the first Miss Crosman has been seen in since "Sweet Kitty Bellairs" and "The Sword of the King." It has not been so long since her memorable engagements here in these captivating plays. Miss Crosman comes back in her former style of play. "The Duchess of Suds" is said to be the best play Miss Crosman has ever had. It is by Miriam Michaelson, the author of "In the Bishop's Carriage," and gives Miss Crosman the opportunity she has been longing for for many years. The character Miss Crosman plays is that of a big-hearted woman who is what might be called a "rough diamond." She was, before the play opens, a washerwoman. King Charles of Spain saw her first at her washtub and fell in love with her. By him she had a child, and he brought her to the court. The play opens after Charles' death, with King Philip on the throne. Barbara is, in a way, demi-royal, and Philip has his hands full keeping her out of mischief. She shocks everybody and takes pleasure in doing it. "The Duchess of Suds" is a play of great strength and many laughs. Miss Crosman has the kind of party she revels in and should keep her audience in shouts of laughter. The company is a large one, and includes many well-known names. Orrin Johnson is the leading man. Others in the cast are Sheridan Block, Stephen Wright, Herbert Percy, Effingham Pinto, Alexander Calvert and Alice Baxter. In all, there are about twenty-five speaking parts.

A romantic Irish drama by T. B. Sayre in which the singing comedian, Fiske O'Hara, is starring, called "The Wearing of the Green," comes to the Plainfield theatre, Saturday, December 10th, for two performances matinee and night. The story of the play carries one back to the time in Ireland when it was high treason to sing "Wearing of the Green," and the scene is laid shortly after the execution of Robert Emmett, the patriot. At that time Dublin had a popular singer called O'Reagan. He quarrelled with the manager of a music hall and refused to appear. In the meantime the manager had heard a young man sing by the name of Phil Fitzgerald and called upon him to fill the vacancy. At first the audience refused to hear him, but he finally triumphs. He also wins the girl of his choice. It is a patriotic story of romance with lots of heart interest, and the part is well suited to Mr. O'Hara.

NETHERWOOD CHURCH SOCIETY HAS A FAIR.

The Netherwood Reformed church Ladies' Aid Society held a bazaar in the church rooms last night. It was well attended and the results were highly satisfactory.

Mrs. George Myrtle was chairman of the committee in charge and the attractions were presided over as follows: Candy booth, Miss Dora Wood; fancy table, Mrs. Philip Wood; grocery department, Mrs. George Staats; Christmas tree, bearing presents, Mrs. Martin Hansen; ice cream, Mrs. Carl Hansen. A committee composed of the Misses Ruth Wallack, Helen Carson and Maude Berry assisted in serving the ice cream.

Want Road Macadamized.

A petition was received at the meeting of the Middlesex County Board of Freeholders yesterday, signed by twenty-three residents of Piscataway township asking for the macadamizing of the road from South Plainfield to Rahway, which is the most direct line between Plainfield and Rahway. Both these cities are in Union county, but most of the road is in Middlesex county.

Judges J. B. Dill Dead.

James Brooks Dill, until two weeks ago a judge in the Court of Errors and Appeals of New Jersey, died this morning at his home in East Orange, of pneumonia. He was an authority on corporation law and had published several works on that subject. He was formerly in partnership with former Governor John W. Griggs.

May Have Been Tired.

Two knights of the galley, otherwise printers, spent the night in the Dunellen lockup on Monday at the invitation of Marshal Benson. They were under the influence of liquor and had tried to force their way into the office of the "Call" in that borough. They were discharged with a reprimand by Recorder Campbell.

FAT FOLKS FAVOR

Home Mixture That Takes Off the Fat Rapidly—Causes No Wrinkles—No Stomach Ills and Requires Neither Dieting Nor Exercise.

Too much fat is both uncomfortable and dangerous, but usually fleshy people prefer to put up with its inconvenience rather than punish themselves with the tiresome exercising usually prescribed, or endanger their health by taking the so-called "cures" and patent fat "reducers."

This self-sacrifice of comfort and health to overabundant fat is entirely unnecessary, however, as Mrs. Luella Bigger tells us there is a home receipt that is far superior in every way to anything money will buy for reducing superfluous flesh. It is said this simple mixture will take the fat off of man or woman at the rate of at least a couple of pounds a week without even causing wrinkles. Moreover it does not disturb the stomach, but is a good thing for the system, clearing away pimples, and, best of all, it does not interfere with the diet. You can use it and at the same time eat whatever you like. This receipt is as follows: One-half ounce Marmola; one-half ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and three one-half ounces of Peppermint Water. Get these ingredients at any drug store, mix them toegther at home and take one teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

Mrs. Bigger, as is well known, is a famous beauty expert, and whatever she recommends is sure to be found eminently satisfactory.

Miss Ruth Harris, soprano soloist at the First Baptist church, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith, of Grove street, has returned to her home in New York.

THEIR ODD LOVE STORY

Romantic Couple Spurning the Conventionalities Makes Abode in Cave.

LOCAL TINGE TO ROMANCE.

Lavere, Who Wooed Beatrice, Formerly Dwelt in Dunellen and His Bride Was Well Known in That Hamlet.

That cupid is no respecter of persons has been demonstrated again and again and cannot be denied. It has just been proven in the case of a couple of children, who fearing that their love dreams would be interrupted by unwilling parents hied them away to the bosky dells of the Catskills and in a cave, far removed from the turmoil of sordid life, sought the calm and peace of uninterrupted bliss, with boiled beans and coffee on the side. That is the story of Lavere Tallman and Beatrice Sanders which culminated yesterday afternoon in a conventional wedding ceremony at the home of the groom's parents in Newark.

No one knows just what volume of the classics found the basis for the sudden resolve of the children to elope, but it has been hinted that the story of Paul and Virginia had a lot to do with it. But be that as it may, the diary kept by the young folks in their retreat showed that their immolation was not without its recompenses and that commonplace things afraid that no license clerk would cepting, of course, their naturally good appetites. After a practically two days' fast they sat down to a sumptuous repast in the office of the chief of police at Yonkers yesterday and ate steadily for an hour.

Young Tallman and his bride had long been sweethearts and because of their youthful appearance were son, of Clinton, his sister, and Mrs. issue the document that would permit them to marry, so they eloped. Neither is over seventeen years old, but they are now married. This was insisted upon by Judge Mathew Ellis, of Yonkers, before whom the children were arraigned yesterday. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Lyman Whitney Allen, pastor of the South Park Presbyterian church, Newark.

The Saunders family is well-known in this city through a three years residence at Dunellen, removing from there to Newark last winter. They lived in the Titsworth house at Prospect avenue and Walnut street, and attracted attention almost from the start by he large number of cats they brought to the premises. There were sometimes as many as thirty of them to be seen at once.

The father was at first a real estate broker and later secured a position as a travelling chocolate salesman. Miss Beatrice was as well acquainted in Plainfield as she was in Dunellen, for she spent much of her time outside of school hours with local friends.

WEST END TABERNACLE WINS ENDEAVOR BANNER

The Christian Endeavor Society of the West End Tabernacle, recently organized, carried off the honors at the Endeavor mass meeting of the Plainfield Union, held at the Seventh-Day Baptist church, when the attendance banner was awarded to it for having the largest percentage of members present. The society had its full membership, eighteen, at the meeting, giving it one hundred per cent. This is the first instance of the kind in the history of the union.

The Hope chapel was second and the Temple Baptist church society, which held the banner last year, was third. After the roll call of societies by Alexander Galloway, secretary, the banner was awarded by Frank Stewart, the president of the local union.

The service was in charge of Jesse Burdick and the singing was led by the Rev. H. N. Jordan, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church. A Christian Endeavor male quartet comprised of E. D. Young, Dr. O. B. Whitford, Roy Titsworth and Willaim Smith rendered several selections and Miss Jessie Utter presided at the piano. The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Edwin Shaw, of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, of this city and Rev. J. W. Musson, of the Temple Baptist church, pronounced the benediction.

Rev. Dr. J. F. Morgan, of Jersey City, was the speaker of the evening, taking for his subject: "Bible Study; Its Place and Importance in the Christian Endeavor Life." He said in part:

"The Bible is the most widely circulated book in the world, being translated into over five hundred languages. If its principles were adopted in every day life there would be a complete revolution in social conditions. Factional quarrels would be unknown and there would be no necessity for prisons or asylums or alms houses.

"Christian Endeavorers should study the Bible and become familiar with its precepts in order to meet the criticisms of the day and to find the message of salvation through Jesus Christ which runs like a golden thread through the entire book from Genesis to Revelations."

The local Endeavorers are planning to have William Shaw, general secretary of the United Society of Boston, address the mass meeting to be held in January.

This Company is prepared to serve the business interests of this community in every possible way and to the end that this service may be extended it offers its facilities to any individual, firm or corporation seeking additional banking arrangements or who may be considering a change in those already existing. The "Beaver"---The Range with a Reputation

It takes only a moment to change the fire-box and reverse the grates of a "Beaver" range to burn wood instead of hard or soft coal. Burn whichever fuel is handiest at the time, and you'll burn 25 per cent. less of it than with old-fashioned ranges because of the heavy tight castings and scientific design. It will pay you to sell your old stove for junk and begin to save money with a "Beaver." We know from experience that this range will bake perfectly and save fuel. They've been tested in every possible way. These famous ranges are going like wildfire. The attractively low prices are bringing hundreds of buyers to the big easy terms store.

EVENING CLOAKS.

Fur and Satin Take Conspicuous Place In Their Makeup.

Designs For This Winter, With Caps to Match, Are of Surpassing Grace and Luxuriousness.

Surely the top notch of elegance and extravagance in evening cloaks has been reached this year. Novelties may still come, but anything more becoming, more lovely than some of the wraps of this season would be difficult to imagine.

The fur wraps are of course in a class by themselves. Some of the new models in ermine—the loose, flowing capes, for example—are marvels of grace and luxury, but even with these the less costly fur trimmed confections of satin, velvet, etc., compare favorably, and they are certain to delight any woman who judges of the beauty of color and sheen and flowing lines rather than of the value alone.

At first it seems as though these garments might have been cut at random—as though the loose, flowing lines had just happened without any design on the part of their creators. Study them more closely, however, and you will find the art that lies beneath these careless lines, these great revers and collars, these enormous sleeves. The unskilled could never approach such effects as are obtained by these free and easy lines.

Black satin is the material par excellence in the season's evening wrap.

As a relief from this, however, other silks are generally used in the huge revers which give distinction to the coats. For instance, the coat in our drawing shows a wrap of black satin having enormous revers of brocade threaded with gold. The wrap is trimmed with bands of fur. At the side the garment is fastened with a large jeweled button.

Trimmings of white are also used on some stunning models shown in the shops. They must be used sparingly, however, and the best effects are obtained by a mere suggestion of contrast in tiny ornaments or by touches on collar or revers.

Among the furs used in the trimming of these coats skunk is exceptionally good. Its shaggy pelt is effective where a finer skin, its luster outshone by the satin, would fail to give the proper contrast. This fur forms the collar and the cuffs and is often banded around the bottom of the coat. An effective use of this fur is shown in the dull red satin coat of the large drawing, a model from a famous French maker. This has all its edges bordered with bands of skunk. The coat fastens across the front with a large gold button. Just below the waist there is a broad belt which is embroidered in soutache of the same tone.

Here, as in other garments, a fetish has been made of the button, and some of the buttons on the evening coats attain the dignity of cabochons. Gold buttons are extensively used, and a gold braiding, or an interweaving of gold thread through Persian silks, which makes very effective trimming for coats of black or some other of the somber toned satins.

Braid also supplements buttons and fur in the ornamentation of the evening wrap. It forms entire panels down the side; it is extended to the giant fastenings; it is twisted into more and more elaborate designs, and to bring out its beauty often the design is pricked with touches of gold.

A novelty in the way of a cap is designed to go with these picturesque evening coats and is a fitting associate. In beauty of design, in gay trimmings and in quaint effects nothing for evening wear has yet appeared that surpasses the new headdresses.

Take, for instance, the cap illustrated in our drawing for wear with the black silk coat. The cap is of brocaded stuff to match the revers. There are gold threads interwoven, and the cap is edged by a braid of gold. A fold turns back from the face over a full gathered crown. At the sides there are two gold tasseis. This cap may be worn to the theater and may be kept on the head during the entire evening.

There are other little caps of true Dutch genre, which, with their coquettish frills of lace, their bold braiding and their rosettes, might have been worn by some maid from the land of dikes. These as well as other little caps of eighteenth century design are meant for wear under the great black velvets and other handsome evening hats.

Mary Dean

DEMOCRATIC PEERS.

The House of Peers Not One of Birth or Ancestry—Queen Elizabeth's Grandmother Was a Barmaid.

Strangely enough, the house of lords still remains the most democratic institution in England. It may still claim for itself to be the Witenagemot, or gathering of wise men, and one wonders why it does not defend itself along those lines.

It is not a house of birth or ancestry, for it is composed today to an overwhelming extent of successful men from almost every walk of life. No one cares a fig what a man's ancestry was in this matter of fact land if he succeeds, if he becomes rich and powerful.

The mother of the great Queen Elizabeth was the daughter of a plain English gentleman.

A pot girl of Westminster married the master of the pothouse. After his death she consulted a lawyer named Hyde. Mr. Hyde married her. Mr. Hyde afterward became lord chancellor, with the title of Lord Clarendon, and his wife, the former pot girl, bore him a daughter. This daughter married the Duke of York and became the mother of Mary and Anne Stewart, both afterward queens of England.

It is evident that if queens of England may have a barmaid for grandmother lesser mortals need not fret on the subject of ancestry.

The Englishman would not be what he is nor would he in the least be transmitting his very valuable Saxon heritage if he gave up his democratic custom of an aristocracy of power for the feeble continental custom of an aristocracy of birth. What the one and the other is today answers the question as to the relative merits of the two systems without need of discussion. The English, though nowadays many of them do not know it themselves, are the most democratic of all nations.

William the Conqueror divided England among the commanders of his army and conferred about twenty earldoms. Not one of these exists today, nor do any of the honors conferred by William Rufus, 1087-1100; Henry I., 1100-1135; Stephen, 1135-1154; Henry II., 1154-1189; Richard I., 1189-1199; or John, 1199-1216.

PRISONERS OF WAR.

Friendly Foes That Changed Places as Guests and Hosts.

A cheerful incident of the war between the states is told in "Mission Ridge and Lookout Mountain." The Third Ohio, under Streight's command, was en route for Richmond, prisoners of war.

One night they camped, worn, famished, with hearts heavy and homesick, near the place where a Confederate regiment, the Fifty-fourth Virginia, was stationed. Many of the southerners strolled over to the prison camp to see the sorry show of the poor, supperless Yankees.

They did not stay long. Back to their own camp they hurried and soon returned with kettles of coffee, corn bread, bacon—the best they had and all they had. Presently little fires began to twinkle in the prison camp, and the aroma of coffee rose like a fragrant cloud of thank offering. Union guests and Confederate hosts mingled. The next morning the prisoners departed.

Now comes a happy sequel which well balances the affair. Later, when the prisoners were exchanged, the Third Ohio was encamped near Kelly's ferry, on the banks of the Tennessee. On the day of the storming of Missionary ridge among the prisoners taken were numbered the Fifty-fourth Virginia.

Some of the Third Ohio were on duty at the ferry when the prison detachments arrived.

"What regiment is that?" they asked.

When told they started on the run, shouting as they went:

"The Fifty-fourth Virginia's at the ferry!"

They dashed into their camp with the news. The place was astir instantly. Treasures of coffee, bacon, sugar, beef, preserved peaches—everything was turned out and carried double quick to the ferry. The circumstances were the same, with the difference that guests and hosts had changed places.

Getting a Line on Prospects.

"Sir, I have a very personal business proposition to make to you, but before approaching that would you care to make a statement of your financial condition?"

"Certainly. I have been established in this business for more than twenty-five years, my yearly income is well into the hundreds of thousands and constantly increasing; I have unlimited credit and also have real estate valued at a couple of millions. Go ahead!"

"That is quite satisfactory. Now, may I ask for the hand of your daughter?"—New York Herald.

His Mean Way.

"Henry asked you if you had made that cake, did he? Well, what was there in that to wound your feelings, child?"

"It was the—the way he said it, mamma. He—he didn't ask m-me, if I'd made it. He—he said, 'Darling, d-did you perpetrate this cake?'"—Chicago Tribune.

And Went.

"When I leave you tonight"— began Mr. Stoplate.

"Goodness!" interrupted Miss Tersleep. "Are you coming again tonight?"

He glanced at the clock and apprehended her meaning.—Exchange.

There is always reason in the man for his good or bad fortune.—Emerson

The Riverman

By STEWART EDWARD WHITE

Copyright, 1908, by the McClure Company Copyright, 1907, 1908, by Stewart Edward White

Marsh had chosen his moment with exactitude. He had taken advantage of the brief lull of jumbled seas after the "three largest waves" had swept by. Yet in shallow water and with the strong inshore set, even that lull was all too short. The Sprite was staggered by the breakers; her speed was checked; her stern was dragged around. She tore herself from the grasp of the current. Enveloped in a blinding hail of spray, she struggled desperately to extricate herself before the resumption of the larger seas should roll her over to destruction. Already these larger seas were racing in from the open.

Far out in the lake against the tumbling horizon Carroll saw heave up for a second the shoulder of a mighty wave. And instinctively she perceived this wave as a deadly enemy of the little tug and saw it bending all its great energies to hurrying in on time to catch the victim before it could escape. Her whole being was concentrated in a continually shifting calculation of the respective distances between the tug and the piers, the tug and the relentlessly advancing wave.

"Oh, go!" she exhorted the Sprite under her breath.

Huge and towering, the wave came on now calmly and deliberately. The Sprite was off the end of the pier when the wave lifted her, just in the position her enemy would have selected to crush her life out against the cribs. Slowly the tug rose against its shoulder, was lifted onward, poised, and then with a swift forward thrust the wave broke, smothering the pier and lighthouse beneath tons of water.

A low, agonized wail broke from the crowd. And then—and then—over beyond the pier they saw gliding a battered black stack from which still poured defiantly clouds of gray smoke.

The Sprite was safe.

"I wonder if she got the line aboard," speculated the tugboat captain at last.

The crowd surged over to the piers again. Below them rose and fell the Sprite. All the fancy scrollwork of her upper works, the cornice of her deck house, the light rigging of her cabin, had disappeared. The tall smokestack was bent awry.

At sight of Marsh the crowd set up a yell. He paid no attention. One of the life saving men tossed a mooring line ashore. It was seized by a dozen men. Then for the first time somebody noticed that, although the tug had come to a standstill, her screw was still turning slowly over and over, holding her against the erratic strong jerk-ing of a slender rope that ran through her stern chocks and into the water.

"She'll collide!" some one shrieked.

"He got it aboard!" yelled the man, pointing.

Another cheer broke out.

The life saving crew took charge. It was necessary to pass the line around the end of the pier and back to the beach. This was a dangerous job and one requiring considerable power and ingenuity, for the strain on the line imposed by the waters was terrific, and the breaking seas rendered work on the piers extremely hazardous.

A number of the curious lingered about the Sprite. Marsh and Orde were in consultation over the smashed stern. Harvey leaned out his little square door.

"No," he answered a query. "I wasn't what you all would call scairt—that is, not really scairt—jess a little ne'vous. All I had to do was to feed her slabs and listen foh my bell. You see, Cap'n Ma'sh, he was in cha'ge."

"No, sir," Captain Marsh was saying emphatically to his employer. "I can't figure it out except on one thing. You see, it's stove from underneath. A sea would have smashed it from above. That last sea must 've lifted us bodily right over the corner of the pier."

"Well, maybe," assented Orde doubtfully.

"Sure thing," repeated Marsh, with conviction.

"Well, you'd better not tell 'em so unless you want to rank in with old man Ananias," ended Orde.

The wild and picturesque work of rescue was under way. The line had been successfully brought to the left of the lighthouse. To it had been attached the rope and to that the heavy cable. These the crew of the schooner had dragged out and made fast to a mast. The shore end passed over a tall scissors. When the cable was tightened the breeches buoy was put into commission, and before long the first member of the crew was hauled ashore, plunging in and out of the waves as the rope tightened or slackened. He was a flaxen haired Norwegian. The crew and its volunteers worked quickly. Carroll and Mina stayed until dusk and after, watching the long heavy labor of rescue. The women making the hot coffee found their services becoming valuable. Big fires of driftwood were ignited. They were useful for light as well as warmth.

Orde discovered the two girls and drew Carroll one side.

"You'd better go home now, sweetheart," said he. "Bobby 'll be waiting for you."

"I suppose so," she assented. "But hasn't it been exciting? Whose vessels were they, do you know?"

Orde glanced at her strangely.

"They were ours," said he.

OBEDIENT SOLDIERS.

An Illustration of Military Discipline In Germany.

A JOKE TAKEN IN EARNEST.

The Story an Englishman Tells of an Amusing Incident In Which He Participated During a Visit to the Battlefield of Worth.

The docility and blind obedience of the German soldier have long been an object of comment. The Germans themselves recognize that it sometimes goes so far as to be absurd. An Englishman, writing in the London Times, describes an amusing incident which occurred after he had spent a day tramping about the battlefield of Worth. He was dressed, it should be noted, in regular civilian clothes and carried an umbrella:

Emerging from a wood, I came upon a plot of grass where about a dozen German soldiers were resting. The spirit moved me to stop and speak to these men—emphasizing my meaning by signs when my scant German vocabulary failed me.

I asked, "Are you Prussians?" The indignant answer, in chorus, was: "No! Saxons!"

"Oh," said I, wishing to conciliate, "I am Anglo-Saxon."

Much to my astonishment, one of them got up and shook me warmly by the hand. Pointing to my dusty boots and flannel shirt, unbuttoned at the neck, I then, in vile German, explained to my friends of five minutes' standing that I had made the grand tour of the battlefield on foot and had been walking since 9 o'clock in the morning, it then being 5 in the afternoon.

Quite casually I remarked that although "not a military, but a naval officer," the study of battlefields interested me.

At the mention of the word "officer" all the men sat up, buttoned their tunics and buckled on their swords or bayonets—I forget which.

"Are you going to Niederbronn?" was my next question.

"Yes," they replied; "we are going to walk to Niederbronn and there take the train to Bitsch."

What evil genius prompted me to make the next remark I cannot tell, but although uttered in joke its consequences were perfectly astounding.

"I, too, am going to Niederbronn. You are my regiment. I am your colonel!"

Up they sprang to their feet, fell in two deep and kept quite silent as if on parade. "Right turn!" and off we marched, I carrying my umbrella as if it were a sword.

Breasting a grassy slope, we marched up to the top at a swinging pace, still observing perfect silence and in step. A short distance off was a solitary soldier of the same regiment lying at full length on a bench near the entrance to a wood—tunic unbuttoned, sword unbuckled, and so forth.

On catching sight of the approaching squad up he jumped, buttoned his tunic, buckled on his weapon, stood rigidly at attention and when the "regiment" came by "tailed on" as if it was the most natural thing in the world to do.

Please note that not a word passed between the main body and the reenforcement. On entering the wood the leading file began to sing a marching song, the others joining in chorus.

By this time we were nearing Niederbronn and passed a man and his wife, who were evidently much astonished to see a disciplined body of men marching in strict military fashion under the command of a foreigner armed with an umbrella—not even a silk one!

A disconcerting thought arose. "What will happen if we chance across a German officer, and how, in my broken German, can I ever hope to explain this extraordinary assumption of command of the forces of the kaiser?" So without a moment's further delay I said to the men, "I must go to my hotel, which is over there," and bade them goodby.

These docile and amiable Saxons with one accord, taking time by the leading file, saluted, and I, having returned their salute, got out of sight as rapidly as possible. On peeping round the corner of a house there was my late "regiment" still marching with the regularity of clockwork.

Lincoln on Proof.

I suggest to him (Judge Douglas) that it will not avail him at all that he swells himself up, takes on dignity and calls people liars. * * * If you have ever studied geometry you remember that by a course of reasoning Euclid proves that all the angles in a triangle are equal to two right angles. Euclid has shown you how to work it out. Now, if you undertake to disprove that proposition and to show that it is erroneous would you prove it to be false by calling Euclid a liar?

He Understood.

"Now, Johnny, do you understand thoroughly why I am going to whip you?"

"Yes'm. You're in a bad humor this morning, and you've got to lick some one before you feel satisfied."—London Tit-Bits.

WHAT BOYS SHOULD READ

Subject of Rev. Mr. Mathiews' Lecture to Mothers Yesterday at Y. M. C. A.

BOYS LIVE WITH THEIR HEROES

Books Give Chance to Parents to Meet Their Sons on Common Level—Good Influence the Result.

The lecture before mothers of boys in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, yesterday afternoon, took the form of an extensive exhibit of books with explanations as to their moral worth in the training for boys and children.

Mr. Mathiews told very clearly in his introduction how the child loves the fairy story and how it grows in taste and desire from this world of fancy to the higher realms of imagination, its cultivated tastes and desires finding satisfaction in books of adventure and exploration.

Through the efforts and kindness of Miss Bowman, the librarian at the Plainfield Public Library, some lists were prepared, the different divisions were discussed separately with relation to the changing and growing tastes of the boy. The speaker said that there was something wrong with the boy who did not love such stories as "Huckleberry Finn," "Story of a Bad Boy," "Kidnapped," etc. In this connection he showed the new poster of the Green Cat, which is a horrid looking thing in the eyes of most mothers but to the boy it acts as a real charm. It is humorous and the humor, while blunt and very plain, is nevertheless true. This type of poster, like many of these books of fiction, is a simple and powerful basis on which mother and adults can work. It is a place of common meeting. It is a chance to meet the lad on his own level and from here influence him for the good that we have in mind for him.

Special mention was made of the "Cousin" series of books. Through such reading they are put into touch with the boys of other countries and they become acquainted with the customs and conditions in other countries. In this way they take unto themselves chums that they have never seen, only met in their imagination. Here is a start for that broad cosmopolitan spirit which relates him and puts him in touch with the entire universe.

In the books that deal with out-of-door life the lad is encouraged to act the hunter, the scout, the fighter. His first books of humor work out into play life. After he tires of his books of fancy he reaches out for fact and then he becomes wrapped up in travel, exploration and history. The books on electricity and handicraft start him onward and forward in his manual training. All over the country today lads are working on wireless outfits.

The boys live with their heroes and they imitate them. It is the parents' opportunity to become acquainted with many of their heroes through the boy's books. The speaker told of a personal experience with a lad of his acquaintance. This boy declared himself one day to be in line for the pugilistic calling and the very next morning he neglected to take his morning wash because the water was cold. The father then told him that to be a fighter was all right but that a fighter must have first of all self-control. He could not forget himself and speak hastily or unkindly to his mother for a fighter must learn to take his medicine and to take many cold boths to get himself into condition.

The suggestion of the father worked like a charm. It would seem out of place for the mother to do the same thing because her sweet and tender nature unfits her to take this approach to the boy. She must keep in mind, however, that she is dealing with the rough material of manhood and that from what she h before her she must refine and work out the good. The good can come too soon. Ruskin said: "To make a man of a boy too early is to make a small man."

Discuss Life of George Fox.

The Young Friends' Association met last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Williams, of Darrow avenue, and enjoyed interesting papers presented by W. D. Williams and Miss Margaret F. Vail, on the life of George Fox, the founder of the society. The papers treated of the religious life of Mr. Fox, and also contained extracts from his famous sermons. An informal discussion followed.

First Skating This Season.

The first skating of the winter season was enjoyed this morning by boys on Tier's pond. Near the bank the ice was of sufficient strength to bear up the weight of a number of youngsters.

FREE LECTURE COURSE FOR ADULT RESIDENTS

The Board of Education, in its desire to serve the public in the broadest possible ways, is about to make a trial method of education for adults, by means of lectures, that has proven so popular in the larger cities. It will test the matter tentatively by offering two lectures in the auditorium of the new Washington school on Darrow avenue.

If it appears that there is a real demand for such lectures, more will be proviede by the Board later in the year. The aim of the Board is to furnish something that will be attractive and entertaining an at the same time will have real informational value. The first two lectures are "The Grand Canyon of the Colorado," Thursday night, December 8, and "Historic Castles of England," by George N. Cross, Thursday night January 5. Both lectures are illustrated by many beautiful steropticon views and are given by men with whom that work is a profession.

While they are given in the Washington school, because of the attractice auditorium on the ground floor in that school, they are free to any one from any part of the city. Children will not be admited, in order that full opportunity may be given adults.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD'S JUSTICE NOT GUILTY

The jury which heard Justice of the Peace William E. Smith plead his own case in court yesterday at New Brunswick, returned with a verdict that he was not guilty and the country squire left the court room triumphant, and South Plainfield hereafter will have more respect for his legal knowledge.

The justice is well along in years, with iron gray hair and snowy white beard. He had perfect self control during the trial, in spite of the fact that he acted an his own counsel and had difficulty in hearing the witnesses, owing to a deafness. But he had a definite idea in his head, an idea that he was being wronged and he succeeded in carrying that idea to the jury without any unnecessary legal frills. There were no sharp debates between counsel as to the admission of the testimony. No legal battles of any kind. Both sides seemed intent in getting at the truth of the charges that Smith had extorted $5 from William Locke, of Plainfield, the jury seemed to appreciate the efforts.

William Locke, the Plainfield mechanical engineer, had been most determined on the witness stand and he showed the jury that he was a fighter from way back.

After having told how his five children had been taken to the justice's office for trespassing the Zeller cabbage patch and how the justice offered to settle the case for $5, he said to the jury:

"The justice told me I was foolish in not paying the fine that he would try the children separately and that the costs and fines he would impose would amount to $35 or so. I told him to fine me $35.00 or $40.00, if he wanted to, that I had an appeal and that I wouldn't pay him a cent."

It was on this statement that showed the jury that Locke was a fighter of the old school ready to spend a good many dollars to protect what he believed to be his rights.

In contrast to this spirit appeared the justice, meek and mild, telling how he had counseled Locke, as a father, not as a justice, how he had felt sorry for the plight of the children and had endeavored to show the father how to appease the wrath of the Zellers in the best way.

UNITY CIRCLE SUCCESS

King's Daughters' Christmas Sale Well Attended and Patronized.

BACHELOR'S REVERIE GIVEN.

Porto Rican Embroidery and Drawn Work Attracts Attention—Charming Entertainment Enjoyed.

The parish house of Grace P. E. church was a scene of great activity yesterday afternoon when under the auspices of Unity Circle, King's Daughters, a Christmas sale was held and incidentally there was presented "A Bachelor's Reverie," to a crowded house. The rooms were handsomely decorated for this occasion and the affair was eminently successful from every viewpoint, over $100 being realized from the sale of the various fancy articles and good things to eat which were exposed for sale on prettily arranged tables.

A Christmas tree and a grab bag added to the pleasure of those present as they produced the sentiment and the uncertainty of Christmas time without the necessity of one's hanging up one's hose awaiting Santa's visit through a grimy chimney. Everybody enjoyed the good cheer and heartily supported the splendid work of the Circle.

The reverie was splendidly done by the young womin of the Circle who took the following characters: Little girl with doll, Miss Kathryn Herman; school-girl, Miss Monica Sharrott; "Sweet Sixteen," Miss Gertrude Bowlby; tennis girl, Miss Barbara Fleming; coquette, Miss Margaret Henderson; the winter girl, Miss Marguerite Bowlby; huntress, Miss G. Wharton; society girl, Miss Frances Zelie; the suffragette, Miss Elizabeth McGee; chorus girl, Miss Jeane Saunders; the summer girl, Miss Sylvia Curtis; a widow, Miss Marion Snyder. The bachelor, who saw all these reminders pass before his mental vision was Ogden Rogers.

On a table in charge of Miss Isabella C. Davis were exhibited some exquisite examples of Porto Rican embroidery and drawn work which attracted wide attention. Those in charge of the different boths were: Ice Cream, Miss Marguerite Ramsey, chairman, Misses Jean Wharton, Vera Jeffry and Sylvia Curtis. Lemonade, Misses Eleanor De Graff and Audrey Gernon. Candy, Miss Barbara Fleming, chairman, Misses Jean Wharton, Alice Smith and Alice Rowland. Entertainment, Miss Gertrude Bowlby, chairman; Misses Margaret Henderson, Sylvia Curtis, Elizabeth McGee and Jean Saunders.

The fancy table was in charge of Miss Marguerite Bowlby, assisted by Misses Marion Marsh and Marion Rocap. Those who sold cake were: Misses Audrey Gernon, Marion Marsh, Frances Zelie and Helen Harrington. The grab bag was in charge of Miss Naomi Markley.

Fined for Shoplifting.

For stealing an electric railway outfit from A. E. Force & Co. last week John and Amanda Sweeney, son and daughter of John Sweeney, of Richmond street, were fined $5.00 each by City Judge William N. Runyon this morning. The fines were paid by the parents of the couple. John is about nine years old and Amanda probably thirteen. The family is colored.

"Duchess of Suds."

"The Duchess of Suds," Henrietta Crosman's new play that is the talk of Philadelphia, will be seen for one night at the Plainfield theatre on Monday night, Dec. 5, 1910. This is a costume play and the first one Miss Crosman has been seen in since "Sweet Kitty Bellairs' and "The Sword of the King." Effingham Pinto is in the cast.

Prof. H. C. Krebs, of the North Plainfield Public Schools, delivered an interesting address on "General Grant," before the Men's Association of Warren chapel, last night. After the talk, refreshments were served by a committee from the association.

PEPPARD'S OPERATIONS CONTINUE TO GROW

What probably was one of John L. Peppard's criminal operations came to light this morning when Chief of Police Kiely received a telegram from Chief Saper, of Walton, N. Y., describing the man who masqueraded as McDonald alias Davis and who was taken to New Haven by detectives yesterday. Chief Saper says that a man answering Peppard's description passed a check for $1,000 on a merchant of Walton paying for two coats valued at $65 and receiving the change $935 in cash. This check was drawn on the Marine Bank of Buffalo and was certified by a forged name.

The Pinkerton agency and the Bankers' Protective Association are on the trail of several transactions of Peppard's and it is believed that eventually he will be wanted in more than a dozen cities in the country. The name he used on the check passed in Walton was "Howard E. Sanford," and apparently pulled the wool over the merchant's eyes with but very little trouble.

CAPTAIN HUMPHREY CAPTURES OUTLAWS

According to a cable despatch received from Zamboanga in the Philippies, there is reported the capture of four of the outlaws who a month ago massacred some American planters at Davao Gulf in Mindanao. Three outlaws were killed in the fight in which these were captured, and according to the cable, the capture was made by Captain Chauncey B. Humphrey, of the Twenty-second Infantry, who is a son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Waring, of Park avenue, and who is well-known here.

Captain Humphrey is a graduate of West Point and was captain of the football team in 1896 and 1897 and has distinguished himself by his fighting qualities on several occasions. One of these was in December, 1908, when he was on a train in Colorado. With the assistance of a negro he knocked out four prize fighters, a trainer and a rubber and held at bay fifty other men.

The party had just come from a prize fight and had made remarks about some women in the car. As a result of the fight Captain Humphrey was badly disfigured and both of his hands were broken. He was in the hospital for several weeks.

WOMEN'S BIBLE CLASS HOLDS ENTERTAINMENT

The Women's Bible class of Hope chapel conducted a social in the Sunday school rooms last night, that served a two-fold purpose. It was originally arranged as one of the series being held to make old and new members better acquainted and it developed later that the teacher, G. Stuart Simons, has just completed his tenth year in that capacity. It was accordingly made an anniversary affair as well. The attendance numbered seventy-five in all.

During the evening the gathering enjoyed social games and a program with the following members: Piano selections, Miss Bertha Jones; vocal duets, the Misses Edna and Eunice Eckert; readings, George Leighs; Scotch ballads, Thomas Hendry; addresses by F. H. Andrews and Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie. At the close, G. Herbert Condict, in behalf of the class, presented Mr. Simons with a handsome mission rocker for himself and a jardiniere and fern for Mrs. Simons, the latter not being present. Mr. Simons responded with a few apt remarks. In conclusion refreshments of coffee, cake and ice cream were served.

The committee in charge of the affair was composed of Mrs. William S. Terry, Mrs. Aaron Snyder, Mrs. Ferdinand Duncklan and Mrs. Geo. Leighs.

SCHUMAN-HEINK RECITAL

Society Crowds the Plainfield Theatre to Hear Great Contralto.

FINE BUT SHORT PROGRAM.

Criticism for Hurry of Singer—May Be Applause Was Not Sustained Long Enough to Suit Her.

Seldom has the Plainfield theatre held such an audience as that which completely filled the house last night Society was there which was a guarantee that something out of the ordinary was to happen or was happening. Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink, one of the most noted contralto singers of the times and the biggest public favorite who has ever sung a lullaby in German was there to further impress her great personality upon us.

Nothing can be said further than has already been said of this wonderful woman and her magnificent art. It has all been written. But the fact that it was this singer's first appearance in Plainfield must go on record and the impression created on some of those who had never heard her must be told.

At the conclusion of the first number, an aria from Sapho, Madame Schumann-Heink got an ovation. The deep notes of her lower register gave one the impression that it was not a woman who was singing, but a robust tenor and caused one woman in the balcony to exclaim audibly "hasn't she a remarkable voice?" If the woman had not been utterly sincere the remark would have caused the people in the immediate vicinity to laugh. Another woman of mature years was moved to tears during the rendition of Salter's "Cry of Rachel," and reasonably, too. This was probably the most impressive selection of the evening.

A repetition of the lullaby by Herrman was demanded and given. The translation of this funny little composition robs it of its real German savor, but what was not understood by the German text was supplied in the singer's expression ond brought salvos of applause. The concluding number on the program, Harold's "A Child's Prayer," was sung as only Madame Schumann-Heink can sing it. Inimitably, she captured her audience and graciously responded to an encore. Mrs. Katherine Hoffman was the accompanist and performed admirably.

Much adverse comment was caused by the apparent hurry in the contributions of the singer. It appeared to some that notwithstanding the promises held out that there would be no curtailment of the numbers there was a speed developed that was unnecessary and contrary to the rightful expectations of the audience. It seemed, though, that the applause at times was rather perfunctory than enthusiastic and might account in some measure for Madame's brevity.

The Musical Club is to be congratulated upon having made a success of their venture and thanked for having given Plainfielders the opportunity of hearing the great artist.

MUST PAY FOR SUSIE'S BROKEN WINDOW PANES

Susie Orlach will get her window panes restored and the shutters mended without further delay. Susie has suffered much at the hands of a lot of boys who live in her neighborhood. They seem to take delight in pestering and annoying her and last week they carried their mischief to the danger point. Handy stones carefully aimed and hurled at her little home soon shivered the glass in the windows and then Susie rebelled. She could stand the noise and the uptipping of her bundles of wood and the scattering of her piles of coal, but she could not bear sleeping in rooms rendered cold by the paneless windows, so she complained of the boys at police headquarters and four of the eight she named as her persecutors were araigned before Judge William N. Runyon this morning.

The four who did not present themselvs before the court will have to pay the damages while the others go scot free. $2.50 will be collected from the two boys by the name of Patterson and one Hamel and another, Shubert. If they had come to court this morning the proportion for each boy to pay would have been smaller. The quartet that did show up received a lecture and promised not to offend again.

TEA AND SALE HELD FOR VINCENT CHAPEL FUND

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Society of the First M. E. church, a successful tea and sale was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Henry A. The heads of the various tables were as follows: Fancy, Mrs. Joseph Yerkes; apron, Mrs. Nelson A. Miller; candy, Mrs. Harry Gee; cake, Mrs. Nelson Y. Hull; toilet articles, Mrs. Clifford W. McGee. Mrs. A. E. Osmun received the silver offering at the door.

During the afternoon tea was served, those in charge of the dining room, which was decorated in pink, were Mrs. J. H. Howell, Mrs. J. C. Peck, Mrs. G. H. Whitney and Mrs. Samuel Bingaman, and the young women assisting were the Misses Hope Irene Miller, Gladys Peck and Ethel Most.

The house was elaborately decorated with palms and ferns. There was a large attendance and the society is well pleased with the returns form the affair.

MR. HOOLEY CHAIRMAN

Selected to Head Committee to Investigate Borough Wire Conditions.

FOR UNDERGROUND CONDUITS.

State Trust Co. Made Depository for Funds, Building Permits—Employees to Be Paid in Advance.

The communication recently written by Edwin E. Hooley in reference to a system of public conduits and possible cheaper electric light charges for North Plainfield, as published in The Daily Press two weeks ago, was received by the Borough Council and read at the regular monthly meeting, last night. It was referred to the Public affairs committee and later chairman W. L. Smalley offered a resolution that a committee of five be appointed to investigate existing and possible conditions, to see what might be done and that Mr. Hooley be made chairman. It was carried unanimously and later Mayor Smalley named Edwin A. Boyer, Charles W. McCutchen, Meredith Dryden and William F. Williams as the other members.

In his communication, Mr. Hooley called the Council's attention to the fact that the borough streets are soon to be torn up for the installation of sewers and that the present is the time to act on a plan for public conduits. He stated that he considered the present rates of the P. S. C. for electric lighting exhorbitant and regretted that there is no competition. The light voltage carried by the overhead wires, he said, is a menace that could be overcome by placing them underground. He realized, he continues, that the cost of such an undertaking would not repay any one company unless it secured an exclusive franchise, which virtually would put the people at the mercy of the favored company. Mr. Hooley expressed the belief that the borough would soon get back the first cost of public conduits and besides would release the people from paying the present exorbitant rates of the Public Service Corporation. At the present time it is practically free from competition as the Council would hesitate to authorize the erection of a double line of unsightly poles along the sidewalk line. In conclusion Mr. Hooley offered to foot all bills incurred in carrying out the suggestions he set forth.

With Mr. Hooley as chairman, it is probable that no time will be lost in studying every phase of the matter and presenting a complete report to the borough fathers.

The remainder of the business transacted at the meeting was almost entirely of a routine nature. Charles Nichols was appointed a member of the sewage commission and the Council was authorized to secure the approvel of the State Board of Health in its plan to discharge the effluent from the proposed sewer beds into Green brook. On resolutions offered by Mr. Rogers the December pay warrants were ordered drawn before Christmas for the convenience of employes and that an auditor be secured to inspect the books of the borough collector and treasurer. On motion of Mr. Smalley the State Trust Company was designated as the depository of the borough funds.

The following building applications were granted: Thomas E. Currin, chicken house, Mountain avenue; Edgar C. Schenck, dwelling house on Westervelt avenue, 26.6 by 34 feet; G. H. Dalley, Somerset street, dwelling house, 24 by 32; George Hummer, alterations to house on Grandview avenue, known as the Weiss property.

The report of Recorder Dolliver showed that during November there had been thirteen arrests and $10 in fines collected. The tax collector reported a balance on hand of $23,199.63.

Chairman Stahl, of the Street Committee, reported that the expenses of the month had been $248 and that the year would probably be closed within the appropriation. The Plainfield Trust Company presented a communication asking that it be named a depository for a part of the borough funds. The matter was referred to the finance committee.

On motion, the Council adjourned to meet on Friday evening, December 30, to close up the year's business. At the close of the session the members met in excutive session with W. J. Buttfild, chairman of the sewage commission.

Life's Lesson.

"CIRCLE INSANITY" MAN GETS 15 YEARS.

Alfonso Viola, a wealthy retired hotel-keeper of Raritan, was sentenced by Judge Clarence E. Case, in the Somerset County Court, yesterday morning to serve fifteen years in the States prison for the abuse of three-year-old Mary Poster on September 7. An attempt was made to prove Viola insane.

Dr. Britton D. Evans, the alienist of Morris Plains Asylum, took the witness-stand last week and stated that Viola was a victim of "circle insanity" and that his mania traveled in periodical periods. Viola had enjoyed a lucid period of several weeks' duration, after his keepers had played a garden hose on him in the county jail. His condition remained normal during the week of his trial and he showed no evidence of insanity when arraigned for sentence yesterday.

Alvah A. Clark, counsel for Viola, made a motion for a new trial on the grounds that Dr. Evans was of the opinion that it would be necessary to commit Viola to an insane asylum in a short time and a serious question might then arise whether the present conviction should not be set aside.

Mr. Clark contended that Dr. Evans and three local physicians had declared Viola insane and that the verdict was against the weight of evidence and that the jury had been biased by public clamor.

The motion for a new trial was denied, and Judge Case, in passing sentence, told the prisoner that his crime was so heinous that there was no precedent or no standard by which the penalty could be fixed.

County Prosecutor Pope lashed Viola and said it was the duty of the court to place him where he would never have another opportunity to duplicate his crime. Viola was so overcome while the court was passing sentence that he sunk limp into a chair. His two daughters, aged about eighteen tnd twenty years, and his wife, who were in court, uttered a series of terrific screams when they heard the sentence pronounced and saw Viola led away to the county jail.

"Pardon me, madam, but the way that man across the aisle is staring at you must be very offensive. Do you wish me to interfere?"

FAMOUS BEECHER TRIAL WITNESS PASSES AWAY.

Announcement was made in New York yesterday of the death last Wednesday at Wakefield, Conn., of Emma C. Moulton, widow of Francis D. Moulton. The Moultons figured in the famous trial of Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, for nearly thirty years pastor of Plymouth church, Brooklyn, and who died in 1887. Mrs. Moulton at the time of her death was seventy-one years old. She testified at the Beecher trial, which began in January 11, 1875, and lasted six months. Mr. Beecher was sued for $100,000 damages by Theodore Tilton, a member of the church, which at the time was the largest Protestant congregation in the United States. Tilton made charges against Mr. Beecher which involved Mrs. Tilton.

The ground for the charges against the famous preacher, author and reformer, were based on a circumstantial confession made to Mr. Tilton by his wife in December, 1870, and which were followed by a retraction by Mrs. Tilton. The Tiltons and Mr. Beecher previous to this time were close friends. During the interim between the time of the alleged confession and the trial of Mr. Beecher, Francis D. Moulton acted the medium of communication between Tilton and Beecher.

The trial of the Beecher suit attracted the attention of the entire nation. Of the 111 witnesses, three, Mr. Tilton and Mr. and Mrs. Moulton, testified to alleged personal declarations on the part of Mr. Beecher in which he acknowledged criminal relations with Mrs. Tilton. The most startling testimony was by Mrs. Moulton, who narrated an alleged conversation with Mr. Beecher at her residence on June 2, 1873. She declared that Mr. Beecher said he was so overcome with remorse at the misery he had created that his conversation with Mrs. Moulton would probably be their last. Mr. Beecher denied the alleged conversation or that he had hinted at suicide. Mrs. Moulton said that her conversation with Mr. Beecher on the date mentioned lasted from three to four hours.

The jury in the case was out seven days and disagreed, finally standing nine for the defendant and three for the plaintiff.

SHARP DROP IN MEAT PRICES.

Omaha, Dec. 2.—Dressed meats took a big slump yesterday and reached the lowest level in five years. In some instances the drop was as much as three cents a pound and there was nothing on which the decline was less than one cent.

The retail butchers' association held a closed meeting Monday night and yesterday morning when the shops opened every association concern made the following prices: Sirloin, 10 cents; porterhouse, 12; round, 10; shoulder, 7; pot roast, 8; pork roast, 9; chops, 10; lamb chops, 10.

These prices are for the highest grade meats, grass feed stuff from the range, retailing at two to three cents less.

Packers last night said they have not made any cut in the last week, contending that now they are selling to the retailers at the same prices as then.

HERE'S A BULLY STORY.

Breaking away from a farm-hand who was taking him to an abattoir in Bristol, a Holstein bull, after a wild rampage in the street, broke into the home of Mrs. Edward Reed, 324 St. Mary street during the absence of the family and wrecked the kitchen. That the rear of the building was not demolished by the raging beast was due only to the fact that in his struggles the bull kicked to pieces a gas range, the escaping fumes from which nearly asphyxiated him.

Mrs. Reed and neighbors who entered by the front door were almost smothered by the gas. They found the suffocating bull had wedged itself between the only two doors leading into the narrow kitchen. A boy volunteered to climb through a window and open the door so that street men from a gas company could get in and turn off the flow of gas. The bull was then dragged out, taking a part of the wall with him.

"CORPSE" BACK TO LIFE DURING AN ARGUMENT.

Returning, apparently from death, to take part in an argument as to which coroner should take charge of his body, a Burlington township farmer named Buzby gave a crowd in the Metropolitan Hotel a thrill it will not soon forget. Buzby had been found lying face downward and apparently lifeless at the rear of a public room. Dr. J. B. Cassady and other physicians were summoned. For five minutes they worked over Buzby, but with no visible signs of success. A relative who was present gave him up for dead and telephoned for a local undertaker. Some one suggested that owing to the strange nature of his demise a coroner should be summoned.

A discussion broke out as to whether Coroner Bisbing was yet in office or Coroner-elect Leconey had succeeded him. The argument was at its height when the supposed corpse suddenly sat up on the stretcher, rubbed his eyes and to one of the startled onlookers exclaimed:

"Why, hello, Bill! What am I doing here?"

Then Buzby collapsed from the exertion, but, encouraged, physicians worked over the farmer until he had once more regained consciousness and was apparently out of danger.

The doctors say his case is one of the most remarkable on record. They declare there was total cessation of respiration and pulse for at least five minutes and that the extremities of his body had begun to chill when the seemingly hopeless remedies dragged him back from death.

The farmer was later removed to his home and his recovery is expected.

Dolls! Dolls! The biggest stock in Plainfield. Compare our values and you will buy here.

In no season, heretofore, have we exerted greater efforts or expended more time to assemble a stock of Holiday Goods, Toys and Dolls, so thoroughly complete in every way as you will find here this season.

Nor must we fail to mention a word about values, you can depend on it, that the same generous values which prevail at this store year in and year out, will be as much in evidence during the present holiday season as during any time since we have been in business.

Our careful search of the trade markets afforded us the opportunity of securing many unusual values. In every instance where we were able to affect a saving in price, we pass our good fortune on to you.

Probably you think it is a little early to think of Xmas purchases—but it is not—one can never make Xmas purchases too early. Purchasing early allows you to make selections leisurely, allows you to have choice from fullest assortments, stocks which are at their very best NOW.

And—we want to mention this—we must purchase holiday stocks, as you know, months and months in advance, so once an article is sold no more of that article can be had again this year. This fact alone should influence you to make your purchases just as early as possible.

So as to make shopping for you just as easy and convenient as possible, we have assembled all our toys and dolls in our splendidly equipped daylight-lighted second floor—here you will find attractive displays, plenty of room and ample stocks.

Can we expect you to inpect our stocks tomorrow.

HANS WAGNER LOSES TITLE OF CHAMPION BATTER

Although Crandall, of New York, and Goode, of Boston, rank ahead of Sherwood Magee, the Philadelphia star, in the National League averages just made public by President Tom Lynch, the Quaker City outfielder is easily the star sticker in the senior major organization.

Magee played in 154 battles. He stung the ball at a .331 clip. Fourteen players who participated in more than fiteeen games last season have their names down in the National League's exclusive class of batters.

Hans Wagner who held the title of best swatter for four seasons, is seventh on the list. Three members of the Giants are in this class, Snodgrass and Devore, being the players to get in the limelight with Crandall.

The Giants outhit all the other clubs in team batting, the Brooklyns being the weakest batting club. Magee, besides leading the National Leaguers at the bat, scored more runs than any other player, going from plate to plate 110 times. Other players who scored 100 or more runs were Byrne, of Pittsburg, and Higgins, of St. Louis. Wagner made the greatest number of hits—178; Bescher excelled in steals, pilfering seventy bags, and Knabe was the most expert sacrificer, doing the martydom act thirty-seven times. Other leaders were: In two-baggers, Byrne, 43; in three-baggers, Mitchell, 18; in home runs, Beck and Schulte, each 10. Athletes who played in every game in which their teams participated were Mitchell and Wheat.

The records follow:

Crandall, New York	43	25	.342
Goode, Boston	23	29	.337

GOLF

Isaac Mackie, the Fox Hill "pro." has written a friend that the outlook is bright for a successful season where he is stopping at Wilmington, N. C. Gilbert Nichols, located at Wilmington, Del., in the regular season, has gone again to Texas, while Clarence Floyd, until three years ago a Van Cortlandt Park amateur, has got the Savannah Golf Club for the year round.

Dave Ogilive, of Morris County, is back in Augusta, where he will shortly be joined by Aleck Cunningham, of Glen Ridge. John Inglis, of Fairview, has been reengaged for the Hampton Terrace course. Peter Robertson is going to remain for another season at the Oakmont Country Club after all. It has been generally understood that he would not return to the Pittsburg organization. Herbert Barker, the Garden City "pro." is on a three weeks trip south, and before he returns several new courses will be staked out as the result of his handiwork.

The shooting box has been opened at the Oakland Golf Club. There will be weekly sweepstakes and a handicap on holidays. Charles G. Meyers, A. W. Rossiter and W. S. Brown form the shooting committee.

A 210 yard hole has been holed at the Portland Country Club course in one stroke. It is the sixth and the happy maker just before snow buried the links was H. A. Rounds, prominent in Maine golfing. He used a driver and supposed the ball had overcarried the green, but the caddie found it in the cup.

BOWLING.

The Moose bowling team took two of the three games in the match with Westfield, on Johnny Campbell's alleys, last night. The local bowlers took the first two games and lost the last one. The scores:

EDUCATION FOR ADULTS.

The broader functions in the direction of educational work are to be undertaken by the local Board, which amply shows that it fully realizes its responsibilities and its duties. It is with much satisfaction that we read its announcement regarding plans for the education of adults. The system in force at higher seats of learning is adopted, a course of lectures on topics that tend to broaden the mind and develop the intellect having been arranged. Science, art, and literature are all embraced in the tenative curriculum and it depends entirely upon the public response as to the success of the undertaking. If the attendance warrants it, the board, we believe, will provide a program which will represent on a proportionate scale that now found in New York, Boston and other centres. As a beginning, an illustrated lecture on "The Grand Canyon of the Colorado" will be given. This will be followed by an illustrated lecture on "The Historic Castles of England." This course of instruction is not intended for any particular class or body of people; it is intended for all—for he who has had the advantage of a college education and has travelled as much so as his less fortunate brother who through some cause has been deprived of such opportunities. As we say, it all depends now on the reception accorded by the public and we do hope that it will be a flattering one.

LITERARY

Quite unusual for the Christmas season is the cover for the December National. It represents, with vivid coloring against a background of white, an Indian in his canoe, sounding forth the moose-call on the silent river. The effect is unique. Following the opening pages, is the editor's greeting. "A Merry Christmas to You" is one of those gentle, kindly, fireside reveries in which Editor Joe Chapple, of "Happy Habit" fame, is at his best.

It is doubtful if any magazine has ever offered in a single issue stories by so many of our foremost writers of fiction as appear in The Red Book Magazine for December. The first story in the number is a Dickensian tale of an East Side New York contractor's Christmas, entitled, "Cassidy's Christmas Carol."

Everybody's Magazine has started with the aid of ex-Senator Frank J. Cannon, of Utah, to demonstrate that the Mormons need reforming, both as to their matrimonial and business methods. The blame for the situation is laid on the Mormon prophet, Joseph F. Smith, and the outlook for his peace of mind during the next few months is not encouraging.

That the automobile has come to stay is clearly demonstrated by the phenomenal increase in farmers' machines throughout the West and Southwest during the last two years. Social life in these sections has undergone a great change. People living fifteen or twenty miles apart are now brought into close touch with each other by the new annihilator of distance and time.

In 1858 Abraham Lincoln said: "A house divided against itself cannot stand. I believe this government cannot endure permanently half slave and half free." Events proved that he was right. Now, after the lapse of half a century, another labor crisis is brewing, and the immediate question is not whether our civilization can endure with labor half union and half non-union, but whether union labor will permit it to endure on that basis. The alternative is something very much like war, now in the guerilla stage, that inevitably will advance to the usual conclusion of blood and ashes. The choice lies with the leaders of labor. Their greatest obstacles in the exercise of sound judgment will prove to be the cowardice of politicians and the indecision of the officers of the law.—From an editorial in December Century.

Success Magazine for December contains an interesting and varied choice of articles and fiction. Seumas MacManus contributes a delightful Irish sketch called "The Irish Schoolmaster." Miriam Finn Scott writes of "Show Girls of industry," explaining the value of beauty as an asset in the business world. Charles Edward Russell continues his series of articles on Wendell Phillips, and Ernest Thompson Seton tells of the purposes and laws of the Boy Scout movement.

Most of the important magazines set out especially fine Christmas numbers, and Lippincott's is no exception to the rule. The complete novel for December is "There Was Once a Queen," by Edith Robinson, author of "A Mock Caliph and His Wife." It is a brisk and actionful story, with its scenes laid in a small German principality, the hero being in the diplomatic service there. He falls in love shortly after his arrival, and is thereby led into some strange adventures.

In the Metropolitan Magazine for December, Prof. Herschel C. Parker and Belmore Browne give an interesting and straightforward account of their attempt to climb Mount McKinley last summer. While they failed to reach the summit, their narrative is a valuable contribution to the literature of discovery and a record of pluck and daring decidedly worth reading.

The Christmas number of Scribner's Magazine is rich in beautiful illustrations, some of them in colors, and in fiction by the best contemporary writers. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle contributes "The First Cargo," which is the second of his imaginery historical tableaux, this one dealing with the coming of the Saxons to Britain. John Fox, Jr., in "Christmas for Big Ame," tells a pathetic story of the mountains. Thomas Nelson Page satirizes the spirit of fashionable Christianity in "The Stranger's Pew." Richard Harding Davis has seldom equalled the dignity and emotional power of his story, "The Consul." It has to do with an American official in a far country—a man appointed by Lincoln.

Since the public has awakened to the vital importance of the facts brought out in the series of Pension articles now running in The World's Work, overwhelming evidences of interest in the matter have come from all parts of the country. Not only have newspapers taken the matter up editorially but hundreds of individuals have taken the pains to write to the editors, expressing their approval.

ASSEMBLY ELECTS OFFICERS FOR YEAR

The Central New Jersey Assembly of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew held a meeting Thursday night at the Grace Episcopal church on East Jersey street, Elizabeth. Officers were elected to preside for the coming year. They were: President, J. Wesley Hegeman, of North Plainfield; secretary, C. P. Yoeman, of New Brunswick; treasurer, Frederick S. Dibo, of Elizabeth; chaplain, the Rev. Robert MacKellar, of Red Bank; vice-presidents, Robert Noble, of South Amboy; E. L. Coyte, of Asbury Park; P. S. Dixon, of New Brunswick, and Walter P. Wilson, of Trenton.

Resolutions were adopted in memory of James L. Houghteling, founder of the Assembly. After the meeting a supper was given by the women of Grace church. The Rev. H. P. Lyman Wheaton, D. D., of the Church Temperance Society, delivered a lecture upon the "Rule of Service" in the Central New Jersey Assembly. Services were held in the chapel and the sermon preached by the Rev. Dr. Fenton, of St. Luke's church, Metuchen.

He Got the Slipper.

Bob was telling about his visit to the country. While there he had acquired some rustic idioms, and his mother was correcting these as he proceeded.

"Well, we goes up—"

"Went up."

"Went up on the farm—"

"To the farm."

"To the farm and there we see—"

"We saw."

"We saw a little kid—"

"Little child. Now begin again and tell it properly."

"Well, we went up to the farm, and there we saw a goat's little child."

(Further narration suspended.)—Exchange.

Mrs. Young's Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. Leonard Young, who died at her home on West Second street yesterday morning, will be held at the residence of her brother, Henry Bohl, of Arlington avenue, tomorrow afternoon at 3:45. Burial will be in Hillside cemetery. Beside her husband and son, Mrs. Young is survived by her mother, brother and two sisters, Mrs. George Kirch, of the borough, and Mrs. W. A. Zimmerman, of Elizabeth.

"Country Romance" Again.

The second presentation of Miss Beulah Van Winkle's playlet, "A Country Romance" was given in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium last evening to a much larger audience that witnessed the first production of Thursday evening and if anything the second performance was better than the first. Miss Van Winkle's success in this production promises well for the future.

THE UNITED STATES AS A MILITARY POWER.

As compared with the standing armies and trained reserves of European countries, with smaller coasts and frontiers to defend than we have, the United States is very low in the list.

The maxium force of the regular army, as fixed by law, is 100,000. The report of the War College for last year showed that we had 4,029 officers, of which 219 were militia doctors assigned to the regular army from the Medical Reserve Corps, and 78,782 men.

Last year in the National Guard there were 8,975 officers and 109,951 men.

The regular standing army of Great Britain last year was 255,000 men and the organized reserve 509,000 men.

Germany has a standing army of 620,000 men and an organized reserve of 3,380,000, the reserve due to the compulsory military duty law.

France has a regular army of 550,000 men and an organized reserve of 1,500,000, half of which drill as much as the National Guardsmen in this country.

Russia's standing army is 1,200,000 men and the Russian organized reserve is placed at 3,300,000 men, but this is based on men who have been is service or belong to the provincial organizations.

Taken as a whole, the armies of Japan are recognized as the greatest fighting machines in the world.

Our total trained force, officers and men, is 201,737, leaving untrained material between the ages of eighteen and forty-five, that is considered the second line, 14,969,448.

DR. COOK ON PEARY.

Dr. William H. Axtell, of Bellingham, Wash., an intimate friend of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, who has been in frequent communication with him since his disappearance from New York, received a letter from the Brooklyn explorer Wednesday. Dr. Axtell declined to divulge the whereabouts of Dr. Cook, but made public several extracts from the letter, as follows:

"My case will eventually rest upon its own merits, without reference to private interests.

"I prefer to believe that the campaign of infamy which has been waged against me, that the mud-slinging, bribery and conspiracy has come from the misguided and deluded.

"As to Mr. Peary, my feeling is of pity, rather than revenge. He has striven against awful odds, and the man who can succeed under such a handicap deserves all the glory that comes his way."

A. O. H. Dance and Euchre.

Dunellen division, No. 11, Ancient Order Hibernians, held a euchre and dance in Sebring's hall last night. Fifty tables were used in the play and at its conclusion Squire's orchestra furnished music for dancing. Patrick Terhune, an Irish piper, also played airs for Irish jigs and reels. Joseph Morgan was chairman of the committee in charge and acted as floor manager

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Dunellen residents who have been in the habit of waiting until Sunday before having tonsorial needs attended to or purchasing a favorite cigar, are warned to be on the job tonight. The Sunday closing ordinance goes into effect and from present indications it will be obeyed to the letter. All the barber shops, candy and fruit stores will be closed tight in compliance with the notice issued by the authorities following the action of the Council. The ordinance does not effect Pennock's drug store or McVey's restaurant.

Another good-sized crowd was in attendance at the Presbyterian bazaar and supper, last night. A large unmber of people enjoyed the menu arranged under the direction of Mrs. Silas Naylor and the receipts were increased in consequnce. An informal program of music was also enjoyed last night.

Fred Feaderman has purchased a lot on Columbia avenue and contemplates the erection of a house in the future.

N. Y AMUSEMENTS.

metropolitan appearance under the metropolitan apeparance under the management of Lew Fields at William Collier's Comedy Theatre last Monday evening, playing the stellar role in a new farce entitled "I'll Be Hanked If I Do." William Collier's Comedy Theatre is the cozy little playhouse in Forty-first street, just east of Broadway, which has formerly been known simply as the Comedy Theatre, but which the Messrs. Shubert have now re-named in honor of Mr. Collier, who will hereafter play all his New York City engagements in this theatre. The company supporting Mr. Collier include, among others, Paula Marr, Helena Collier Garrick, Clara Smith, Sallie Tompkins, Stanley Murphy, James B. Sherran, Willard R. Feeley, Fred Esmelton, Maude Gilbert, M. L. Heckert, Stephen Haley, Albert West, John B. Adams, William Collier, Jr., Richard Malchien, Thomas Beauregard, Thomas Findlay and Thomas Stuart. Matinees on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Best seats Wednesday matinees $1.50.

The old saying that "good things improve with age," must have been written with "Baby Mine," Margaret Mayo's uproariously funny farce in view. "Baby Mine" is now in its second century at Daly's, New York, but there are no evidences of waning interest, and big audiences continue nightly to bubble over with merriment in following its excruciatingly funny episodes. "Baby Mine" has been called "the funniest farce ever written," and it deserves its reputation. A night at Daly's with "Baby Mine" as presented by Marguerite Clark, Ivy Troutman, John Glendinning, Walter Jones and the other clever players in the cast, is a tonic.

An interesting theatrical offering of the coming week is Cohan and Harris' production of the new farcial comedy, "The Aviator," scheduled for its initial Broadway bow at the Astor Theatre on Tuesday evening next. James Montgomery is the author of the play. He is credited with having written a vigorous American farce punctuated with brisk dialogue and incidental situations that are productive of many amusing complications. The story of the play is woven around a susceptible author who has written a book called "The Aviator," wherein he describes a thrilling flight of a racing aeroplane. All worn out with his literary exertions, he seeks the quiet of a summer hotel in the Berkshire hills accompanied by a gabby college friend who starts the rumor that the story of the air journey so brilliantly described in the novel is the author's own terrifying experience, though he never saw an air wagon.

'Twas a Lion All Right.

"Gee whiz I just run over a lion," exclaimed a motorman on the Hudson River trolley line as he stopped his car in Passaic street Hackensack, Thursday night. There was much excitement, and Inspector Harry Haddon was the first to speak.

"How did you know it was a lion?" he asked.

"My heavens, man, the searchlight shone right on his head, and there were big eyes wide open and the mouth wid open, showing his teeth," was the motorman's response.

Inspector Haddon never hunted in the jungle, but he bravely walked back along the track. There was the lion's head all right, but the balance of it was a monster laprobe. The trolley wheel had ripped the skin in the middle.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Stumbling against the fire escape in the Genge School yard, Camden, Albert Fox, ten years old, of 803 Federal street, severely lacerated his scalp Thursday. He was taken to Cooper Hospital.

The final meeting of the commission which erected a monument at Greenwich to commemorate the burning of British tea was held at Bridgeton Thursday, and the commission will make its report to the next Legislature.

Richard Mattman, a barber of Pitman, who swallowed a carpet tack over a week ago, is still ill as the result. He spent several days in a Philadelphia hospital, but the tack was not located.

Ramforth Fifthian and his wife celebrated the fifty-fifth anniversary of their wedding at the Soldiers' Home in Vineland Thursday. Fifthian is eighty-one years old and says he feels more like a boy today than he did at many of the anniversaries that are past.

It is understood that the resignation which Postmaster Branin requested of Deputy Postmaster Cheeseman, of Millville, has not been forthcoming and that the deputy will now hold office under civil service and cannot be removed except for just cause.

The opening of the annual exhibition of the Vineland Poultry Association, at Vineland, Thursday, was a surprise, owing to the many exhibits of high-bred birds. A thousand-dollar Orpington hen is one of the attractions. The show will continue today.

A new life-saving station is being built at Gardner's Basin, Atlantic City. One power boat has already been placed at the disposal of the men in the station, and another will be added in a short time. Four men will comprise the crew under the superintendency of a captain yet to be selected.

F. E. Francis, general agent for large pulp mills in the South, met several owners of marsh land in Vineland Thursday and talked over the possibility of using salt hay in the manufacture of excelsior. If the manufacturers decide to use the product the salt meadows of South Jersey will become mighty valuable.

Accused of being the father of the infant child which Mrs Alice Kasian, of Palmyra, abandoned in Camden on November 18, Charles Wadwell, a Camden young man, was held under $300 bail for a further hearing Thursday by Recorder Stackhouse. The arrest was made on the strength of a statement made by the young woman.

Girl clerks and stenographers who supported themselves, but expect to marry, are to get an opportunity to fit themselves for housewifely duties by the Atlantic City Board of Education. Arrangements have been been made for night sessions of the recently established course of domestic sciences in a large section of the new grammar school.

In the Atlantic County Court Thursday William Thomas, a young negro, was convicted of white slavery, his accuser being a white girl, Elsie Foster. The girl admitted on the witness stand that she had led an immoral life before she knew Thomas, but swore that he lived upon her earnings in May's Landing. He was remanded for sentence.

Written in red ink, ominously signed "Death" and sealed with a skull and crossbones, a "Black Hand" letter sent to Robert Hawley, a Burlington blacksmith, demands that $10,000 in cash be placed on the corner near his shop before this evening if the blacksmith would escape the fatal wrath of the authors. Hawley turned the letter over to the postal authorities.

With Captain William G. Randle in charge and other officers of the company on board the torpedo boat McCall left the yard of the New York Shipbuilding Company, Camden, Thursday for her trial trip off the Breakwater. The McCall is 293 feet long and the contract calls for a speed of twenty-nine and one-half knots an hour.

George H. Cove, of Bridgeton, inventor and builder of biplanes, has completed his new model machine and is ready to take it from the shop for a test. Mr. Cove has embraced a number of new features and theories in the construction of his machine, and feels that he can attain a success that no other inventor has achieved. He has been allowed patents upon several of his inventions.

DEBUT IS MADE BY MISS HELEN TAFT.

Miss Helen Taft made her debut yesterday afternoon at the White House in what was one of the most brilliant society events of the season. She was presented by the President and Mrs. Taft at a reception given between 5 and 7 o'clock, members of the diplomatic corps and official circles as well as other residents of the national capital being invited.

Preparations for the affair had been in progress for weeks and one of the most notable gatherings the White House has ever contained was present.

STRAIN TOO GREAT.

Hundreds of Plainfield Readers Find Daily Toil a Burden.

The hustle and worry of business men,

The hard work and stooping of workmen,

The woman's household cares,

Are too great a strain on the kidneys.

Backache, headache, sideache.

Kidney troubles follow.

A Plainfield citizen tels you how to cure them all.

A. C. Lazzi, 44 Elm place, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills off and on for five years and from my experience with them, I feel that I cannot give them too much praise. I have to do a great deal of stooping at my work and I think that my kidneys became weakened in this way. I suffered from a dull, grinding pain in my back and also had attacks of rheumatism. Another source of annoyance was irregular passages of the kidney secretions. I finally began using Doan's Kidney Pills procured at Randolp's drug store and I was soon in good health. Since then hard work has brought on one or two slight attacks of backache, but a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills have never failed to give me instant relief."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York sole agents for the United States.

LITTLE MRS. PATTEN

[Copyright, 1907, by Homer Sprague.]

Little Mrs. Patten, as we called her, though she had registered as Mrs. Judge Patten, had arrived without her husband because just as they were about leaving Chicago an associate judge had been taken ill and Judge Patten had to sit in a case for him. He had sent his wife on and would join her within a week.

At the end of the week the judge did not appear. He wrote a letter instead. The letter was shown to the landlord and then "accidentally" left on a table in the parlor for half a day, and it was doubtless read by a score of the female guests. He would be detained another week, much to his sorrow, but would surely arrive then. There was a printed letter head to show that the judge belonged to a high court, and in the letter he inclosed a draft on New York for a hundred dollars. If there was any doubt about Mrs. Patten's social status the letter settled it. The husband wrote that she had been inquired after by people whom all of us knew to be prominent in society.

Little Mrs. Patten had been with us eight days when there was a robbery in the house—the first for five years. There was no dress except at dinner Sunday evenings, and then for such a lot of conservative people as we were there was quite a display of jewelry. A lady who had got out her diamonds to wear was called from the room a moment, and when she returned the stones were gone. The value was about $2,000, but the excitement kicked up was valued at five times as much. The theft was laid to the chambermaid, to a waiter and to others, but in such cases nothing can be done but to suspect. We all talked, and we all sympathized and suggested, and little Mrs. Patten adorned herself with $5,000 worth of diamonds and acknowledged that she was very careless and expected to be robbed herself some day.

I must explain to you that the regular doors had been taken off for the summer and replaced by slat or blind doors to permit of free circulation. There was a space of about a foot at top and bottom, and no watchmen were kept in the halls at night. As these slat doors locked, the idea was that the thief was slim enough to slip over or under them. There were perhaps ten boys at the hotel with their parents, but none of them could be suspected. In fact, the detective who was summoned and came down as a guest could not find a thing to found a suspicion on. After working his head for a day he recommended that watchmen be stationed in the halls and went his way. Girls were placed on watch. Nothing occurred Monday night, but on Tuesday night there followed three more robberies of rooms. The plunder was about the same as before. In two of the rooms were husbands and wives; in the third was a woman whose husband had taken a run up to town on business. Not one of them had been awakened. There was a girl on watch in that hall, and, of course, she was at once charged with having fallen asleep.

Wednesday night I went to bed to sleep soundly, but I had my plans for the following night. I am an old bachelor, and I had a room by myself. Little Mrs. Patten acted no different from the other ladies. She was free to talk about the robberies and had taken her jewels to the office safe or had at least handed in a case. She was the thief, as you are prepared to hear, but not one professional detective in a hundred would have had the slightest suspicion of her.

When I went to bed Thursday night I did something very smart. I crawled under instead of into the bed. I expected the thief to come, and I meant to make a capture. I had a blackjack with me and ropes for tying the rascal, and at that date I could handle almost any man I came across. Nothing occurred up to midnight, but an hour later I heard and felt some one in the room. Whoever it was could not have slipped over or under the slat door. He must have entered by the window. He was searching about for my clothes when I called out that if he moved hand or foot I would shoot, and I then began to crawl from under the bed. When I struck a light I had the room to myself.

I didn't sit down and wonder if I hadn't been deceived. I knew I hadn't. That some one had been in the room I proved within two minutes. That some one had lost a little list shoe generally called a sneak. It was too small for any man's foot. It meant a woman or boy. I went down to the office and reported to the night clerk, and together we visited little Mrs. Patten's room. She did not respond to the knocks, but that was because she wasn't there. She had left most of her wardrobe behind and had gone away dressed as a young man, taking only a hand satchel.

Clear across the rear end of the hotel ran a balcony on every floor. Two fire escapes led from top to bottom. In every case a window had been entered, while in our stupidity we thought only of the slat doors. Little Mrs. Patten had donned male attire and done the trick as easy as pie. I can't say whether I scared her off or whether she was ready to go, but she went. A quarter of a mile from the hotel, as we ascertained, a confederate met her with an auto, and she was whisked away to the unknown. The judge business was all bosh. Little Mrs. Patten was Molly Matches, one of the cleverest thieves, shoplifters and confidence women in America. It must have disgusted her to find us such a dead easy crowd.

Chapter 31

ORDE mounted the office stairs next day with a very heavy step. The loss of the North Star and of the two schooners meant a great deal to him at that time.

"I can't understand why Floyd started," said Orde. "He ought to know better than to face sure prospects of a fall blow. I'll tan his soul for that, all right."

"I'm partly responsible," said Newmark.

"You!" cried Orde.

"Yes. You see that Smith & Mabley shipment was important enough to strain a point for—and it's only twenty-four hours or so—and it certainly didn't look as if it were going to blow. Poor Floyd feels bad enough."

Orde began to appreciate his circumstances. The loss on the cargo of "uppers" represented $20,000 in money. As for the North Star and her consorts, save for the insurance, they were simply eliminated. The loss of $60,000 or so on them, however, did not mean a diminution of the company's present cash resources to that amount and so did not immediately affect Orde's calculations as to the payment of the notes which were now soon to come due.

Orde disappeared for a week, his organizing abilities claimed for the distribution of the road crews. When he returned to the office Newmark showed him contracts for the construction of three new vessels.

"I get them for $55,000," said he, "with $30,000 of it on long time."

"Without consulting me!" cried Orde.

Newmark explained that he had really been taking advantage of a lucky opportunity.

"Otherwise," he finished, "we shouldn't have been able to get the job done for another year. If that big Cronin contract goes through—well, you know what that would mean in the shipyards—nobody would get even a look in. And McLeod is willing to give us a price to keep his men busy. So, you see, I had to close at once."

"It's a good chance, all right," admitted Orde, "but it never occurred to me we'd build any more vessels until we'd recovered a little."

"Recovered." Newmark repeated coldly. "I don't see what 'recovered' has to do with it. If the mill burned down we'd rebuild, wouldn't we? And as we're making $15,000 a year out of our freighting it seems to me too good a business to let slip into other hands."

"I suppose so," agreed Orde.

"Therefore I had to act without you," Newmark finished.

"Of course," agreed Orde drearily.

"Joe," replied Orde, "I—I don't think I'll stay downtown this morning. I'"—

Newmark glanced up keenly.

"You don't look well," said he; "kind of pale around the gills; bilious."

Orde closed his desk and went out. Newmark turned back to his papers. From an inner pocket he produced a cigar. The corners of his mouth slowly curved in a grim smile.

Orde immediately set into motion the machinery of banking to borrow on the California timber. Taylor took charge of this, as the only man in Monrovia who had Orde's confidence. At the end of a necessary delay Orde received notice that the west had been heard from. He stepped across the hall to the lawyer's office.

"Well, Frank," said he, "glad we managed to push it through with so little trouble."

Taylor arose, shut carefully the door into his outer office, walked to the window, looked contemplatively out upon the hotel back yard and returned to his desk.

"But there is trouble," said he curtly.

"What's the matter?" asked Orde.

"The banks refuse the loan."

Orde stared at him in blank astonishment.

"What grounds can they possibly have for that?"

"It's about the title."

"But I thought you went over the title."

"I did," stated Taylor emphatically, "and I'll stake my reputation as a lawyer that everything is straight and clear from the land office itself. I've wired for an explanation, and we ought surely to know something definite by tomorrow."

For the first time in his business career a real anxiety gnawed Orde's vitals. He had been in many tight places, but somehow heretofore success or failure had seemed to him about immaterial, like points gained or conceded in the game. Now the game itself was at issue. Property, reputation and the family's future were at stake. Therefore he awaited further news with the greatest impatience.

The message came the following day.

"Land office under investigation," Orde read. "Fraudulent entries suspected."

Taylor glanced up at Orde with commiseration.

"They simply won't lend money on an uncertainty," said he.

"Frank," said Orde, rousing himself, "I've got to be here. I couldn't get away if my life depended on it. I want you to go to California and look after those interests for me. Make what arrangements you please, but go. It'll be like a sort of vacation to you. And I'll make it worth your while. Take Clara with you. Now, straighten it out as quick as you can. Borrow that money on it and send it on p. d. q."

Taylor hesitated. "All right," he said at last.

"Good!" cried Orde, rising and holding out his hand. He made his way to the office of the Welton Lumber company.

"Look here, Welton," he demanded abruptly when he had reached that operator's private office, "how much of a cut are you going to make this year?"

"About 20,000,000," replied Welton. "Why?"

"Just figuring on the drive," said Orde, nodding a farewell.

He then drove to the offices of all the men owning timber on the river. When

"I'm going to cut that whole 40,000,000."

he had collected his statistics he returned to his desk, where he filled the backs of several envelopes with his characteristically minute figures. He nodded his head vigorously.

"Joe," he called across to his partner, "I'm going to cut that whole 40,000,000 we have left."

"Do you think you can do it? It's two years' work."

"Sure thing," replied Orde. Then to himself he added, "I've got to."

Chapter 32

ORDE was fighting for his very life. The notes given by Newmark & Orde would come due beginning the following summer. Before that time Orde must be able to meet them personally or his stock in the Boom company would be turned in to the firm. This would of course spell nearly a total loss of it as far as Orde was concerned.

The chief anxiety under which the riverman labored, however, was the imminent prospect of losing under the mortgage all the northern peninsula timber. Now, as the time approached, he realized that if he could not pay the notes the firm would certainly be unable to do so. What with the second mortgage due two years later and to be met by Newmark, with the outstanding obligations, with the new enterprise of the vessels ordered from Duncan McLeod, Newmark & Orde would be unable to raise anything like the necessary amount. He fell upon the woods work with unparalleled ferocity. A sale of the 40,000,000 feet remaining of the firm's up river holdings, together with the tolls to be collected for driving the river that spring, would bring Orde through by "the skin of his teeth." To cut 40,000,000 feet, even in these latter days of improvements, would be a task to strain to the utmost every resource of energy and organization.

Nevertheless Orde accomplished the task. He lived constantly in the woods. The Rough Red had charge of the banking, where his aggressive, brutal personality kept the rollways free from congestion. When the drive started the cut was banked for miles along the stream, 40,000,000 feet of it.

The strain over, Orde faced the task of driving the river.

From Taylor, Orde had several communications. The lawyer confessed himself baffled as to the purpose of the land office investigation. The whole affair appeared to be tangled in technicalities and a snarl of red tape.

He lived constantly in the woods.

Orde did not much care for this delay. He saw his way clear to meeting his obligations without the necessity of hypothecating the California timber and was the better pleased for it. With the break up of spring he proceeded confidently with the largest drive in the history of the river, a matter of over 200,000,000 feet.

The morning of June 26 dawned clear. Orde drove rapidly to the distributing booms. After a glance at the river he entered the tiny office and set about the examination of the tally sheets. The foreman, Tom North, entered.

"The river's rising," he said.

"You're crazy," muttered Orde. "There have been no rains reported."

"It's rising," insisted North.

An hour later Orde walked out over the booms. The water certainly had risen. He called a boy.

"Here, Jimmy," said he, "mark one of these piles and keep track of how fast the water rises."

The river slowly rose.

"I don't like June floods," Orde told Tom North. "A fellow can understand an ordinary spring freshet and knows about how far it will go, but these summer floods are so confounded mysterious I can't figure out what's struck the old stream unless they're having almighty heavy rains up near headwaters."

By 3 o'clock in the afternoon Jimmy Powers reported a rise since morning of six inches.

"Tom," said Orde to the old riverman, "I'm going to send Marsh down for the pile drivers and some cable."

"What in blazes do you expect to do with that?" he inquired.

"We may need them," Orde stated, with conviction. "If those logs ever break through they'll go on out to Lake Michigan and wouldn't be worth the salvage."

"That's a mighty long chance," North commented.

"If this drive goes out it surely busts me," replied Orde, "and I'm not taking even long chances."

A cloudburst in the China creek district followed by continued heavy rains was responsible for the increased water. The evening papers mentioned this only incidentally. Their columns were filled with an account of the big log jam that had formed above the iron railroad bridge. The planing mill's booms had given way under pressure, and the contents had piled downstream against the buttresses.

Orde slept that night at the booms. The water by morning had crept so far up the piles that there began to be danger that it would overflow their tops. In that case, of course, the logs in the booms would also run out.

Orde set a crew of men to raising the height of the piling by tying logs firmly to the bolted timbers atop. This would take care of an extra two feet of water, a two feet beyond all previous records. Another crew stretched the fifteen inch manila cables across the field of logs in order to segregate them into several units of mass.

About two hours later the pile driver moved up. The swing was opened, and the men began to drive clumps of piles in such a position as to strengthen the swing when the latter should be shut. It was a slow job. Each pile had to be taken from the raft at the stern of the scow, erected in the "carrier," and pounded into place by the heavy hammer raised and let drop in the derrick at the bow.

Long before the task was finished the logs in the temporary booms had begun to slide atop one another, to cross and tangle, until at last the river bed inside the booms was filled with a jam of formidable dimensions. From beneath it the water boiled in eddies. Orde, looking at it, roused himself to sudden activity.

"Get a move on," he advised Captain Aspinwall of the driver. "If that jam breaks on us we want to be ready, and if it don't break before you get this swing strengthened maybe we can hold her where she is. There's no earthly doubt that those boom piles will never stand up when they get the full pressure of the freshet."

The driver's crew labored desperately, hoisting the piles into the carriage, tripping the heavy hammer, binding feverishly the clumps of piles together by means of cables.

Two of the clumps had been placed and bound when suddenly, with a roar, the upper booms gave way, projecting their logs upon the opening and the driver.

The half dozen members of the crew were scattered by the winds of a panic. Two or three flung themselves on their faces; one leaped into the river. Imminent destruction seemed upon them.

Tom North, at the winch that operated the arm of the swing, however, retained his presence of mind. At the first sag outward of the boom piles he set in operation the machinery that closed the gate. Clumsy and slow as was his mechanism, he nevertheless succeeded in getting the long arm started. The logs, rushing in back of it, hurried it shut. Immediately they jammed again and heaped up in a formidable tangle behind the barrier. Tom North, his little black pipe between his teeth, stood calm, the lever of his winch in his hand. A short three feet from the spot on which he stood the first saw log of the many that might have overwhelmed him thrust forward its ugly head. The wash of the water lifted the huge pile driver bodily and deposited it with a crash half on the bank and half in the water.

Instantly after the first break Orde had commenced running out over the booms from the shore.

"Good boy, Tom!" he shot at North.

Across the jam he hurried to where the pile driver lay. Captain Aspinwall examined the supports of the derrick on deck.

"That was lucky," said Orde briefly. "Stove you in?"

"I—I don't think so," replied the captain.

"That's good. I'll send over the tug to help get her afloat. We've got our work cut out for us now."

"You don't expect me to work my driver under the face of that jam!" cried the captain.

"What's the matter?" asked Orde.

"It isn't safe," replied the captain, "and I don't intend to risk my men or my driver."

Orde, with a snort of anger, seized the man and thrust him bodily over the side to the tank.

"Safe, you white livered skunk!" he roared. "Safe! Go over in the middle of that ten acre lot and lie down on your face and see if you feel safe there! Get out, the whole pack of you! I'm in charge here now."

Aspinwall picked himself up.

"Get off my driver!" he snarled.

"This driver is requisitioned!" cried Orde. "Get out! I've got to save my logs!"

Tom North and some others of the crew came running across the jam.

"Get a cable to the winch!" Orde shouted at these as soon as they were within hearing. "And get Marsh up here with the Sprite. We've got to get afloat."

He paid no more attention to the ejected crew.

A few minutes' hard work put the driver afloat. Fortunately its raft of piles had not become detached in the upheaval.

"Tom," said Orde briskly to North, "you know the pile driving business. Pick out your crew and take charge."

Orde took charge of the situation in its entirety, as a general might. He set North immediately to driving clumps each of sixteen piles, bound to solidify by chains, and so arranged in angles and slants as to direct the enormous pressure toward either bank, thus splitting the enemy's power. The small driver owned by the Boom company drove similar clumps here, there and everywhere that need arose or weakness developed. Seventy-five men opposed to the weight of 20,000,000 tons of logs and a river of water the expedients invented by determination and desperation.

Orde gave over formal defenses and threw his energies to saving the weak places which rapidly developed. By the most tremendous exertions he seemed but just able to keep even. Piles quivered, bent slowly outward. Immediately, before the logs behind them could stir, the pile driver must do its work. Back and forth darted the Sprite and her sister tug, the Spray, towing the pile drivers or the strings of piles. Under the frowning destruction the crews had to do their work. And if ever a break should come there would be no escape. Crushed and buried, the men would be borne to an unknown grave in the lake. Every man knew it. Darkness came. No one stopped for food.

He seemed but just able to keep even.

Morning found no change in the situation. The water rose steadily. The logs grew more and more restive; the defenses weaker and more inadequate.

Chapter 33

ALL that day and the next night the fight was hand to hand without the opportunity of a breathing space. Then Orde bareheaded and dishevelled, strung to a high excitement, began to be harassed by annoyances. The piles gave out. Newmark left, ostensibly to purchase more. He did not return. Tom North and Jim Denning, their eyes burning deep in their heads for lack of sleep, came to Orde, holding to him symbolically their empty hands.

"No more piles," they said briefly.

"Get 'em," said Orde with equal brevity. "Newmark will have enough here shortly. In the meantime get them."

North and his friend disappeared, taking with them the crews of the drivers and the two tugs. After an interval they returned towing small rafts of the long timbers. Orde did not make any inquiries, nor until days later did he see a copy of the newspaper telling how a lawless gang of rivermen had driven away the railroad men and stolen the railroad's property.

Orde was everywhere. Miles and miles he traveled, running along the tops of the booms, over the surface of the jam, spying the weakening places and hurrying to them a rescue.

Toward noon the piles gave out again.

"Where in h— is Newmark?" exploded Orde. He sent North and a crew of men to cut piles from standing timber in farm wood lots near the river.

"If the owners object stand them off with your peavies!"

Down river the various mill owners were busy with what men they had left in stringing defenses across the river in case Orde's works should go out. When Orde heard this he swore vigorously.

"Crazy fools!" he spat out. "They'd be a lot better off helping here. If this goes out their little booms won't amount to a whiff of wind."

He sent word to that effect; but, lacking the enforcement of his personal presence, his messages did not carry conviction, and the panic stricken owners continued to labor, each according to his ideas. However, Welton answered the summons. Orde hailed his coming with a shout.

"I want a dredge!" he yelled as soon as the lumberman was within distance. "I believe we can relieve the pressure somewhat by a channel into Stearn's bayou. Get that government dredge up and through the bayou as soon as you can."

"All right," said Welton briefly. "Can you hold her?"

"I've got to hold her," replied Orde between clinched teeth. "Where in h— is Newmark? I need him for fifty things, and he's disappeared off the face of the earth! Furdy, that second cable! She's snapped a strand! Get a re-enforcing line on her!" He ran without another thought of Welton.

But flesh and blood has its limit of endurance, and that limit was almost reached. Orde heard the first premoni-

"Come on and let's get something done."

tions of reaction in the mild grumblings that arose. Although the need for struggle against the tireless dynamics of the river was as insistent as ever, although it seemed certain that a moment's cessation of effort would permit the enemy an irretrievable gain, he called a halt on the whole work.

"Boys," said he irrelevantly, "let's have a smoke."

He threw himself full length against a slanting pile, leisurely filling his pipe. The men stared a moment and then followed his example. The horizon lay low and black against the afterglow. Beneath it the river shone like silver. Over beyond the rise of land that lay between the river and Stearn's bayou could be seen the cloud of mingled smoke and steam that marked the activity of the dredge. Orde was apparently more at ease than any of the rest, but each instant he expected to hear the premonitory crack that would sound the end of everything. Finally he yawned and got to his feet.

"Now," said he, a new ring in his voice, "come on and let's get something done!"

They responded to a man.

By midnight the water had gone down slightly. Half the crew snatched a little sleep. For several hours more the issue hung in equilibrium. Then, with the opening of the channel into Stearn's bayou, the heaviest pressure was relieved. For the moment the acute danger point was passed. Orde spent the next two days in strengthening the defenses. The men were able to take their quota of meals and of sleep.

The jam had been successfully held at the iron railroad bridge above Redding, but only by the most strenuous efforts. Braces of oak beams had been slanted where they would do the most good. Chains strengthened the weaker spots, and on top of all ton after ton of railroad iron held the whole immovably. Nolan had all the help he required. Every device known was employed to strengthen the jam. For only a few hours was the result in doubt. Then, as the Clarion jubilantly expressed it, "It's a hundred dollars to an old hat she holds!"

Orde received all this with satisfaction, but with a slight skepticism.

"It's a floating jam, and it gets a push from underneath," he pointed out. "It's probably safe, but another flood might send it out."

"The floods are going down," said North.

"Good Lord, I hope so!" said Orde.

Newmark sent word that a sudden fit of sickness had confined him to the house.

Now Orde decided to break out a channel through the jam itself. This was a necessary preliminary to getting the logs in shape for distribution. An opening was made in the piles, and the rivermen, with pike poles and peavies, began cautiously to dig their way through the tangled timbers. The government pile driver, which had finally been sent up from below, began placing five extra booms at intervals downstream to capture the drift as fast as it was turned loose. The troubles appeared to be quite over when word came from Redding that the waters were again rising. Ten minutes later Leopold Lincoln Bunn, the local reporter, came flapping in on Randall's old white horse, like a second Paul Revere, crying that the iron bridge had gone and the logs were racing down river toward the booms.

"It just went out!" he answered the eager exclamations of the men who crowded around him. "That's all I know. It went out! And the other bridges! Sure! All but the Lake Shore! Don't know why that didn't go out. No; the logs didn't jam there—just slid right under!"

"That settles it," said Welton.

"You won't quit?" cried Orde.

"Certainly. You're crazy!" said Welton, with some asperity. "If they can't stop a little jam with iron, what are your wooden defenses going to amount to against the whole accumulation? When those logs hit the tail of this jam she'll go out before you can wink. It's sure death, and I'm not going to sacrifice my men."

Already the news was spreading among the workers on the jams. Orde saw the government driver below casting loose from her moorings. A moment later her tug towed her away to a side bayou of safety out of the expected rush to the lake.

Mashed Potatoes a la Mode.

Instead of heaping the mashed potato in a covered dish shape into a long oval with a knife, having the upper edges rather sharp, not rounded—sort of fort-shaped. Run a line of chopped parsley down the centre of the potato and bank the sides with chops. It is the occasional variation in the serving of very common things which makes the common things welcome, no matter how often they appear on the same table.

PRIVATE LETTER BOXES

All Persons Recieving Mail by Delivery Must Obey Order.

POSTMASTER BIRD NOTIFIED.

To Save Time of Carrier and to Obtain Prompt Service, the Rule Is Adopted at Washington.

The postoffice department at Washington desires that private mail receptacles shall be provided by all patrons of the city delivery service in Plainfield. Postmaster Bird has been asked to request all persons receiving mail from the carriers to put up conveniently accessible letter boxes on their residences or make a proper opening in the front door so that mail can be dropped inside. Such action will enable the postmaster to give a more prompt and better delivery service with the means at his disposal, since carriers can cover more territory in less time if not compelled to wait for an answer to their ring.

Postmasters throughout the country have received the same instructions.

Private receptacles for mail are also of great convenience to the householder, obviating the necessity of responding to the carrier's call at inconvenient moments and permitting the safe delivery of mail in the absence of members of the household. They also prevent the occasional necessity of a carrier proceeding on his route without delivering mail because of failure to answer his ring within a reasonable time and enable him to make deliveries to patrons living on or near the end of the route at an earlier hour.

It has been shown by actual experience that the benefits derived by the patrons of city delivery from the use of such receptacles far outweigh the small expense involved.

An ordinary leter box can be purchased for about one dollar, and Postmaster Bird is very anxious that the patrons provide themselves with these letter boxes as soon as possible.

As an example of the time they may be saved, take for instance a carrier who has 200 stops to make on one delivery. If he is compelled to lose an average of thirty seconds at each stop while waiting for the response to his ring at the door, he will have wasted on that trip one hour and forty minutes in time.

By this example it can readily be seen what a tremendous saving in time can be accomplished should every one provide themselves with letter boxes and the man at the end of the route can rest assured he would receive his mail at least one hour earlier on each delivery.

The expense involved upon each patron of the office is small and it is earnestly hoped that all householders will take up this matter at once and provide themselves with letter boxes.

The postal department estimates that $6,000,000 a year could be saved, in time, if this request of the government was generally obeyed.

Sang 'The Vision of St. John.'

The choir of the First M. E. church rendered the cantata, "The Vision of St. John," at the evening service, yesterday, under the direction of J. Edmund Skiff, choirmaster and organist. In addition to the cantata there was an anthem and a quartet selection in which Miss Bertha vanNuis Willis sang solo parts. In the cantata most of the solo work is for the tenor, which part was taken by Mr. Skiff, and S. Frederick Smith organist of Grace church, presided at the organ. The music was well rendered and enjoyed by a large congregation.

Woman Shoplifter?

Mrs. Sophie Fischer, of Bound Brook, was arraigned this morning before Judge Runyon in the city court on a charge of shoplifting and remanded until Friday morning for a trial. She was arrested by Detective Sergeant Flynn on complaint of A. E. Force, proprietor of the "White Store," on West Front street, on Saturday evening at 9 o'clock.

Rev. Dr. Perrine Spoke Here.

Rev. Dr. S. A. Perrine, of Newark, preached a strong sermon at the Park Avenue Baptist church, last night, for the pastor, Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire, who preached for Rev. Dr. C. A. Eaton in New York. The latter spoke at the twenty-fifth anniversary service conducted by Rev. Dr. Rhoades at the Marcey Avenue Baptist church, Brooklyn.

The Plainfield Mothers' Association will meet with Mrs. W. M. Sandford, Jr., of 137 Crescent avenue, Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. There will be an address by Miss Beatrice Weller on "Art in Education." It will be a chalk talk.

TO UNVEIL VON STEUBEN STATUE ON WEDNESDAY

Several German-Americans from this city will make the trip to Washington, D. C., on Wednesday, to witness the unveiling of the statue of Baron von Steuben, an American Revolutionary hero. General Friedrich Wilhelm von Steuben, a direct descendant of the American patriot, has cabled his inability to be present. Special rates for the round trip have been quoted by the railroads and it is likely that 10,000 Germans, including many of the singing societies will be present. Frank Linke will be one of the representatives from this city.

Newark will send 125 singers; Jersey City, 140; New York, 320; Philadelphia, 1,000 singers, members of Turn Vereins and others. Frank Linke will represent the German-Americans of this city. The musical features will be on an imposing scale. Arrangements are being made for a mammoth chorus of 5,000 voices, which will sing Kreutzer's "This is the Lord's Own Day;" Kalliwado's "The German Song," and the "Star-Spangled Banner."

The dedication will occur at 2:30 p. m., Wednesday afternoon. A great parade will form part of the day's program and a huge banquet will be held in the New Willard Wednesday night. President William H. Taft will be among the speakers and other men of National renown will be heard.

The monument has been erected at a cost of $50,000 and is one of the finest, if not the superior of any in the Capital City. It was sculptured by Albert Jaegers.

OSTERGALAND ROMANCE CULMINATES IN WEDDING

In the presence of a gathering of friends numbering fifty in all, Miss Anna Samuelson and Bernhardt Gelberg, both of this city, were married Saturday night at the home of Fred Van Eps., of Netherwood avenue. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John Estlund, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church.

Miss Samuelson was attired in white satin and carried bride roses. She was attended by Miss Gunela Gelberg, sister of the groom. Victor Thuren acted as best man. The bride was given away by John Gjetelsen, an intimate friend. While the bridal party was assembling, the wedding march was rendered by George Peer.

Following the ceremony a reception was held during which refreshments were served. At its conclusion Mr. and Mrs. Gerberg left for their new home at 404 East Fourth street. The groom is employed as a foreman at the Rushmore factory. Both he and his bride are natives of Ostergaland, Sweden, and their wedding is the result of a romance commenced in that place. They received a large number of presents from friends.

LID DOWN AT DUNELLEN

Only One Violation of the Sunday Closing Law on its First Enforcement.

PETER RATTI KEEPS OPEN.

Sold a Dozen Oranges and Is Fined $10 By Mayor Sandford—Will Make It a Test Case.

The Sunday closing ordinance or "blue law," as it is popularly termed, went into effect at Dunellen yesterday, and as a result one arrest was made. Peter Ratti, a fruit dealer, sold a dozen oranges to a customer and was haled before Mayor William S. Sanford. His Honor imposed a fine of $10 and when Ratti refused to pay it he was thrust into a cell. He declared he would rot there before he handed over the money but his wife became nervous and produced the amount. There were no other violations of the ordinance so far as known, although one fruit dealer kept open house for the ostensible sale of coffe and sandwiches.

The closed Sunday ordinance was passed by the Dunellen Council at the November meeting and it is said to have been introduced as the result of a quarrel between Mayor Sanford and Ratti over the payment of street sprinkling assessments. The executive told the fruit dealer he would have to pay a certain amount and the latter demurred. It is alleged that His Honor was considerably upset and declared that something might happen. At any rate, the ordinance was passed, shutting up the barber shops and prohibiting the sale of fruits, candies, ice cream and even cigars on the Sabbath.

Ratti closed his store at sundown Friday night and did not open until sundown Saturday. The curtains were lowered on the front windows yesterday morning as a further precaution. The place, however, seemed to be the only one picked out for special surveillance and Marshal James Benson was detailed to watch it. The proprietor ordered him out. After the oranges had been sold, the marshal came back and told Ratti the mayor wanted to see him at the borough hall. There was no warrant exhibited or any statement made as to why he was wanted. He complied with the request and was then told he had violated the law, the fine being imposed immediately. After his release following the payment by his wife he sent for William G. DeMeza, of this city, to act as his counsel. On the advice of the latter he did not sell anything else during the day.

In conversation with a Daily Press reporter today, Mr. DeMeza said that the case would be carried to the last resort to prove that Ratti had acted within his rights. The fact that his place was closed from Friday to Saturday night complies with a Sabbath observance irrespective of his religious belief. Beyond this, he said, Mayor Sanford had set aside all legal restraint in acting as complainant, prosecutor and judge. No official has a right to have anything to do with a case in which he is interested. Before Marshal Benson invited Ratti out, the lawyer continued, Mr. Sanford requested Constable Robert L. Peirce to make the arrest, but the latter refused to unless provided with a warrant. The counselor declared that Ratti would open for business next Sunday and that if his business was interfered with the officials would strike an unexpected snag.

More Join Church.

There was a noble gathering of members at Trinity Reformed church yesterday morning, there being a total of twenty-four new members in all. Five were by letter and nineteen by confession. Of the latter number sixteen were young men from the Sunday-school, and it was an impressive sight as they stood before the large congregation and were received into membership. It was very gratifying to the superintendent and teachers of the Sunday-school and to the pastor, to see such a large accession to the church roll.

Rev. Dr. Nash Preached.

Rev. Dr. Charles E. Nash, a retired Baptist clergyman, now residing at Watchung, preached at the First Baptist church, yesterday morning, for Rev. Dr. Chambliss, who is detained at home by illness. He also conducted the communion service at which time five new members were received, including Dr. Nash and his family. Last night, H. W. Herrman occupied the pulpit. His subject was "The Story of An Eye Witness."

Rasores Meeting.

The Rasores will meet tomorrow at the home of Mrs. W. W. Myers, of Watchung avenue; subject, "Charles Dudley Warner."

FUNERAL TOMORROW OF EDGAR STELLE BROKAW

Edgar Stelle Brokaw, who died Saturday at his home, 122 High Point avenue, Weehawken Heights, was a former resident of this city and well-known here. He had been in failing health for a long time, having sustained a paralytic stroke a few years ago. Mr. Brokaw was a carpenter by trade, but for several years was sexton of the Park Avenue Baptist church, of which he and his family were members.

Before leaving Plainfield the family resided in a flat over Nagle's drug store. Mr. Brokaw is survived by a wife, three sons and a daughter. He was also a brother to John I. Brokaw, of East Front street; Mrs. John Lant, of West Third street; Mrs. Abram VanCleef, of Elm place, and Mrs. David Miller, of Westfield.

Funeral services will be held this evening from the late home and the burial will be at Westfield tomorrow.

MRS. ALICE B HOFFMAN, LONG ILL, PASSES AWAY

Mrs. Alice B. Hoffman, wife of Peter F. Hoffman, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matheau B. Overlack, died at 10:40 o'clock last night at her home, 22 Duer street, following an illness of over a year with tubercular trouble. Everything possible was done to restore the young woman to health and strength, but to no purpose. She fought bravely against the ravages of the disease.

Mrs. Hoffman was born in Cambridgeport, Mass., twenty-two years ago and had been a resident of Plainfield about four years. Two years ago she was married. She is survived by her parents, a ten-months' old daughter, Doris; three brothers, Max, Bernhard and Arthur Overlack; also two sisters, Mrs. Bernardine Getchius and Mrs. Helen King. The brothers and sisters reside in Newark.

The funeral service will be held from the late home Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock and the burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

MRS. EDDY, SCIENCE CULT FOUNDER, DEAD

Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, who always insisted upon being called the 'discoverer and founder' of Christian Science, died at her splendid mansion on Beacon street, in the Chestnut Hill section of the city of Netwon, Mass., at 10:45 o'clock Saturday night, aged 89 years. Death was due to an attack of pneumonia, from which the aged woman suffered about a week or ten days, in the opinion of Medical Examiner George L. West, of Newton Centre, who was called yesterday afternoon and viewed the body.

Alfred Farlow, chief press agent for the church of which Mrs. Eddy was the head, said yesterday afternoon that it was simply a case of old age but last night after being hectored by the reporters, he gave out what the medical examiner had put upon the death certificate. These words were "natural causes, contributory cause probably being pneumonia."

For more than a week Mrs. Eddy had been ailing, or, as a Christian Scientist put it, "had been in error."

FINED TWENTY DOLLARS; SENTENCE SUSPENDED.

Tomm Henderson, colored, had a fine of $20 suspended over him this morning by City Judge William N. Runyon, for causing a disturbance at the home of Mary Jones, also colored, of Plainfield avenue, on Saturday night.

Henderson said he was not drunk although the complaint reads so. He declared with apparent sincerity that he cannot drink as much as he used to because the "moon don't seem to fit in just right now." Judge Runyon warned him to have less to do with the whiskey and the moon would be all right and keep on shining just the same.

Funeral of Mrs. Young.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Young, wife of Leonard Young, was held at the home of her brother, Henry Bohl, of Arlington avenue, yesterday afternoon. The service was conducted by Rev. Charles L. Goodrich and burial was made in Hillside cemetery. The pall bearers were George Kirch, Henry Bohl, William Bohl and A. W. Zimmerman, the last named of Elizabeth.

Dr. D. C. Adams and son, Corra, or Grove street, and R. F. R. Huntsman, of East Front street, are duck hunting in Virginia.

YANKEE CIRCUS FROST

Company Disbands and Members are Stranded After Fiasco.

DIDN'T KNOW THEIR PARTS.

Theatre Management Refund Money of Advance Sale of Seats—Help Some to Get Out of Town.

Fred Jacobs, D. F. Worth and F. M. Sage, theatrical men, brought to this city on Saturday a company of young men and women who had been extensively advertised as the "Great Yankee Circus" troupe. It was their intention to give Plainfielders two performances of the famous play, "A Yankee Circus," but they didn't get far beyond the experimental stage because Manager Harry Sanderson would not permit his patrons to be buncoed out of their good coin. He never has and never will.

When the curtain went up for the first act of the matinee performance the stage looked like a rehearsal of a one-act comedy without the comedy parts in evidence. The actors stood around with manuscripts in their hands and appeared to be scared. Nobody knew his or her part and it became at once evident that the whole thing was of the kind of farce not relished by theatre-goers and consequently non grata to the owners of the house.

Mr. Sanderson promptly had the show taken off and the company was disbanded, some of them taking advantage of Mr. Sanderson's offer of care fare home to New York, while others remained over to take in the sights of the city. It is not recorded that any of them went hungry. Many seats had been sold for the evening performance, but when the holders of tickets arrived at the theatre their money was promptly refunded to them and they went away disappointed.

This is the first time that such a fraud has been perpetrated upon Mr. Sanderson and he will take care that it will not be repeated. Those who witnessed the preliminary part of the "circus" on Saturday afternoon declared it to be the "limit" for crudity. It was said that Wolf, one of the proprietors of the show, belongs in Paterson, and his partners, Jacobs and Sage, are Newarkers. Several of the young people connected with the show were still in town this morning, but they will be helped to get away today. Mr. Sanderson was probably the most disguisted of those who saw the show and as he is envious of his reputation as a theatrical man he felt "sore" clean through.

PLAINFIELDERS ATTEND BAPTISMAL SERVICES.

John Console, of this city, and Mrs. Antonio Cerchiaro, of New York city, took part in the baptism of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jannuzzi's infant daughter at St. Joseph's church, Bound Brook, yesterday afternoon. The ceremonies were performed by Rev. W. F. Dittrich, pastor of the church. A reception followed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jannuzzi, where an elaborate supper was served. Among those present were Raffaele Pizzo and son, Joseph Pizzo and family.

During the afternoon music was rendered by an orchestra. Those who attended the parents and their infant were Antonio Cerchiaro, Frank Jannuzzi, Pasquale Capano, Joseph Capano and John Console. MACHINE WRECKED, OCCUPANT UNHURT.

A. J. Williams, of the borough, while returning from Murray Hill, this morning, with his father, in his Buick automobile, met with an accident which wrecked the machine. He was running through Berkeley Heights, when the steering gear broke, and the car ran into a tree on Plainfield avenue, snapping the axle, ripping off one of the front wheels and the running board.

Mr. Williams and his father were thrown out of the car, escaping with a few bruises and scratches. William Jeffery, Jr., happened along at the time, and he took the injured pair to Scotch Plains, where arrangements were made to bring the disabled automobile home.

Violated Ordinance.

Paul Richter, of the East End, was arrested for shooting within the city limits yesterday and when arraigned this morning in police court was remanded in charge of his mother until next Friday morning.

Miss Minnie Brown, of Jersey City, has returned home after spending a few days with friends here.

PILLAR OF FIRE RECRUIT TO BE DEPORTED BY GOV'T.

Because she is alleged to be under the legal age, Lillian Maude Allen, an English girl who arrived in this country on Friday last with but $9 in her possession, is liable to be deported. What causes interest in the above facts is that Miss Allen came to this country intending to join the Pillar of Fire colony at Bound Brook and become one of its missionaries.

According to the story she told the immigration commissioners in New York she was converted to the belief of the sect some time ago at her home town near London, and determined to come to this part of the world to perfect her study of the sect's beliefs and customs so as to eventually return to England and endeavor to convert others.

Miss Allen declared yesterday that her father had made untrue reports of her. Her looks belied the accusation that she was suffering from tuberculosis. She is a rosy cheeked maiden and comely and appears to be above the ordinary in intelligence.

Yesterday afternoon, when it was decided that the young woman should be reported, two members of the sect immediately declared their intention of securing legal advice and appealing to Washington for a decision of the case. They claim that Miss Allen has ample funds to permit her to take care of herself and believe it is only the importunities of the girl's father which are causing the authorities to act in opposition to the wishes of the young woman.

PAUL DIETRICH INJURED IN HUNT CLUB CHASE

Four of the riders with the Watchung Hunt Club on its weekly chase, Saturday, received bad falls, and one of them, Paul Dietrich, of New York, upon "LaPoloma," the seasoned hunter, went off and broke a bone in his hand, which required the services of a physician. Mr. Dietrich was not able to finish. The hounds were met at the old Brass Kettle Inn, Scotch Plains, the scent being found on the Jarvis farm. From that point the chase led over the hills back of Westfield, through Mountainside, over the mountains to the "Deserted Villge," where a check was held.

Just before the check was made, four horses tried to negotiate a stiff four rail fence up a hill and went down. Those who went off were Paul Dietrich, Peter Hauck, Jr., W. H. Wildey and Huntsman Henry Watkins, and all were badly shaken up. Mr. Wildey was upon "Sunshine;" Mr. Hauck rode "Virginia," while Huntsman Watkins rode "Jersey Lily."

The scent was again picked up on the Ackerman estate and the going to the finish on the Fullerton farm was extremely trappy, requiring good judgment on the part of horses and riders from going down. Those who finished were Rufus C. Finch, M. F. H.; Edward Finch, E. P. Newall, C. F. Wildey, Jr., Fred Alpers, W. H. Wildey, C. W. Fisk, C. E. S. Bellows and Huntsman Henry Watkins.

ELKS LODGE OF SORROW

Former U. S. Senator Towne Delivers Address on Immortality.

JUDGE WM. RUNYON EULOGIST.

Rev. G. A. Warner Delivers Invocation and Benediction—Superb Music Heard by Great Crowd at the Theatre.

More than fifteen hundred people gathered in the Plainfield theatre, last evening, to attend the memorial services of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., and many others who could not gain entrance were turned away. The theatre was literally packed when the services began. Owing to a mishap to the train which brought former Senator Charles A. Towne here he was late in arriving, necessitating a re-arrangement of the program. Judge Runyon delivered the eulogy before the oration, but otherwise the program was completed as originally intended.

Exalted Ruler, Joseph Noonan presided and opened the ceremonies by declaring the objects of the organization and calling upon the officers to rehearse their obligations. A finely rendered chorus, "Friend After Friend Departs," followed. An orchestral selection was followed by the opening ode, "For Auld Lang Syne," and Rev. George A. Warner delivered the invocation. Miss Millie Potter and Frank Croxton, soloists, of New York city, sang, the former rendering with splendid feeling and effect "Abide With Me" and Mr. Croxton sang "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" with much expression. Afterwards Miss Potter and Mr. Croxson sang a duet, "The Lord is My Light."

Judge Runyon's eulogy was a magnificent effort. Each one of the seven departed members was remembered in words of feeling and respect and so impressive were his words that many were moved to tears and emotion was visible on the faces of hundreds in the audience. The members memorialized were: Daniel Detweiler, Herbert S. Taylor, Robert L. Thomae, Olin L. Jenkins, Herbert B. Brooks, Charles C. Burnet and Maze Edwards, all of whom passed away previous to 1910. There were no deaths of members in 1910.

Mr. Towne's address was an erudite exposition of reasons for human faith in immortality. No such speech has even been heard here before and hundreds departed from the meeting profoundly impressed with the belief that there is another life beyond this which has been prepared by an omnipotent God who will reveal the the hidden mysteries of it all in His own good time.

Mr. Towne took a text "In My Father's House Are Many Mansions" and declared that the existence of these houses are not less a fact than a hope. "The words of the Master predicates," he said, "a sincere belief in a future life or a continuity of life. I come, not as one to immortalize the departed Brothers, but to strengthen the whole body of you in the faith in a future life.

"My acceptance of the fact of mimortality is not based merely on what my parents installed into me as a boy nor yet is it alone the innate hope which every human has, but it is what I have found in a profound study of the philosophy of what I would term a scientific demonstration. There are three attitudes taken by the question presented to us, each of which must have its own separate interpretation. First, there is the sufficiency of phenomena. This is found to begin in the anthropological period which produced the 'exaggerated man' and in which polytheism prevailed. When there was worshiped a god for every different emotion of the mind. Second, materialism, in which science predominated and where men tried to find a mechanical equivalent for conscience and lastly a period in which Science and Religion became involved in a war of words. Of course, it is impossible to make a scientific demonstration of immortality, but the cause of the growing flower, the color of its petals, the magnificent feats of nature postulate a supernal power.

"The conscience needs no demonstration. It is immediate and as it changes and grows you have knowledge. We can know nothing of the universe except what comes to us through our six senses, therefore, there must be a Power that directs and sensitizes the vibrations which impress themselves upon our brains. Evolution as championed by Darwin is marvellously charged by Science. While the immensity of God's universe staggers the mind, it brings the majesty of the infinitude of creation and premises the mansion of which I have spoken."

Mr. Towne followed the evolution of man from the "Cave" man of thousands of years ago to the man of today with his cultivated mind and said that this was a part of the Creator's great plan which leads grad-

Trenton, Dec. 5.—The continued growth of the building and loan association movement in New Jersey is shown in the annual report of Banking and Insurance Commissioner Vivian M. Lewis. BASEBALL STARS WANT TO BE MADE UMPIRES.

When the National Baseball League meets in New York December 13 the question of adding new umpires to the organization's staff will be given keen attention, according to President Murphy, of the Chicago Cubs, when he returned to his office for duty Saturday. There has been much complaint within the last season of several of President Lynch's officials, and efforts are to be made by the different club owners to have a change if possible. The change is feasible if President Lynch wants to give several new men a trial for the position. There are five applications in now for a tryout on the National League staff, and they have been made by former ball players who, if given the opportunity, are more than likely to earn a regular berth. These men are Henie Peitz, Carl Lundgren, Bill Gleason, Jack Doyle and Fred Tenney.

The applicants for positions on President Lynch's staff have been connected with baseball for many years, and if their experience is any criterion they should have no difficulty in "making good" if given the chance. Since Lundgren joined the major league ranks he has umpired numerous games, and Frank Chance once made the statement that the former southpaw twirler would make a good official. Gleason has a "scrappy" temperament and probably would assume the same aggressive attitude as "Hank" O'Day. Fred Tenney, Doyle and Peitz are known to the baseball fans, and although they might not have had any experience in calling balls or strikes, are fit to be given a chance.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

One of the most important musical comedies of recent years, "Three Twins," with the original New York company, will come to the Plainfield theatre, Tuesday night, December 13. A strong cast headed by Clifton Crawford, and a big singing chorus, mostly of fetching young girls, is provided by Manager Gaites. "Three Twins" has found instant favor wherever produced. The book is an adaption of the old farce "Incog." The story has to do with three men, not related, of whom two resemble each other closely, while the third makes a resemblance possible by a wig, beard and mustache. Tom Stanhope assumes the disguise to escape the importunities of a parent, who wants him to marry his ward. Tom selects as his disguise the likeness of a photograph of a man which he finds. Ludicrous complications follow. Mr. Crawford in the disguise of "Tom" contributes specialties.

Effingham Pinto In the Cast.

Effingham Pinto, of this city, who will appear here in the all-star cast supporting Henrietta Crosman in "The Duchess of Suds," originated the part of the young composer in "The Climax." He was also in the all-star cast of "Diplomacy." Mr. Pinto is one of the most prominent members of Miss Crosman's company and a young actor of rare ability.

A New $2 Counterfeit.

Christmas shoppers in Plainfield and other cities will do well to examine closely any two-dollar bills they may receive in change. A new counterfeit two-dollar silver certificate was discovered Saturday morning. Chief Wilkie believes that it is being widely circulated in Chicago and in it he recognizes the work of a counterfeiter who has given the Secret Service much trouble. The note is not a good one on close examination, but would easily deceive any one not accustomed to counterfeits.

THE CITY'S DISGRACE.

It strikes us that Consulting Health Officer Leon Thurlow in giving his views on the long agitated system of municipal collection and disposal of garbage and ashes was rather severe on village administration. We hold no brief for the hamlets but we protest against his reflection contained in his assertion that "The method of collecting this municipal waste today is what we might expect to find in a small country town." His statement that "In one respect, meaning the matter of garbage and ashes, Plainfield is sadly behind the times" is absolutely true. And it is a shameful disgrace to the community. It seems that it is an easy matter to appropriate hundreds and even thousands of dollars for investigations to find out what some man or set of men think of municipal ownership or consolidation, or to collect evidence of New York department stores selling liquors here, or to obtain such luxuries as brick pavements. But when it comes to doing something both practical and necessary as to protect public health and at the same time rid the city of such a spectacle as broken-down wagons hauling away refuse at private expense it appears to be another matter. Why, our councilmen are even giving their time to a serious discussion of the plan to install arc lights in the central part of the community at public expense. And yet, year after year, the Board of Health appeals in vain for something to be done on a really important matter.

"While all the cities about us have modern methods," said Mr. Thurlow, who is admittedly qualified to give an opinion, "we have broken-down wagons, horses and cans, the householder at the mercy of the licensed collector—who collects or not, when he pleases, and as he chooses—and finally the garbage fed to hogs and brought back to Plainfield in the form of pork." There he has, most mildly, stated the case. There are abundant reasons why this condition should not be tolerated in this or any other community making a pretense of being progressive. Mr. Thurlow gives three of them. First, he says, on account of the expense; secondly, on account of the inconvenience and discomfort to the residents, and thirdly, and most important of all, becaue of the possibilities of the spread of disease.

Mr. Thurlow estimates, and we think his figuring is correct, that the people who pay taxes and rightly expect that such things should be done by the municipality in return for such assessments, spend $25,000 or $35,000 annually for this work to be done by the licensed garbage collectors and ash carters. According to his estimate, this means that the average householder must pay out of his own pocket, in addition to his taxes, $12 or $15 a year for having something done himself that the city should do for him. "In Montclair this work," Mr. Thurlow says, "is done by five one-horse wagons and one two-horse wagon at a cost of $21,500; this includes the cost of disposal by burying in trenches—a cost of ninety-seven cents per capita. In other cities, this work is done at a cost per capita varying from seven to sixty cents; therefore I can see no reason why this work should not be done in Plainfield as cheaply as in other cities, which would certainly be a saving over what is now spent. The entire city could then be taken care of by six neat, modern, sanitary wagons, instead of the twenty or more now in use, which are for the most part, broken-down, unsanitary affairs."

We are glad to see that the newly organized Chamber of Commerce, which will be a power for good in the community, has considered the subject important enough to have it discussed by Mr. Thurlow at its first regular meeting. We hope that the matter will not be allowed to rest until the much desired improvement is brought about.

SALAVATION ARMY PLANS FOR CHRISTMAS CHEER.

Preparations are well under way at the Local Corps of the Salvation Army for their Christmas distribution of dinners, toys, and clothing for the local poor. For many years past hundreds have been cared for who otherwise would have had very little. This year the need being as great as ever, every effort will be put forth to surpass that of the past.

Contributions of money, toys, and warm underclothing for children and provisions are asked for. The officers and members of the Army from years of experience know who is needy and who is worthy and it is sincerely hoped that the necessary help will be sent for this worthy cause to insure its success. Applications for dinners, etc., will now be received at the local headquarters on East Second street.

Proctor's New Show.

Mack & Barron, in their funny skit, "A Smashup In Chinatown," will be one of the big laughs at Proctor's theatre, today. Ascott & Eddie, in "The Traveling Salesman and the Girl," is a bright sketch. Temple & Huff will present a burlesque singing comedy sketch, "Just For Two," introducing conversational duets and grand opera selections, and Clayton & Lennie, the "Happy Chappie and the English Hick," are clever comedians.

Fell From a Trolley.

Sadie Williams, colored, of Westfield, was too impatient last evening at 7:30 and as a result took a sudden seat in the street alongside a main line trolley car at Fifth street and Watchung avenue. Just as she was about to step off the car to go forward, where the conductor was talking with another man, the car started and Sadie was jostled off. ELKS' LODGE OF SORROW ually to perfection. Perfection to be attained in the life which is to follow.

"Development began with man's mind," declared Mr. Towne, "and it has proceeded along that line until the senses have been brought to such condition of infinitestimal conception that today we are not in ignorance of some of the purposes of God and we can read in the heavens the immensity of his greatness. Millions of worlds there are which are infinitely greater than ours. Is it impossible that God intends these other worlds for our habitation? No, it is the course of evolution after His own plan. Our great republic, greatest among nations, shows that the whole trend of evolution is away from the scientific and toward the spiritual. It is not the plain advancement of physical perfection, but the growth of the human soul. Science in its abstract sense is in consonance with Religion and we are warranted by every analogy of Science in believing that nothing is or can be destroyed and it is inconceivable to believe that life is destructible.

"Let us hope that some of you take this thought home with you and study the subject with the light you have had and I am sure that the result will not only gratify you but it will cause you to take the broad view that God has prepared the mansions for you in the eternity which is to follow."

Following Mr. Towne's oration the Elks' chorus sang Sullivan's "Lost Chord," Mr. Croxton singing the obligato. The audience joined in singing one verse of "Nearer My God to Thee" and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. George A. Warner followed by the singing of "Peace, Perfect Peace," by the Elks' chorus.

The music was under the direction of William E. MacClymont, who had trained the chorus of twenty male voices. Every number of the music was sung with magnificent expression and caused much favorable comment. Elks all over the country held similar ceremonies yesterday.

AN INFERNAL MACHINE.

Its Explosion In Bremerhaven Brought Death and Destruction, Killing One Hundred and Twenty-eight People.

The greatest fatality ever caused by an infernal machine is known as the Bremerhaven explosion, and it occurred near the end of 1875, when a fellow who called himself Thomas and was said to be an American took up his residence with his family in Bremen. His finances were at a low ebb, and to replenish them he conceived the idea of sending to America some worthless but highly insured packages of goods. By the same vessel he intended to ship an infernal machine, which was to have exploded a few days after the vessel had left port. The explosion occurred, however, just before the package was put on board, causing terrible loss of life.

Thomas, whose real name was said to be Alexander, charged his machine with nitroglycerin, which he had procured in America and purchased the clockwork and the case containing the machine in Germany. The hammer of the clockwork, which was to act in six days after leaving port, was to strike a blow of thirty pounds weight. In his confession later Thomas said that when testing the clockwork the hammer smashed a mahogany table.

He sent the contrivance to Bremerhaven to be shipped on the Mosel for New York via Southampton. He himself took passage to the latter port, where he had arranged to ship his cases of rubbish for New York. The Mosel was to leave Bremerhaven on Saturday, Dec. 11, and on that day the infernal machine was sent to the dock, which was crowded with porters, passengers and their friends. For some reason that has never been explained the heavy case slipped from the crane on to the wharf as it was being lifted up the ship's side, and the charge was instantly exploded. Death and destruction were dealt around, 128 men, women and children being instantly killed, while fifty-six others were terribly wounded.

Thomas was waiting on board the ship to receive his case and see it stowed away in the hold, but right after the explosion he went to his cabin, locked the door and shot himself in the head with a revolver.

He lingered for several days in the hospital and made a full confession before he died.—Exchange.

A CRATER TOWN.

Where the Inhabitants Build Ships Inside Extinct Volcanoes.

Saba, in the West Indies, is one of the most extraordinary places in the world. By courtesy it is called an island, but it is really nothing more than the summit of an extinct volcano sticking up out of the sea.

Inside the crater live the only inhabitants of Saba. They live there because there is nowhere else for them to live, the outside slopes being nearly as steep as the sides of a house.

The place belongs to Holland, and the people are all Dutch. Nevertheless they speak English as their native tongue. They call their crater town Bottom because it is situated on the top of a mountain.

Although surrounded on all sides by the sea, they often spend weeks without seeing it, for that involves a long climb up to the rim of the crater. Still less frequently do they touch salt water, because to do so they must, in addition, climb downward for a distance of 1,500 feet by a precipitous rock hewn path known as "the ladder."

It is, however, in regard to their staple industry that these Dutch people who speak English and who live aloft in a volcano in a summit city called Bottom reach the extreme of topsy-turveydom. One might imagine them making balloons or kites or, in fact, anything but what they do make, which is ships—not ocean going liners, but good, serviceable schooners and luggers, whose repute is great all over the Windward islands. The ships when finished have to be hauled up to the rim of the crater and then lowered over a precipice into the sea.—Exchange.

African Pygmies.

The pygmies of Africa, says Captain Guy Burrows in his "Land of the Pygmies," are masters in the art of hunting. They can kill even elephants with their little bows and arrows, blinding the animal first by shooting at its eyes. Once he is blinded they never leave him till he falls. A pygmy, I have no hesitation in saying, eats, as a rule, twice as much as will suffice a full grown man. He will take a stalk containing about sixty bananas, seat himself and eat them all at a meal, besides other food. Then he will lie and groan throughout the night until morning comes, when he is ready to repeat the operation.

Error of Judgment.

"I thought, count, you were a dead shot?"

"I am."

"And yet, though you said you would shoot your adversary through the heart, you hit him in the foot?"

"It was an error of judgment. I thought his heart was in his boots. It turned out to be in its right place."

Wouldn't Be Convinced.

"Bobson thinks he plays a good game of bridge."

"Yes, he does. I spent $27 the other night trying to disabuse him of the idea—and failed."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Plenty of It.

"Judging from the amount of it killed in this settlement," remarked a visitor in Plunkville, "I persoom there must be a bounty on time."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

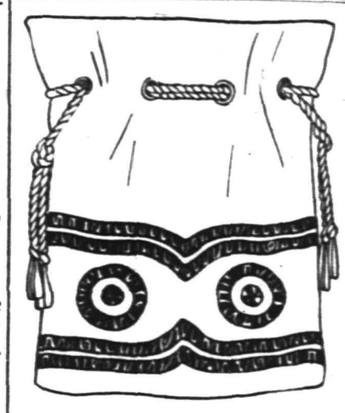
SERVICEABLE LINEN BAGS.

Red, Blue and Yellow Are Favorite Colors For Designs on These Most Useful Articles.

An old fashioned garden bouquet in gayest colors on a simple linen bag and done in cross stitch marks the revival of an ancient idea in design and of a stitch that for many years has been considered more or less of the past.

The cream color of the linen background lends an old time softened effect to work which might otherwise be too gay in color. Reds, blues and yellows, although rather crude, melt into the creamy tone as they would not upon white and seem to ask you to consider the perfection of such needlework revivals.

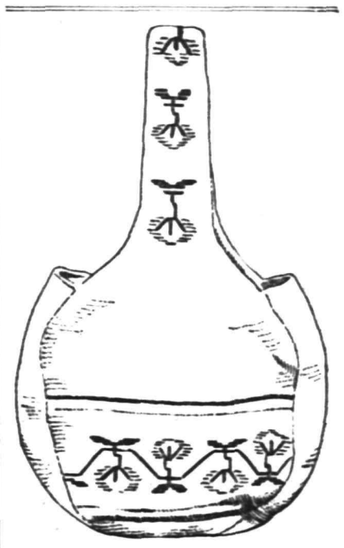


Cross stitch appears again on a knitting bag so shaped that it may be carried over the arm. Revival is here too. The keynote of the idea for an old, old development of the knitters' favorite bag was on these lines. As to its design, it, too, is old, as are all cross stitch patterns, but in this piece of work a coarse basket surface supplies the size for the stitches without the basting on of canvas through which to work.

A heavy crash bag embroidered with flame colored linen floss of surprising coarseness shows several new touches for the lover of the bag serviceable.

The cord in itself is fascinating in its durability, being hand twisted and knotted from many strands of coarse raveling pulled from the material like the bag. Then the eyelets through which it is drawn are the interesting work of one who understood the combination of the durable with the ornamental.

These eyelets have been made round, large holes pierced with a stiletto and surrounded, before being worked, with a brass ring. This, buttonholed over with linen thread to match the crash, resulted in the strongest possible eyelets.



Of the making of bags there is indeed no end. The time has not yet come when the fancy workbag, the sewing bag or any one of the long list of useful pretty bags fails to interest those who make them as gifts or those fortunate enough to accept them, and with gratitude.

Bordered Bows.

This is what one milliner calls the big bows on many of the new hats, usually of white outlined with black. The bows themselves are frequently of lace or net and are edged with narrow pipings of satin. Sometimes the satin forms a lining which projects like a border all around the lace. Occasionally white edging black is seen also.

For most of the little ills which come upon overworked and worrying men and women the best remedies are good air, dietary properties, healthful exercise, frequent baths and occasional recreation and rest.

The temperature of the daily bath must be regulated by each person according to his feelings. A brief cold bath need not be above 80 degrees Fahrenheit for a healthy man, nor should it run below 65 degrees.

Physical exercise to be valuable as a health builder should involve a sufficiently violent exertion of the body, as a whole, to increase the ordinary strength and frequency of the heart beats and deepen the breathing.

The Riverman

By STEWART EDWARD WHITE

Copyright, 1908, by the McClure Company Copyright, 1907, 1908, by Stewart Edward White

"But we can hold her!" cried Orde in desperation.

"It's no use, boy," said old Carlin; "it's sure death."

"Sure death!" Orde laughed bitterly. "All right; sure death, then. Isn't there a man in this crowd that will tackle this sort of sure death with me?"

"I'm with you." "And me," said North and the Rough Red in a breath.

"Good!" cried Orde. "You, too, Johnny Sims and Purdy and Jimmy Powers? Bully boys!"

"I reckon you'll need the tug," said Marsh.

A dozen more of Orde's personal following volunteered.

"We've got to close that opening first thing," said he. "Marsh, tow the pile driver up there."

The opening was to be closed by piles driven in groups of sixteen bound together by chains. The clumps were connected one to the other by a system of boom logs and ropes to interpose a continuous barrier. The pile driver placed the clumps, while the tug attended to the connecting defenses.

"Now, boys," said Orde as his last word, "if she starts to go save yourselves the best way you can. Never mind the driver. Stay on top."

Slowly the tug and her consort nosed up through the boiling water.

"Work fast!" Orde called to the men on the pile driver. "If we can close the opening before those Redding logs hit us we may be able to turn them into our new channel."

He did not add that if the opening were not closed before the jam broke, as break it would in a very few moments, the probabilities were that both pile driver and tug would be destroyed. Every man knew that already.

Tom North ordered a pile placed in the carriage. The hammer descended. The work went forward as rapidly as possible. Four times the jam shrugged and settled, but four times it paused on the brink of discharge. Three of the clumps had been placed and bound, and fifteen piles of the last clump had been driven.

"One more pile!" breathed Orde.

The hammer ran smoothly to the top and fell. A half dozen times more it ripped. Then heavy chains were thrown around the winch, and the steam power began to draw the clumps together.

"Done!" cried Tom North.

North unmoored, and the driver dropped back with the current. The tug churned forward to accomplish the last duty of binding the defenses together by means of chains and cables. Two men leaped to the floating booms. Orde and the Rough Red set about the task. They worked from either end toward the middle. When they met Orde ordered Red aboard the tug.

"I'll tie this one, Jimmy," said he.

Aboard the tug all was tense preparation. In the engine room Harvey, his hand on the throttle, stood ready to throw her wide open at the signal. Armed with sharp axes, two men prepared to cut the mooring lines on a sign from the Rough Red. They watched his upraised hand. When it should descend their axes must fall.

Orde folded a knot. Upstream the jam settled deliberately forward, cutting a clump of piles like straw.

"She's coming!" cried the Rough Red.

"Give me every second you can," cried Orde, making the last turns.

The mass toppled slowly, fell into the swift current and leaped with a roar.

"Jump!" the Rough Red cried, and his arm descended.

Orde leaped blindly for the rail, where he was seized and dragged aboard by the Rough Red. The axes fell; Marsh whirled over the wheel; Harvey threw open his throttle. The tug sprang from its leash like a hound. And behind the barrier the logs, tossing and tumbling, the white spray flying before their onslaught, beat in rain against the barrier, like raging wild beasts whose prey has escaped.

Chapter 34

ORDE now took steps to deflect into the channel recently dredged to Stearn's bayou the mass of the logs racing downstream from Redding. He estimated that he had still two hours or so in which to do the work.

This at first he succeeded in doing, and very successfully as affecting the pressure on the jam below. To the crew working in the channel dredged through to Stearn's bayou the affair was that of driving a rather narrow and swift stream, only exaggerated. A large proportion of the timbers found their way into the bayou. Those that continued on down the river could hardly have much effect on the jam. As yet only the advance of the big jam had arrived at the dredged channel.

The Most Industrious Store in Newark---The City of Industry

An Absolutely Fireproof Holiday Store.

Homage Paid to Santa Claus---King of Toyland

By Tens of Thousands of Tiny Visitors to This Great Storehouse of Gift Things.

"Ho, Ho, Ho! Here they come; some hand in hand with mother or big sister, others in groups, and some little wanderers all alone—hundreds of 'em, thousands of 'em—yea, tens of thousands," enthusiastically exclaimed jolly old Santa Claus, beaming with merriment as he greeted each little visitor Saturday at his headquarters, and presented them with little playthings for remembrance. "My!" said Santa, "Newark must have grown amazingly since last I was here—look at the children—little mischiefs; there are so very many, many of them, and it seems that all the children in town come here to see me."

And along they trudged—big boys and little boys, big girls and little girls, wee kiddies—all looking wonderingly, but with a knowing look in their eyes as jolly old Santa Claus told them to be good and he'd surely remember them on Christmas morning. There shouldn't be a child in this part of Jersey deprived of a sight of this real, living Santa Claus. Bring them in, bless their souls, and let them see Santa, and let them enjoy Toyland, for how can the little ones know what they want on Christmas morning unless they see this greatest of toy stores, where everything is assembled that the little ones could possibly wish for.

"We can't keep this up when the main body hits us!" Orde panted to Jim Denning. "We'll have to do more pile driver work."

He made a rapid excursion to the Boom camp, whence he returned with thirty or forty men.

"Here, boys," said he, "you can keep these logs moving in this channel for a couple of hours."

Orde now returned to the jam, where, on the pile driver, the tugs and the booms he set methodically to strengthening the defenses.

But shortly the water began to rise again, this time fairly by leaps. For the hundredth time the frail wooden defenses opposed to millions of pounds were tested to the very extreme of their endurance. The network of chains and cables tightened, drawing ever nearer the snapping point. Suddenly, almost without warning, the situation had become desperate.

He shook his fist against the menacing logs

And for the first time Orde completely lost his poise and became fluently profane. He shook his fist against the menacing logs; he apostrophied the river, the high water, the jam, the deserters, Newmark and his illness, ending in a general anathema against any and all streams, logs and floods.

"Well," said Tom North, "he's good and mad this time."

At the dredged channel Orde saw the rivermen standing idle, and, half blind with anger, he burst upon them. Then he stopped short and stared.

Square across the dredged channel and completely blocking it lay a single span of an iron bridge. Behind it the logs had, of course, piled up in a jam, which dammed back the water.

"Where in h— did that drop from?" cried Orde.

"Come down on top the jam," explained a riverman.

Orde, suddenly fallen into a cold rage, stared at the obstruction, both fists clinched at his side.

"That about settles it," said Welton.

"Settle!" cried Orde. "I should think not!"

Welton smiled quaintly.

"Don't you know when you're licked?"

"Licked, h—!" said Orde. "We've just begun to fight."

"What can you do?"

"I'll blow her up with powder."

"Ever try to to blow up iron?"

"There must be some way."

"Oh, there is," replied Welton, "of course—take her apart bolt by bolt and nut by nut."

"Send for the wrenches, then!" snapped Orde.

"But it would take days. It would be too late. It would do no good."

"Perhaps not," interrupted Orde, "but it will be doing something, anyway. Look here, Welton, are you game? If you'll get that bridge out in two days I'll hold the jam."

"You can't hold that jam two hours."

"That's my business. Will you send for lanterns and wrenches and keep this crew working?"

"I will," said Welton.

During the next two days the old scenes were all reilved, with back of them the weight of the struggle that had gone before. Pines belonging to divers and protesting owners were felled and sharpened. Even the inviolate government supply was commandeered.

Then all at once, as though a faucet had been turned off, the floods slackened.

"They've opened the channel," said Orde dully. His voice sounded to himself very far away. He felt himself moving in strange and distorted surroundings. He heard himself repeating to each of a number of wavering, gigantic figures the talismanic words that had accomplished the dissolution of the earth for himself, "They've opened the channel." At last he felt hard planks beneath his feet, and, shaking his head with an effort, he made out the pilothouse of the Sprite and a hollow eyed man leaning against it. "They've opened the channel, Marsh," he repeated. "I guess that'll be all." Then quite slowly he sank to the deck, sound asleep.

* * * * * * *

When Newmark left, in the early stages of the jam, he gave scant thought to the errand on which he had ostensibly departed. Whether or not Orde got a supply of piles was to him a matter of indifference. His hope, or, rather, preference, was that the jam should go out, but he saw clearly that Orde, blinded by the swift action of the struggle, was as yet unable to perceive. Even should the riverman succeed in stopping the jam the extraordinary expenses incidental to the defense and to the subsequent salvaging, untangling and sorting would more than eat up the profits of the drive. Orde would then be forced to ask for an extension of time on his notes.

On arriving in Monrovia he drove to his own house. To Mallock he issued orders.

"Go to the office and tell them I am ill," said he, "and then hunt up Mr. Heinzman. I want to see him immediately."

The German entered rather red and breathless, surprised to find Newmark at home.

BAD MAN AMMON GOES GUNNING FOR RELATIVES

Thomas Ammon, a borough resident, went on a little spree Saturday night. He got pretty well intoxicated and the more he drank the madder he got because his wife had dared to go to the home of her folks on upper Duer street to spend the evening. Finally he sallied up to the house with a shot gun and carried on awful peevish like. He said if his wife didn't come out he'd either plug the front door full of lead or plug himself, he wasn't sure which, and the family thought he meant what he said and telephoned the police. Marshal Kiernan responded, immediately putting a quietus on the bad man by taking away his weapon. The family said they could handle him after that and if the officer would please go away everything would turn out all right. The marshal complied, but had hardly reached headquarters when he was called back. He was prepared to arrest the disturber, but again the family demurrred and he left after giving Ammon a good scolding.

There was no further call after that and it is inferred that the family asserted itself.

NUMBERS FOR HOUSES

Ordinance Passed Last Night on Third Reading May be Amended.

MANY PETITIONS RECEIVED.

Objections Made at Common Council Hearing on Kensington Avenue Extension Plans and Action is Deferred.

During a period of suspension of regular business at the December meeting of the Common Council, last night, a public hearing was granted on the proposed ordinance to extend Kensington avenue, the necessary affadavits having been filed. E. B. Sovereign, who owns considerable property on Park avenue and Randolph road, objected to the improvement as proposed, claiming that it would be detrimental to his property interests. He said that he did not want to stop "the wheels of progress," but would like to see some changes made in the plans to improve this thoroughfare. It was decided to lay the matter over to December 19.

In connection with the ordinance providing for the numbering of residences throughout the city, which was adopted on third reading, a communication was received from A. E. Hoagland, in which he suggested that the council compel residents to place their house numbers on the top riser of the porch where they can be seen plainly. It was a question, however, in the minds of the members whether they would have the right to designate the place for numbers, yet some were of the opinion that if the city could compel residents to number their houses they could specify the point where the numbers are to be placed. It was finally decided to let the matter of placing the numbers go over to the first of the year and amend the ordinance, if desired.

Residents of Monroe avenue petitioned for lights on that thoroughfare, claiming that that section is particularly dark, and now that a colony of Italians is located in the neighborhood, more light is desired. The matter was referred, and later the motion that the petition be granted was withdrawn for the reason that Monroe avenue is not an accepted street and it was thought unwise to place lights there until it has been accepted.

A petition from F. E. Mygatt for lights on Spooner avenue, between Seventh and Eighth streets, was referred, as was also a communication from the Union County Board of Taxation, referreing a number of petitions. The Public Service Corporation informed the council that it has erected several new lights as ordered.

Extension of time to July 15, 1911, was granted to John McNab, and an extension of time to May 30, 1911, was granted to Mobus & Burke, to complete some macadamizing work now under contract. A letter was received from the secretary of state instructing the city clerk to send him the voting machines in this city.

Permission was granted to Jacob Sachar to remove a small dwelling from Fourth and Church stretes to 240 East Fourth street, a distance of 200 feet, Mr. Sachar agreeing to protect the city from all damages. Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported the granting of sixteen permits during the past month.

Overseer of the Poor A. D. Ayers reported outside expenses of $192.21 and alms house expenses of $183.61, for the past month. Horace Adams, clerk of the District court, reported receipts of $189.08 for the past month, the expenditures being $167.10. These reports were filed.

Mr. Buxton offered several resolutions, which were adopted. One providing for meeting a $5,000 street improvement bond, which is done as the taxes are received. Another provided for the division of several amounts aggregating $22,441.13 the same to be charged to the contingent fund. Still another resolution provided for the payment of $130,572.22 to the county collector to cover Plainfield's share of the State, county and school tax. Another resolution called for an appropriation of $381.43 to be credited to the fire fund and charged to the congingent fund, the rate fixed for the coming year being not quite sufficient to meet the full quota allowed the fire department.

Mr. Holt reported back a petition referring to the keeping of chickens in the city excepting that it was a matter for the consideration of the Board of Health. Another petition asking for the appointment of a sealer of weights and measures was also reported back, Mr. Holt stating that he understood the Legislature would enact a law this winter which will probably cover the point in question.

Miss Zoe Bateman Instructs Foreigners at Lincoln School.

HAS GRATIFYING RESULTS.

Class Outgrows Room at Y. M. C. A. —Education Board Furnishes One—Many Pupils Attend.

When the Board of Education gave its official sanction last night to the use of a room in the Lincoln school by the Young Men's Christian Association there was revealed a phase of the movement for better education which has not been publicly announced and which has been going on for over a year with a large measure of success.

Under the tutelage of Miss Zoe Bateman, of this city, classes in English for Italians, Poles, Hungarians, Danes, Germans and Greeks have been conducted and with gratifying results all along the line. Miss Bateman has given three evenings each week during the school season to the work began a year or more ago in the Y. M. C. A. building, but as the teaching these foreigners. As the work grew the room became overcrowded and it was necessary to seek other quarters. Herbert E. Parker, general secretary of the association sought and obtained permission for the use of the school room and for more than a month the room in the Lincoln school has been in use for the purpose.

Miss Bateman has the assistance of Pastor Baretty, of the Italian Mission as well as Albert Coletta, who is something of an English scholar, and whose work is of great value to Miss Bateman. Just at present Mr. Coletta is unable to be with the class, but will return to the work just as soon as his business permits.

The average attendance at these classes has been about twenty and as high as seventy have been enrolled at one time. The scheme had but a small beginning, but when the foreigners heard of the opportunity placed at their disposal to learn the language many took advantage of it and today are so far advanced that they can speak readily.

Miss Bateman said this morning that is was a revelation to her to see with what ease the foreigners remember what they are taught. Instances of where students would attend one or two meetings and then remain away for a time, were mentioned as proving the assertion that their memories are good, for when they would return after a week or two they were able to repeat understandingly what they had learned and appeared eagar to learn more.

PUBLIC SCHOOL PUPILS' TEETH IMPROVING

The Board of Education met last night in the usual place and transacted the usual routine business, all the members being present excepting Dr. Hedges. The Tax Collector reported having received during the month of November school funds to the amount of $4,513.72 and the custodian of school funds reported a balance on hand to November 30 of $21,534.54.

Reports were received from both medical and dental inspectors which showed that during the month 1,012 pupils had been examined by the doctors and 941 by the dental inspectors. The latter reported that conditions among the pupils had improved greatly since last spring when the first examinations were made. The pupils are giving more attention to their teeth and are improving in health in consequence. DEMOCRACY AND WOMEN

Miss Jordan, of Smith's Faculty, Says Ballot Would Lessen Women's Power.

OPPOSES EQUAL SUFFRAGE.

"Relation of Women to Ecomonics" Subject of Instructive Address Heard by Monday Afternoon Club.

In spite of yesterday's storm, a large audience gathered in the Hartridge School auditorium to listen to the lecture before the Monday Afternoon Club on "Democracy and Women," by Miss Mary A. Jordan, professor of English literature, Smith College. The lecture was the last in the course selected for club study on "The Relation of Women to Economics" and was against woman suffrage.

Miss Jordan said democracy at its worst was chaos come again; democracy at its best was the Kingdom of God come on the earth. In real democracy, she said, there was very high spiritual aristocracy that believed in the liberty, equality and fraternity of souls. Some people, she added, walk in spiritual slums though they live in high places. She considered democracy in five aspects, social, political, industrial, intellectual and religious. One practical misconception, she said, was the confounding of government with legislation. Government, she affirmed, was both better and worse than legislation.

She paid a very high tribute to the pioneers in the cause of Woman Suffrage, Anna Dickinson, Miss Mitchell, Julia Ward Howe and Susan B. Anthony, who worked so valiantly for education and intellectual progress and who gained their points without woman suffrage. Miss Jordan did not believe that the problems of democracy would be solved by giving the ballot to women. In practice, it would be the multiplication by two of time, expense and social energy. Economical problems, she said, are beyond legislation. The ballot to woman, she believed, would give her less influence than she now wields, when, without belonging to any organization or party, she can use her influence independently for any good end she may wish to promote.

An interesting discussion followed the lecture when Miss Jordan replied to the questions propounded by the audience.

BAPTIST MINISTERS CONVENE AT PARMLY MEMORIAL CHURCH

Rev. J. W. Musson, secretary, attended the semi-annual meeting of the Baptist Ministers' Association at the Parmly Memorial Baptist church, Jersey City, yesterday. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, who is ill, and Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire, who was away were unable to be present. Aside from the routine business, the feature was the presentation of a paper by Rev. Arthur S. Cole, the new pastor of the Rahway Baptist church, on the topic, "Christ's Use of the Old Testament."

An informal discussion followed the reading of the paper, there being a friendly difference of opinion expressed by the ministers. At noon luncheon was served by the women of the Parmly Memorial church. A short session was held in the afternoon. The officers of the association will be elected in April.

Funeral of Mrs. David Townsend.

The funeral service of Mrs. David Townsend was held at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. B. R. Mason, at Bound Brook, yesterday afternoon. Rev. Dr. Thomas J. Villiers, pastor of the Peddie Memorail Baptist church, Newark, of which Mrs. Townsend was a member, conducted the service. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends, and the floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. The pall bearers relatives of Mrs. Townsend, were J. C. Manning, Clifford D. Manning, Charles Rocap, Walter Manning, Howard Manning and Howard Randolph, all of Plainfield.

Plainfield Clericus Meets.

Rev. C. H. Mallery, rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, attended the meeting of the Plainfield Clericus held in the parish house of Grace church, Elizabethport, yesterday afternoon. Rev. H. H. Gifford, the rector, entertained the members. The topic for discussion was "The Church and the Sunday School."

Parent-Teacher Meeting.

The Franklin-Stillman-Whittier-Parent-Teacher Association meeting announced for tonight has been postponed on account of the snow storm. Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews will make his scheduled address at a date to be decided upon later.

TWO MORE REGULARS ADDED TO THE FORCE

Thomas O'Gorman, who has been patrol wagon driver at police headquarters for several years, acting as a special, and Fred Bader, who six months ago, was named a special policeman, were appointed as regular policemen by Mayor Charles J. Fisk, at the December meeting of the Common Council, last night, and the appointments were confirmed.

Mr. O'Gorman has been a member of the police department for the past fifteen years, but has always been a special. His appointment and confirmation as a regular policeman places him under the protection of the tenure of office act. The other appointee formerly was a trolley conductor. Before coming to Plainfield he resided in New Brunswick.

LOST OR STRAYED: A GARBAGE REPORT

The question of providing a municipal system for the collection of garbage and ashes, which is being agitated to a considerable extent at present, was introduced at the December meeting of the Common Council last night by George S. Clay. He rose to a point of information, inquiring what had become of the report which was forthcoming from the committee on streets. The query naturally brought a smile to the faces of the members, but William L. Gloak relieved the situation by replying that "it is still under consideration and the committee reports progress."

This bit of ancient history recalled to Mr. Montgomery's mind that several months ago it was proposed to introduce a safe and sane fireworks ordinance, and he was led to inquire what had become of it. Mr. Holt stated in reply that he thought the matter had been left open with the understanding that Mr. Montgomery was to draft an ordinance that would prove satisfactory to himself. This ended the little "jolly" which proved a happy diversion for some of the members.

FIRST SNOW STORM; TO BE MUCH COLDER

The first real snow storm of the season which started yesterday promises to become a blizzard such as Professor Devoe, of Hackensack, predicted for Thanksgiving Day. How Prophet Devoe ever had the storm sidetracked for so long is a mystery which he will no doubt try to explain later. He was not at home this morning when the Daily Press called him up to inquire into the details of the delay.

There was but little inconvenience experienced by travelers this morning. The Central's trains were on time and the only interruption to the trolley schedule was a derailment at Westfield which caused a delay of about thirty minutes on the main line. Superintendent Luhr had snow sweeping gangs and the big sweepers out clearing the tracks from 3 o'clock this morning and the men are being kept busy as long as the snow flies maintaining a good schedule.

This storm is general throughout the Eastern States and while the official forecaster predicts an abatement in the snowfall by tonight he is equally confident that with the clearing weather which will follow the theremometer will drop several degrees and earlaps and furs will be strictly en regle.

Farrell—Mulligan.

A belated marriage notice came to hand this morning, but it is none the less interesting for that. William Farrell, of New Town, was married on November 23 to Margaret Mulligan, of this city, by Rev. B. M. Bogan, pastor of St. Mary's church, at the rectory. The bridal couple was accompanied by Edward J. Connelly and Miss Ann Whalen who were witnesses of the ceremony. After a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. Farrell left for New Haven, Conn., where the groom has prepared a home. They are living at 22 Dickerman street, New Haven.

Engagement Announced.

Mrs. Mary McLaughlin, of New Brunswick, has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Jennie McLaughlin, to Harvey J. Moynihan, of Bound Brook. The wedding will take place in the Spring. Both young people are well known in this city.

FALL RESULTS IN DEATH

Frank Hale Succumbs to Heart Failure After Slight Mishap in Street.

FELL INTO AN OPENING.

Was Unconscious When Discovered by Fellow-boarder—Leaves Relatives in New England.

Frank Hale, the well-known contracting carpenter, died suddenly at his boarding place on Grove street, late last night, following an attack of heart failure, brought on it is believed, by falling into an opening near the curb near the north-west end of the Grove street bridge over Greenbrook. He was discovered in this place in an unconscious condition by John McCready, a fellow boarder, shortly before 11 o'clock. He was carried to his room in the apartments of Mrs. Emma Johnson, at No. 5 Grove street, and Dr. Gesswein was summoned. The man was dead when the physician arrived. He declared heart failure to have been the direct cause.

Hale had been about as usual yesterday, to all appearances being in the best of health. He spent the evening at Proctor's theatre and started for home around 10 o'clock. It is presumed that he fell into the opening at the end of the bridge as he was taking a short cut across the street. It is possible that he slipped on the snow-covered ground and received a severe jar in the fall. He was in a recumbent position when found, his head upright near the walk.

Hale was forty-six years old and came to Plainfield from Connecticut, about twenty years ago. He was employed at different times by local builders and more recently took contracts himself. He was at work yesterday on two houses which he has been erecting for Mrs. Johnson, with whom he boarded, on Netherwood avenue.

Hale had no relatives here but leaves a number in New England. A son is a student at Yale and a daughter lives with a brother who is a physician in Providence, R. I. He is also survived by his father who is a physician at New Bedford, Mass. The borough police are making efforts to get in communication with them and no arrangements for the funeral will be made until this is done.

WOODROW WILSON SEES HUDSON ASSEMBLYMEN

The coming election by the Legislature of a successor to United States Senator John Kean was the subject of a conference yesterday between Governor-elect Woodrow Wilson and eleven Representatives of Hudson county in the Legislature. Dr. Wilson last night was reticent about his own position in the matter and what actually passed at the conference. He did say, however, that the law makers had called at his request to discuss the Senatorship.

"What was the political result of the conference?" he was asked.

"There was none, and it was not the purpose of the meeting to arrive at a result," he replied. Dr. Wilson would not give any intimation as to whether he was in favor of or against any one man for the Senatorship or to mention names of the thirteen men who are to represent Hudson in the 1911 Legislature. All but two who were unavoidably detained were present.

Plainfield Ministers to Meet.

The Plainfield Ministers' Association will meet Thursday afternoon at the home of Rev. C. L. Goodrich, of West Seventh street. No program has been announced for the occasion, the meeting being an informal one.

CORPORATION'S COUNSEL

Effort to Amend Ordinance Has Met a Decided Set-back.

REFERRED TO COMMITTEE.

Mix-up Over Measure Which Conflicts with State Law, Takes Up Common Council's Time.

The question of repealing the ordinance which provides for the appointment of a corporation counsel, which came up at a previous meeting of the Common Council, the amendment to the ordinance being passed on the first reading, was again brought up last night at the December meeting of that body, by Councilman F. L. Holt, chairman of the laws and ordinances committee.

After a lengthy discussion, during which a further amendment was made to the original ordinance, it was voted to refer the whole matter to the laws and ordinances committee with instructions that a report be made at the adjourned meeting to be held Monday night, December 19.

When the matter was introduced by Mr. Holt, he explained that in addition to the ordinance providing for the appointment of a coropration counsel, there was a State law which, contains among other provisions that the term shall be three years, while the ordinance provides for one year appointment. Beginning with January 1, 1905, the term was made three years. It is now a question whether the State act applies to Plainfield, and he suggested that the ordinance be put back on second reading and defeated for the purpose of allowing further investigation.

Mr. Holt said that Mayor Fisk was of the opinion that the State act applies to Plainfield, although no one could recall that Mr. Marsh had ever given an opinion on the matter. His view is not shared by local lawyers. It seems that according to the city charter the Mayor would appoint, while under the State act the Common Council would have sole power.

At the request of Mr. Montgomery, the city clerk read the State act referred to for the general information. Mr. Mygatt desired to amend the title of the ordinance proposed so that it would read "counsel to the corporation," instead of "city attorney," and still further that the appointee be a resident of the city at the time of his appointment. Later on, after the ordinance was killed, Mr. Mygatt offered an amendment, drawn in the meantime, eliminating the provision that a man must have practiced law in the city one year to be entitled to appointment, substituting that he "be a resident of the city." After all the discussion on the subject, it was decided to refer the whole matter to the laws and ordinances committee with a view to having the members ascertain just what procedure would be legal.

MORE APPROPRIATIONS FOR WATER INVESTIGATION

The Common Council at its December meeting, last night, ordered 250 additional copies of the special water report prepared by James Fuertes, the expert engineer, at an expense not to exceed $162.50. This action was taken in accordance with a resolution offered by Councilman Mygatt, chairman of the special water committee. In this connection, another resolution offered by Mr. Mygatt and adopted, provided for an appropriation of $300 to conduct a further investigation into the water problem.

It is the desire of the committee to obtain some additional data and information to complete the already full report of Mr. Fuertes and $300 will be required for the purpose. Copies of the water report, which have just been printed were distributed among the members of the council last night.

On Christmas Shop Committee.

WOMEN ROBBED OF VOTE

Equal Suffragist Tells Democrats Fair Sex Was Deprived of Ballot.

FAVOR EQUAL PRIVILEGE.

Mrs. Riley and Miss Bateman Address Political Club, the Occasion Being First of Its Kind in State.

That the women of New Jersey have been punished for one hundred and three years for an offense they never committed was one of the interesting facts brought home to the Plainfield Democratic Club last night at a meeting addressed by Mrs. Champlin L. Riley, president of the Equal Suffrage League, and Miss Zoe Russell Bateman, of the same organization.

It was an unsual and interesting meeting in many ways. For one thing it was the first occasion in this State, and probably in the United States at which a community organization of one of the great voting parties formally invited representatives from the great non-voting party to state their reasons for demanding the ballot.

When the women had finished their addresses Leroy J. Ellis, president of the Democratic Club, said that he was "almost converted." Then he admitted that he seemed to be the only member who was not entirely converted as no man present ventured to answer Mrs. Riley or Miss Bateman. He further admitted that if the women really wanted the ballot they should have it, but suggested that they should right the wrongs complained of without waiting for the suffrage. He did not explain how.

In response to a suggestion from Champlain L. Riley, husband of the Suffrage League's president, that the Democratic Club and all similar organizations throughout the State should take a vote on the suffrage question and declare itself squarely, one way or the other on the issue, Mr. Ellis replied that the Democratic party was too busy with its old unsettled questions to take up new ones.

To go back to the unjust punishment of New Jersey women for more than a century, Miss Bateman recalled the fact that the Continental Congress of 1776 dodged the woman suffrage question by leaving it to each State to decide for itself.

"And to the lasting glory of New Jersey," continued Miss Bateman, "this State gave the ballot to her women. They had it until 1807. In that year there was a great election fraud scandal incidental to the vote in the location of State buildings. Many persons voted early and often. Minors and foreigners, who had no rights of the polls at all, voted without hindrance. There was nothing to show that the women were guilty of these frauds. At least they alone were not guilty. But in November of that year the Legislature, without sanction of the people, as required by law amended the constitution so as to deprive the women of the suffrage."

Miss Bateman also enumerated many of the other handicaps placed upon women in this and other States because of laws that deprive them of an equal voice in the affairs of their own property and their own children.

She named the women who had fought for the cause for many years and paid a tribute to the memory of Julia Ward Howe, whose daughter, Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, sat on the platform with President Ellis and the speakers.

Miss Bateman closed with an appeal to the members of the Democratic Club, to be real Democrats by working for a government of, for and by all the people in place of a government of, for and by a part of the people.

After congratulating the Democratic Club on the succes of its party at the recent election, Mrs. Riley said in part:

"Last spring, in Washington, a petition was presented to Congress to enfranchise the women of the United States. It was signed by over 400,000 men and women. The numbers seem to me less significant than the character of the signers.

"Among those who signed were sixteen governors of States, a number of mayors of cities, many State county and city officials. Among the signatures were many of the best known instructors and writers upon political economy and many signatures of presidents of colleges and universities. It included names of many judges of supreme courts. There was a special writer's petition led by the name of Wm. Dean Howells, and (promising well for the propaganda of our cause) there were many publishers and editors who signed.

"We come now to the question,

NEW LIABILITY LAW BEING PREPARED

To discuss the proposed employers' liability and workmen's compensation act, about 150 labor men from all sections of the State met at Michel's Hall, at 66 South Orange avenue, Newark, Sunday. The draft of the measure as prepared by a special committee of the State Federation of Labor was submitted to them and after about three hours' consideration it was decided to engage the services of a lawyer, who will whip the bill into shape for presentation to the Legislature.

In a general way, the bill as submitted to the labor men met with their approval, and only as a matter of precaution it was decided to have it returned to the committee with instructions to hire a lawyer so that the constitutionality of the bill could not be questioned. Sections of the proposed bill which had to do with the liability of the employer were satisfactory and provoked applause for the committee's handling of this part of the subject.

The measure provides that employers, their agents or servants, shall not, in case of accident or injury, be permitted to defend themselves with the contention that such death or injury resulted from negligence of a fellow-servant or that the employe had assumed the risk of such injury or death. It is further provided that employers be prevented from setting up as a defense any rule or contract as exempting them from liability.

The meeting of the labor men was followed by a special session of the committee having the proposed legislature in hand. The members of the committee are Cornelius Ford, John H. McLean, James Matthews, Samuel McGuire, Roswell Aimes, William Brennan, Joseph C. Oswald and Leonard Stalk.

The interest manifested by the various unionists as the bill was taken up section by section led to many discussions over technicalities in the bill. In voting that the draft should first have the approval of the best legal talent obtainable, the delegates agreed that the committee continue its efforts. It was also decided to send out an appeal to the various labor organizations in the State asking for financial aid in the matter.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

As a result of stepping on a tine of a pitchfork, Thomas Heenan, of Paulsboro, is a victim of blood poison.

Although considerable fault has been found that the $25,000 sewage disposal plant at Millville does not work properly, the Council, after long discussion, has paid the remaining $2,400 due for its installation.

Instead of going to Sunday school Sunday as he promised his parents he would William Peniere, twelve years old, of 1217 Locust street, Camden, began playing "shinney" on a common with several companions, when he was struck on the back of the hand with a "shinney" and so painfully injured that he was taken to the Homeopathic Hospital.

Swallowing creosote she had used to relieve an aching tooth, Julia Roundtree, eighteen years old, of 129 North Twenty-third street, Camden, was taken to Cooper Hospital in a serious condition Sunday. As soon as she entered the institution she became unconscious, and it was with difficulty that she was revived. She was reported out of danger last night. Her mouth was badly burned.

Charged with having had in his possession a torn dollar bill which was part of $35 in cash stolen from the saloon of Lewis Bowman, Illinois and Mediterranean avenues, Atlantic City, Sunday, George Settler confessed to the theft and was lodged in jail. From Bowman, Detective Thorpe had learned that one of the bills stolen was torn through the centre, and within a few hours Thorpe had learned that Settler had attempted to have such a bill exchanged for another. His arrest and confession soon followed.

There will be a lively contest for the office of district court judge of Bayonne to succeed Judge Frederic E. Chamberlain, a Republican. Governor-elect Wilson will make the appointment. There are three aspirants, City Comptroller Peter Stilwell, former Recorder Hyman Lazarus and Philip F. Botzong. Lazarus figures on the support of Robert Davis, the county Democratic leader, and Stilwell relies on the influence of Matthew T. Cronin, local leader and an anti-Davis man.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Fiske O'Hara, the popular Irish singing comedian, who comes to The Plainfield theatre on Saturday, December 10, matinee and night, in his latest success, "The Wearing of the Green," is meeting with the same enthusiastic receptions that characterized his tour last season. "The Wearing of the Green," from the pen of Theodore Burt Sayre, is undoubtedly the most appropriate vehicle that Mr. O'Hara has been supplied with during his stellar career, and that he is making the best of an excellent part is best attested by the enormous business that he is doing at such places as were fortunate enough to have witnessed the production of the beautiful Irish drama last year. It has been Mr. O'Hara's policy to present a new play each year, and since his advent on the stage he has followed out that principle very faithfully. Last summer he began looking for a suitable play and entered into correspondence with Mr. Sayre, the author of the present play, with the intention of securing another piece along similar lines; but ere the summer was half gone letters and requests began pouring in asking for dates and offering bonuses until finally Mr. O'Hara decided to retain "The Wearing of the Green" for the time being and open in a new play next season. The company supporting Mr. O'Hara is headed by Miss Marie Quinn and includes Lelie Bloodgood, Phyllis Ralston, Elizabeth Valdmar, Chas. P. Rice, J. B. Sullivan, Wm. T. Sheehan, Dan. M. Sullivan, M. L. Schrade, Geo. A. Holt, Fred Larter and others.

"Three Twins" that "greatest success America has ever known," a musical comedy by Charles Dickson, Otto Hauerbach and Karl Hoschna, will be seen at The Plainfield theatre Tuesday night, December 13. The play is based on that popular old farce "Incog," and carries a clear and logical story. All the complications of the piece center around twin brothers and a third twin—Tom Stanhope, he having assumed the disguise to win the girl he loves, Kate Armitage, who is a companion to his father's ward. The first act is a summer hotel. The second act shows "visiting day" at a Sanitarium and with the pretty girls of the chorus as nurses and attendants the "daffy house" does not appear to be the undesirable place that most people are inclined to regard it. Mr. Siegfried Hartman, a German specialist in charge of the sanitarium, is an amusing character, and General Stanhope, a martyr to dyspepsia and the father of Tom, is unique. While other characters adding to the enjoyment of the piece are the "laughing girl" and the "cheerful weeper," Mr. Gaites has employed a strong company for the play headed by that inimitable star Clifton Crawford. The scenic production is elaborate and a number of novel electrical and mechanical effects are introduced, including the "faceograph" the huge "airship swing;" the most popular and catchy songs are "Yama Yama Man," "Cuddle up a Little Closer" and "The Hypnotic Kiss."

Miss Mabel Townley, a student at Trenton Normal School, has returned after a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Townley, of the borough.

WHAT ABOUT GARBAGE?

Consulting Health Officer Leon Thurlow's timely address on the urgent needs of a municipal system for the collection and disposal of garbage and ashes delivered before the Chamber of Commerce, has been productive of good results. Having his remarks in mind, no doubt, George S. Clay, the efficient representative of the Second ward, arose to a point of information at the regular December meeting of the Common Council last night. He wanted to know, as a good many other people do, what has become of the street committee's long delayed report on the garbage question. Mr. Clay's question caused a general smile. After some hesitation, William L. Gloak, chairman of the street committee, gave the stereotyped answer: "It is still under consideration. The committee reports progress."

Most of the taxpayers have forgotten, no doubt, that the matter had been referred to a committee for investigation. As a matter of fact, some months since, this committee did make some sort of an investigation, but its findings have never been reported. Other matters, many of minor importance, have taken the time of many of the city fathers since then and the subject, which pertains both to health and economy, has been lost sight of. Some of the councilmen cannot be accused of dilatory methods when it comes to suddenly placing policemen under the protection of the tenure of office act on the eve of a new administration or of voting money for this or that, but what can be said in defense of their delay in the garbage question?

THE GOVERNOR'S DUTY.

Governor Fort's procrastination on the appointment of a factory inspector to succeed Andrew McCardell is inexcusable. Since October 1 last this position has remained unfilled and so far as the public can learn the only reason is that the Governor and the practical politicians can not agree on a candidate. That is a very foolish reason and is one that a governor who poses as an executive of the Hughes type should not allow to stand in his way for one moment. Human life is endangered by the continued failure to have the proper officer of the law see that the factory regulations are obeyed. It is not for us to argue whether he did or did not attend to his duties according to the strict letter of the law. Neither is it important to argue that the only reason that a reappointment was blocked was because of his activity in the congressional primary campaign. It is important, vitally so, that the Governor should spare a few moments of his valuable time to name his successor. It matters not who this man wants or who that man wants. It's what the people want and as the Elizabeth Journal says "all they want is protection, which means, of course, the best man obtainable for the position."

REV. DR. W. H. WALLACE AT PARK AVE. CHURCH

Rev. Dr. W. H. Wallace, pastor of the Baptist Temple, of Brooklyn, who is to lecture on "The Sunshine Man" in the Park Avenue Baptist church, on Thursday evening, is building up one of the greatest congregations in Greater New York. On Sunday last the seating capacity of his church in Brooklyn which seats 3,000 people was overtaxed and more than five hundred worshippers were turned away. The crush was so great that the fire department had to put on a detail of men to guard against crowding the aisles.

One Brooklynite remarked after the service that it reminded him of the old days of Rev. T. DeWitt Tallmadge when seats were to be had only when one got to church ahead of the bell. No such congregations are seen today in any of the Broklyn churches as go to hear Dr. Wallace. This eminent preacher was formerly pastor of a church in Cleveland, Ohio, where they produce great ministers, and it is said that no more interesting and eloquent man is in the pulpit today than Dr. Wallace.

Dr. Wallace's topic for Thursday evening is one which must from its very title suggest something calculated to bring happiness to everyone who can get out to hear him. This will be the only visit of Dr. Wallace to this city.

"Erin's Isle' at Proctor's.

"Erin's Isle," a beautiful act, a feature of which is the scenic effects, is the headliner at Proctor's theatre. Miss Hortense Searle, a Cranford girl, who will be remembered as having taken the leading part in several amateur operatic productions here, is assisted by a company of two in the act, which abounds with fine music, including Irish ballads. Temple & Huff operatic comedians; Ascott & Eddie in "The Traveling Salesman and the Lady;" Clayton & Lennie, in "The Happy Chappie and the English Hick," make up an exceptionally good bill, with nothing but laughs and more laughs.

TRINITY REFORMED CHURCH PROUD OF ITS JUNIOR CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR SOCIETY

Junior C. E. Society of Trinity Reformed Church.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church, which celebrated its twentieth anniversary on Sunday, October 30, is considered one of the most active societies in this part of the State, having won the State C. E. banner this year, an honor that all of the societies strive for earnestly.

Last year the society contributed $115.74 for missions, including something toward the support of the church missionary, Dr. Paul W. Harrison. The society has also contributed toward the church building fund, as well as the one for the publication of the weekly calendar. The society was organized in October, 1890, with fifty-three members. Today there are on the roll ninety-two members, seventy-nine appearing in the accompanying picture, which was taken recently by P. F. Stone, the photographer, in front of the church. Two of the present Consistory were trained in the Junior society, which was organized through the efforts of Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor-emeritus of the church. Last year fifty-four members received badges for 75 or more percentage of attendance at meetings. The following have served the society as superintendents: Miss Alice O. Smith, Miss Mary Berg, Mrs. Robert A. Meeker, Mrs. J. M. Tier, Miss Mary Brokaw, Mrs. William Kriney, Mrs. William Tunison, Mrs. George Reighton, Mrs. Cornelius Schenck, Mrs. R. V. Kinney, Mrs. Lafayette Rosenstiehl, Miss Edna Dilts, Miss Mabel Wilson and Mrs. R. V. Kinney, the present superintendent.

Mrs. Kinney has an assistant, Mrs. Lafayette Rosenstiehl, who has charge of the beginners, and she also has two assistants from the society, Lawrence French and Miss Maude McAfee, while Mrs. Rosenstiehl's assistants are Miss Helen Leitheusser and Miss Adelaide Cole. These are the present officers of the society: President, Miss Jennie Sears; first vice-president, Elmer French; second vice-president, Miss Nellie McAfee; secretary, Miss Marion Woolley; treasurer, Miss Louise Seader.

That the society is a feeder for the church is shown in the fact that last Sunday at the communion service several members were received into the church on confession of faith.

MURDERS LAZY MAN.

Italian Plunges Knife Into Son-in-law's Body.

Bayonne, Dec. 6.—Ignace Camorato, 30 years old, was considered lazy by his father-in-law, Andrew Ferraro, of 428 Avenue C, Bayonne. The men had words Sunday afternoon and at the conclusion of the quarrel Camorato was lying on the floor with a stab wound in his side. He was dead when Ambulance Surgeon Shapiro arrived from the Bayonne Hospital.

The alleged murderer is missing and today Chief Yore, with Acting Detectives Lazarus, Connors and Gallagher, are making a search of the Italian homes in the city for the missing man.

The police of other cities have also been notified to look out for Ferraro. Ferraro, according to the police, is about 45 years old, 5 feet 10 inches in height, weighs 170 pounds, dark complexion, with a dark moustache, and when he left home wore clothing of a dark gray material.

SAVED WOMAN'S LIFE; HERO TRULY MODEST

A gallant deed which may escape record as far as a knowledge of its hero is concerned in this world, but which will undoubtedly go on record where such things are carefully noted by the Keeper of the Books occurred on Saturday evening at the North avenue station and lest it be totally ignored and the hero escape at least the appreciation of one who witnessed a thrilling rescue George M. Holstein, of Watchung avenue, has this to say of the heroic deed.

"I had alighted from the 5:13 train from New York and as the train pulled out bound west, I noticed a woman at the iron fence which divides the tracks. She was on the opposite, or east bound side and called out asking how to open the gate saying she wanted to come across. On looking up I saw the headlight of an approaching express train from the west on her side of the fence and I at once shouted to her to go back. To my horror she ignored my warning and renewed her efforts to open the gate.

"Realizing then that the oncoming train was a New York-bound Philadelphia flier and that the woman was doomed to certain death unless she instantly ran back, I again shouted with all the power of my lungs, but doubting even while doing so if there would be time. At that instant out of the dusk on my side of the station dashed the form of a young man. Reaching across the fence and firmly grasping the woman he drew her close to the gate and she, with a strength not her own, was held in safety while the train with a flash, a shriek and a roar rushed by.

"It was a gallant act performed by the young man possessed of red blood cool judgment and a genius for instant action. After it was over and while I was congratulating him, a uniformed railroad man approached asking the rescuer his name. For reply he simply said 'To h—— with it,' and fled."

And there are not many who would have done likewise.

why do women want the ballot? Broadly speaking, there are two classes of women; those in the home and those in industry. Women in the home want the ballot to protect the home. Women in industry want protection for their industries.

"Women in the home realize that under the modern economic conditions they cannot continue to do for their homes what they have done in the past without greater power. In the early days, a family was sufficient unto itself as in the case of John Gilly, of whom Pres. Elliot writes so charmingly. A family was independent of the rest of the community except for the matter of defense from violence. A family could raise its food, control its water, weave its cloth and make its clothes. Today there is only one way to control the food supply, the water supply and the clothing supply. That way is legislation.

"And, again, if we would protect the education and morals of the family, we cannot do so without legislation. The government is deciding the most intimate relations of private life as we all know. We suffragists claim that the mothers should have a voice in deciding some of these intimate questions. According to the inter-parliamentary Union, Colorado has the 'sanest, most humane, most progressive, most scientific laws relating to the child to be found on any statute book in the world." The mothers vote in Colorado.

"But some of us mothers in New Jersey don't want to vote. We are content to believe that 'the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world.' Anna Shaw in her speech of a few weeks past, pointed out that the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world only so long as the world is in the cradle. Almost as soon as the little child gets out of the cradle, the modern mother needs the vote to adequately control its food and clothing, and more important still, the moral and educational conditions in which it is to be placed.

"Our next question is: Why does the woman in indstry want the ballot? To my thinking, no answer can be stronger than the oft repeated resolutions of the American Federation of Labor in favor of Equal Suffrage. I shall read the resolution of 1908: 'Resolved, That this, the twenty-eighth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor does now reaffirm this platform and expresses its belief in the need of full political equality for all women. That this political equality is as necessary to their economic independence as it is for their brothers in all branches of labor and we pledge the affiliated unions of the land to earnestly work for this political freedom.'

"Just here the question of taxation comes in since both home-keepers and industrial workers may be taxpayers. It is proverbial that women pay more taxes than do men on the same value of property, and to further point a moral and adorn a tale, I would like to quote Gov. Shafroth, of Colorado:

"'Have we forgotten the cry of our forefathers, which stirred the blood of every pariotic American, that "taxation without representation is tyranny?" Why is it tryranny to men, but not to women? Should women be denied the right to protect, by vote, their property from excessive tax incumbrances ,when the right to encumber it by vote is given to men ,some of whom cannot read or write our language? Is is sufficient to say that "they are not the only persons taxed as property holders from whom the ballot is withheld," when the only persons from whom it is permanently withheld are lunatics idiots, illiterates and criminals? How would men like such reasoning applied to themselves?'

"The franchise was never extended to any class as well fitted for it at the time it was granted as are the women at the present itme.

"We suffragists, believe that many women are already well fitted for the ballot and that many more would soon fit themselves for it. We believe that the entance of women into politics would benefit the whole land and not only, or even chiefly, the women themselves. We believe that it would put new life into democratic government and be for the real good of every man, woman and child in our great republic; and so in closing, I do not hesitate to appeal to the Democrats of New Jersey to put a woman suffrage plank into their party platform. In five years such a plank will prove itself so strong that no platform can afford to be without it, and this wi'l happen because equal suffrage is right, and being right, is inevitable."

TAFT'S MESSAGE UP TO CONGRESS

President Breaks Record For Length of Document.

DEFENDS PAYNE TARIFF ACT.

Deals With Panama Canal, Postal Savings Bank, Parcels Post and Conservation—Asks For Raise of Judicial Salaries—Recommendation For Fitting Honor For Peary.

Washington, Dec. 6.—The president sent the following message to congress today:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

During the past year the foreign relations of the United States have continued upon a basis of friendship and good understanding.

The year has been notable as witnessing the pacific settlement of two important international controversies before the permanent court of The Hague.

The arbitration of the fisheries dispute between the United States and Great Britain, which has been the source of nearly continuous diplomatic correspondence since the fisheries convention of 1818, has given an award which is satisfactory to both parties.

Peace Commission.

Appreciating these enlightened tendencies of modern times, the congress at its last session passed a law providing for the appointment of a commission of five members "to be appointed by the president of the United States to consider the expediency of utilizing existing international agencies for the purpose of limiting the armaments of the nations of the world by international agreement and of constituting the combined navies of the world an international force for the preservation of universal peace and to consider and report upon any other means to diminish the expenditures of government for military purposes and to lessen the probabilities of war."

The work of the international fisheries commission appointed in 1908, under the treaty of April 11, 1908, between Great Britain and the United States, has resulted in the formulation and recommendation of uniform regulations governing the fisheries of the boundary waters of Canada and the United States for the purpose of protecting and increasing the supply of food fish in such waters.

The Far East.

The center of interest in far eastern affairs during the past year has again been China.

It is gratifying to note that the negotiations for a loan to the Chinese government for the construction of the trunk railway lines from Hankow southward to Canton and westward through the Yangtse valley, known as the Hukuang loan, were concluded by the representatives of the various financial groups in May last and the results approved by their respective governments.

Tariff Negotiations.

The new tariff law in section 2 respecting the maximum and minimum tariffs of the United States, which provisions came into effect on April 1, 1910, imposed upon the president the responsibility of determining prior to that date whether or not any undue discrimination existed against the United States and its products in any country of the world with which we sustained commercial relations.

The policy of broader and closer trade relations with the Dominion of Canada which was initiated in the adjustment of the maximum and minimum provisions of the tariff act of August, 1909, has proved mutually beneficial. It justifies further efforts for the readjustment of the commercial relations of the two countries so that their commerce may follow the channels natural to contiguous countries and be commensurate with the steady expansion of trade and industry on both sides of the boundary line.

The Department of State.

All tariff negotiations, so vital to our commerce and industry, and the duty of jealously guarding the equitable and just treatment of our products, capital and industry abroad devolve upon the department of state.

The efforts of that department to secure for citizens of the United States equal opportunities in the markets of the world and to expand American commerce have been most successful. The volume of business obtained in new fields of competition and upon new lines is already very great, and congress is urged to continue to support the department of state in its endeavors for further trade expansion.

An instrumentality indispensable to the unhampered and natural development of American commerce is merchant marine. All maritime and commercial nations recognize the importance of this factor. The greatest commercial nations, our competitors, jealously foster their merchant marine.

I alluded to this most important subject in my last annual message. It has often been before you, and I need not recapitulate the reasons for its recommendation. Unless prompt action be taken the completion of the Panama canal will find this the only great commercial nation unable to avail in international maritime business of this great contribution to the means of the world's commercial intercourse.

For many reasons I cannot too strongly urge upon the congress the passage of a measure by mail subsidy or other subvention adequate to guarantee the establishment and rapid development of an American merchant marine, the restoration of the American flag to its ancient place upon the seas.

Estimates For Next Year's Expenses.

The final estimates for the year ending June 30, 1912, as they have been sent to the treasury on Nov. 29 of this year for the ordinary expenses of the government, including those for public buildings, rivers and harbors and the navy building program, amount to $630,494,013.12. This is $52,964,887.36 less than the appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1911. It is $16,883,153.44 less than the total estimates, including suplemental estimates submitted to congress by the treasury for the year 1911, and is $5,574,659.39 less than the original estimates submitted by the treasury for 1911.

These figures do not include the appropriations for the Panama canal, the policy in respect to which ought to be and is to spend as much each year as can be economically and effectively expended in order to complete the canal as promptly as possible, and therefore the ordinary motive for cutting down the expense of the government does not apply to appropriations for this purpose. It will be noted that the estimates for the Panama canal for the ensuing year are more than $56,000,000, an increase of $20,000,000 over the amount appropriated for this year, a difference due to the fact that the estimates for 1912 include something over $19,000,000 for the fortification of the canal.

Against the estimates of expenditures, $630,494,013.12, we have estimated receipts for next year $680,000,000, making a probable surplus of ordinary receipts over ordinary expenditures of about $50,000,000, or, taking into account the estimates for the Panama canal, which are $56,920,847.69 and which will ultimately be paid in bonds, it will leave a deficit for the next year of about $7,000,000 if congress shall conclude to fortify the canal. The cost of the fortifications is about $19,000,000. Should there be no appropriations this year for fortifications then there would be, even including the Panama canal appropriation, a surplus of about $12,000,000.

It is not essential to the preventing of smuggling that customs districts should be increased in number. The violation of the customs laws can be quite as easily prevented and much more economically by the revenue cutter service and by the use of the special agent traveling force of the treasury department.

Very great improvements have been made in respect to the mints and assay offices. Diminished appropriations have been asked for those whose continuance is unnecessary, and this year's estimate of expenses is $326,000 less than two years ago.

In the bureau of engraving and printing great economies have been effected. Useless divisions have been abolished, with the result of saving $440,000 this year in the total expenses of the bureau despite increased business.

Revenues.

As the treasury department is the one through which the income of the government is collected and its expenditures are disbursed this seems a proper place to consider the operation of the existing tariff bill, which became a law Aug. 6, 1909. As an income producing measure the existing tariff bill has never been exceeded by any customs bill in the history of the country.

The corporation excise tax, proportioned to the net income of every business corporation in the country, has worked well. The tax has been easily collected. Its prompt payment indicates that the incidence of the tax has not been heavy. It offers, moreover, an opportunity for knowledge by the government of the general condition and business of all corporations, and that means by far the most important part of the business of the country. In the original act provision was made for the publication of returns. This provision was subsequently amended by congress and the matter left to the regulation of the president. I have directed the issue of the needed regulations and have made it possible for the public generally to know from an examination of the record the returns of all corporations the stock of which is listed on any public stock exchange or is offered for sale to the general public by advertisement or otherwise. The returns of those corporations whose stock is not so listed or offered for sale are directed to be open to the inspection and examination of creditors and stockholders of the corporation whose record is sought. The returns of all corporations are subject to the inspection of any government officer or to the examination of any court, in which the return made by the corporation is relevant and competent evidence.

The Payne Tariff Act.

The schedules of the rates of duty in the Payne tariff act have been subjected to a great deal of criticism, some of it just, more of it unfounded, and to much misrepresentation. The act was adopted in pursuance of a declaration by the party which is responsible for it that a customs bill should be a tariff for the protection of home industries, the measure of the protection to be the difference between the cost of producing the imported article abroad and the cost of producing it at home, together with such addition to that difference as might also a reasonable profit to the home producer.

The basis for the criticism of the tariff is that in respect to a number of the schedules the declared measure was not followed, but a higher difference retained or inserted by way of undue discrimination in favor of certain industries and manufactures.

Little, if any, of the criticism of the tariff has been directed against the protective principle above stated, but the main body of the criticism has been based on the charge that the attempt to conform to the measure of protection was not honestly and sincerely adhered to.

Tariff Board.

The time in which the tariff was prepared undoubtedly was so short as to make it impossible for the congress and its experts to acquire the information necessary strictly to conform to the declared measure. In order to avoid criticism of this kind in the future and for the purpose of more nearly conforming to the party promise congress at its last session made provision at my request for the continuance of a board created under the authority of the maximum and minimum clause of the tariff bill and authorized this board to expend the money appropriated under my direction for the ascertainment of the cost of production at home and abroad of the various articles included in the schedules of the tariff. The tariff board thus appointed and authorized has been diligent in preparing itself for the necessary investigations. The hope of those who have advocated the use of this board for tariff purposes is that the question of the rate of a duty imposed shall become more of a business question and less of a political question, to be ascertained by experts of long training and accurate knowledge. The halt in business and the shock to business due to the announcement that a new tariff bill is to be prepared and put in operation will be avoided by treating the schedules one by one as occasion shall arise for a change in the rates of each and only after a report upon the schedule by the tariff board competent to make such report.

It is not likely that the board will be able to make a report during the present session of congress on any of the schedules, because a proper examination involves an enormous amount of detail and a great deal of care, but I hope to be able at the opening of the new congress, or at least during the session of that congress, to bring to its attention the facts in regard to those schedules in the present tariff that may prove to need amendment.

The carrying out of this plan, of course, involves the full co-operation of congress in limiting the consideration in tariff matters to one schedule at a time, because if a proposed amendment to a tariff bill is to involve a complete consideration of all the schedules and another revision then we shall only repeat the evil from which the business of this country has in times past suffered most grievously by stagnation and uncertainty, pending a resettlement of a law affecting all business directly or indirectly, and the effect of which no wise business man would ignore in new projects and new investments.

The inquiries which the members of the tariff board made during the last summer into the methods pursued by other governments with reference to the fixing of tariffs and the determination of their effect upon trade show that each government maintains an office or bureau, the officers and employees of which have made their life work the study of tariff matters, of foreign and home prices and cost of articles imported and the effect of the tariff upon trade, so that whenever a change is thought to be necessary in the tariff law this office is the source of the most reliable information as to the propriety of the change and its effect.

I am strongly convinced that we need in this government just such an office and that it can be secured by making the tariff board already appointed a permanent tariff commission, with such duties, powers and emoluments as it may seem wise to congress to give. It has been proposed to enlarge the board from three to five. The present number is convenient, but I do not know that an increase of two members would be objectionable.

I recommend that congress establish a commission to determine as early as practicable a comprehensive policy for the organization, mobilization and administration of the regular army, the organized militia and the volunteer forces in the event of war.

Need For Additional Officers.

One of the great difficulties in the prompt organization and mobilization of militia and volunteer forces is the absence of competent officers of the rank of captain to teach the new army, by the unit of the company, the business of being soldiers and of taking care of themselves so as to render effective service. This need of army officers can only be supplied by provisions of law authorizing the appointment of a greater number of army officers than are needed to supply the commands of regular army troops now enlisted in the service.

In order that the militia of each state should be properly drilled and made more like the regular army, regular army officers should be detailed to assist the adjutant general of each state in the supervision of the state militia. But this is impossible unless provision is made by congress for a very considerable increase in the number of company and field officers of the army.

Fortifications.

I have directed that the estimates for appropriation for the improvement of coast defenses in the United States should be reduced to a minimum, while those for the completion of the needed fortifications at Corregidor in the Philippine Islands, and at Pearl Harbor, in the Hawaiian Islands, should be expedited as much as possible.

Philippine Islands.

During the last summer at my request the secretary of war visited the Philippine Islands and has described his trip in his report. He found the islands in a state of tranquillity and growing prosperity, due largely to the change in the tariff laws which has opened the markets of America to the products of the Philippines and has opened the Philippine markets to American manufactures.

Panama Canal.

At the instance of Colonel Goethals, the army engineer officer in charge of the work on the Panama canal, I have just made a visit to the isthmus to inspect the work done and to consult with him on the ground as to certain problems which are likely to arise in the near future. The progress of the work is most satisfactory. If no unexpected obstacle presents itself the canal will be completed well within the time fixed by Colonel Goethals—to wit, Jan. 1, 1915—and within the estimate of cost, $375,000,000.

Among questions arising for present solution is the decision whether the canal shall be fortified. I have already stated to the congress that I strongly favor fortification, and I now reiterate this opinion and ask your consideration of the subject in the light of the report already before you made by a competent board.

If in our discretion we believe modern fortifications to be necessary to the adequate protection and policing of the canal, then it is our duty to construct them. We have built the canal. It is our property. By convention we have indicated our desire for and indeed undertaken its universal and equal use. It is also well known that one of the chief objects in the construction of the canal has been to increase the military effectiveness of our navy.

Failure to fortify the canal would leave the attainment of both these aims in the position of rights and obligations which we should be powerless to enforce and which could never in any other way be absolutely safeguarded against a desperate and irresponsible enemy.

In determining what the tolls in the canal should be we certainly ought not to insist that for a good many years to come they should amount to enough to pay the interest on the investment of $400,000,000 which the United States has made in the construction of the canal. We ought not to do this, first, because the benefits to be derived by the United States from this expenditure are not to be measured solely by a return upon the investment.

My own impression is that the tolls ought not to exceed $1 per net ton. On Jan. 1, 1911, the tolls in the Suez canal are to be 7 francs and 28 centimes for one net ton by Suez canal measurement, which is a modification of Danube measurement. A dollar a ton will secure under the figures above a gross annual income from the Panama canal of nearly $7,000,000. The cost of maintenance and operation is estimated to exceed $3,000,000.

The next question that arises is as to the maintenance, management and general control of the canal after its completion. It should be premised that it is an essential part of our navy establishment to have the coal, oil and other ship supplies, a drydock and repair shops conveniently located with reference to naval vessels passing through the canal. Now, if the government for naval purposes is to undertake to furnish these conveniences to the navy, and they are conveniences equally required by commercial vessels, there would seem to be strong reasons why the government should take over and include in its management the furnishing not only to the navy, but to the public, drydock and repair shop facilities and the sale of coal, oil and other ship supplies.

The maintenance of a lock canal of this enormous size in a sparsely populated country and in the tropics, where the danger from disease is always present, requires a large and complete and well trained organization with full police powers, exercising the utmost care.

I cannot close this reference to the canal without suggesting as a wise amendment to the interstate commerce law a provision prohibiting interstate commerce railroads from owning or controlling ships engaged in the trade through the Panama canal. I believe such a provision may be needed to save to the people of the United States the benefits of the competition in trade between the eastern and western seaboards which this canal was constructed to secure.

Department of Justice.

I am glad to say that under the appropriations made for the department of justice the attorney general has so improved its organization that a vast amount of litigation of a civil and criminal character has been disposed of during the current year. This will explain the necessity for slightly increasing the estimates for the expenses of the department. His report shows the recoveries made on behalf of the government, of duties fraudulently withheld, public lands improperly patented, fines and penalties for trespass, prosecutions and convictions under the anti-trust law and prosecutions under interstate commerce law.

I invite especial attention to the prosecutions under the federal law of the so called "bucket shops" and of those schemes to defraud in which the use of the mail is an essential part of the fraudulent conspiracy, prosecutions which have saved ignorant and weak members of the public and are saving them millions of dollars.

The violations of the anti-trust law present perhaps the most important litigation before the department and the number of cases filed shows the activity of the government in enforcing that statute.

Judicial Procedure.

One great crying need in the United States is cheapening the cost of litigation by simplifying judicial procedure and expediting final judgment. Under present conditions the poor man is at a woeful disadvantage in a legal contest with a corporation or a rich opponent. The necessity for the reform exists both in United States courts and in all state courts. In order to bring it about, however, it naturally falls to the general government by its example to furnish a model to all states. A legislative commission appointed by joint resolution of congress to revise the procedure in the United States courts has as yet made no report.

I am strongly convinced that the best method of improving judicial procedure at law is to empower the supreme court to do it through the medium of the rules of the court, as in equity. This is the way in which it has been done in England.

Relief of Supreme Court From Unnecessary Appeals.

No man ought to have as a matter of right a review of his case by the supreme court. He should be satisfied by one hearing before a court of first instance and one review by a court of appeals. The proper and chief usefulness of the supreme court, and especially the supreme court of the United States, is in the cases which come before it so to expound the law and especially the fundamental law—the constitution—as to furnish precedents for the inferior courts in future litigation and for the executive officers in the construction of statutes and the performance of their legal duties. Therefore any provisions for review of cases by the supreme court that cast upon that court the duty of passing on questions of evidence and the construction of particular forms of instruments, like indictments or wills or contracts, decisions not of general application or importance, merely clog and burden the court and render more difficult its higher function, which makes it so important a part of the framework of our government. The supreme court is now carrying an unnecessary burden of appeals of this kind, and I earnestly urge that it be removed.

Judicial Salaries.

I further recommend to congress the passage of the bill now pending for the increase in the salaries of the federal judges, by which the chief justice of the supreme court shall receive $17,500 and the associate justices $17,000, the circuit judges constituting the circuit court of appeals shall receive $10,000 and the district judges $9,000. The positions they occupy ought to be filled by men who have shown the greatest ability in their professional work at the bar, and it is the poorest economy possible for the government to pay salaries so low for judicial service as not to be able to command the best talent of the legal profession in every part of the country.

Wiping Out of Postal Deficit.

For many years there has been a deficit in the operations of the post-office department which has been met by appropriation from the treasury. The appropriation estimated for last year from the treasury over and above the receipts of the department was $17,500,000. I am glad to record the fact that of that $17,500,000 estimated for $11,500,000 were saved and returned to the treasury. It is gratifying to report that the reduction in the deficit has been accomplished without any curtailment of postal facilities.

Upon the recommendation of the postmaster general I have included in the classified service all assistant postmasters, and I believe that this giving a secure tenure to those who are the most important subordinates of postmasters will add much to the efficiency of their offices and an economical administration.

The Franking Privilege.

The unrestricted manner in which the franking privilege is now being used by the several federal services and by congress has laid it open to serious abuses.

Parcels Post.

With respect to the parcels post, I respectfully recommend its adoption on all rural delivery routes and that eleven pounds, the international limit, be made the limit of carriage in such post. The postoffice department has a great plant and a great organization, reaching into the most remote hamlet of the United States, and with this machinery it is able to do a great many things economically that if a new organization were necessary it would be impossible to do without extravagant expenditure. That is the reason why the postal savings bank can be carried on at a small additional cost and why it is possible to incorporate at a very inconsiderable expense a parcels post in the rural delivery system.

Peary.

I unite with the secretary in the recommendation that an appropriation be made to construct a suitable crypt at Annapolis for the custody of the remains of John Paul Jones.

The unparalleled achievement of Peary in reaching the north pole, April 6, 1909, approved by critical examination of the most expert scientists, has added to the distinction of our navy, to which he belongs, and reflects credit upon his country. His unique success has received generous acknowledgment from scientific bodies and institutions of learning in Europe and America. I recommend fitting recognition by congress of the great achievement of Robert Edwin Peary.

For Eight Hour Day.

It seems to me from the past history that the government has been committed to a policy of encouraging the limitation of the day's work to eight hours in all works of construction initiated by itself, and it seems to me illogical to maintain a difference between government work done on government soil and government work done in a private establishment.

Workmen's Compensation.

In view of the keen, widespread interest now felt in the United States in a system of compensation for industrial accidents to supplant our present thoroughly unsatisfactory system of employers' liability (a subject the importance of which congress has already recognized by the appointment of a commission), I recommend that the international congress on industrial insurance be invited to hold its meeting in 1913 in Washington and that an appropriation of $10,000 be made to cover the necessary expenses of organizing and carrying on the meeting.

Safety Appliances and Provisions.

The protection of railroad employees from personal injury is a subject of the highest importance and demands continuing attention.

Negro Exposition.

I also renew my recommendation that steps be taken looking to the holding of a negro exposition in celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the issuing by Mr. Lincoln of the emancipation proclamation.

Conservation.

Nothing can be more important in the matter of conservation than the treatment of our forest lands. Speaking generally, the government has reserved of the existing forests about 70 per cent of all the timberlands of the government. Within these forests (including 26,000,000 acres in two forests in Alaska) are 192,000,000 acres, of which 166,000,000 acres are in the United States proper and include within their boundaries something like 22,000,000 acres that belong to the states or to private individuals. We have, then, excluding Alaska forests, a total of about 144,000,000 acres of forests belonging to the government which are being treated in accord with the principles of scientific forestry.

The law now prohibits the reservation of any more forest lands in Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Colorado and Wyoming except by act of congress. I am informed by the department of agriculture that the government owns other tracts of timberland in these states which should be included in the forest reserves. I recommend to congress that the limitation herein imposed be repealed. In the present forest reserves there are lands which are not properly forest land and which ought to be subject to homestead entry.

Coal Lands.

The next subject, and one most important for your consideration, is the disposition of the coal lands in the United States and in Alaska. At the beginning of this administration there were classified coal lands in the United States amounting to 5,476,000 acres, and there were withdrawn from entry for purposes of classification 17,867,000 acres. Since that time there have been withdrawn by my order from entry for classification 78,977,745 acres, making a total withdrawal of 96,844,745 acres. Meantime of the acres thus withdrawn 10,061,889 have been classified and found not to contain coal and have been restored to agricultural entry and 4,726,091 acres have been classified as coal lands, while 79,903,239 acres remain withdrawn from entry and await classification. In addition 337,000 acres have been classified as coal lands without prior withdrawal, thus increasing the classified coal lands to 10,429,372 acres.

The question as to how great an area ought to be included in a lease to one individual or corporation is not free from difficulty, but in view of the fact that the government retains control as owner I think there might be some liberality in the amount leased and that 2,500 acres would not be too great a maximum. The leases should only be granted after advertisement and public competition.

The secretary of the interior thinks there are difficulties in the way of leasing public coal lands. I entirely approved his stating at length in his report the objections in order that the whole subject may be presented to congress, but after a full consideration I favor a leasing system and recommend it.

The needed oil and gas law is essentially a leasing law. In their natural occurrence oil and gas cannot be measured in terms of acres, like coal, and it follows that exclusive title to these products can normally be secured only after they reach the surface. Oil should be disposed of as a commodity in terms of barrels of transportable product rather than in acres of real estate.

Water Power Rates.

The water power sites subject is one that calls for new legislation. It has been thought that there was danger of combination to obtain possession of all the power sites and to unite them under one control. Whatever the evidence of this or lack of it, at present we have had enough experience to know that combination would be profitable, and the control of a great number of power sites would enable the holders or owners to raise the price of power at will within certain sections, and the temptation would promptly attract investors, and the danger of monopoly and extortion would not be a remote one.

However this may be, it is the plain duty of the government to see to it that in the utilization and development of all this immense amount of water power conditions shall be imposed that will prevent extortionate charges, which are the usual accompaniment of monopoly.

The Riverman

By STEWART EDWARD WHITE

"Heinzman," said he, "in three weeks at the latest Orde will come to you asking for a renewal of the notes you hold against our firm. You must refuse to make such a renewal."

"Oh, I ain't backing oudt."

"All righdt," agreed Heinzman.

"He'll probably offer you a higher interest. You must refuse that. Then when the notes are overdue you must begin suit in foreclosure."

"All righdt," repeated Heinzman, a little listlessly. "Do you think he vill hold that jam? I got lots of logs in that jam. If it goes out I vill lose a heap of money."

"Well, you'll make quite a heap on this deal," said Newmark carelessly.

"Suppose he holds it," said Heinzman, pausing. "I hate like the mischief to joomp on him."

Newmark looked at the German sharply. "I suppose you know just how deep you're in this?"

"Oh, I ain't backing oudt," negatived Heinzman—"not a bit."

Little by little the water went down. The pressure, already considerably relieved by the channel into Stearn's bayou, slackened every hour. Orde, still half dazed with his long delayed sleep, drove back along the marsh road to town. Orde began to review the situation. As Newmark had accurately foreseen, he came almost immediately to a realization that the firm would not be able to meet the notes given to Heinzman. Orde had depended on the profits from the season's drive to enable him to make up the necessary amount. Those profits would be greatly diminished if not wiped out entirely by the expenses, both regular and irregular, incurred in holding the jam.

"I'll have to get an extension of time," said Orde to himself. "Of course Joe will let me have more time on my own personal note to the firm. And Heinzman surely ought to. I saved a lot of his logs in that jam. And if he doesn't want to I guess an offer of a little higher interest will fetch him."

Finally he pulled up opposite the Orde house, sprang up the walk and into the front door.

"Hello, sweetheart!" he called cheerfly.

The echoes alone answered him. He cried again and yet again, with a growing feeling of disappointment that Carroll should happen to be from home. A moment later Mary, the Irish servant girl, came through the dining room, caught sight of Orde, threw her apron over her head and burst into extravagant demonstrations of grief.

"What is it, Mary?" he asked very quietly.

But the girl only wept the louder. Orde sprang forward to shower her with questions. These eilcited nothing but broken and incoherent fragments concerning "the missus," "oh, the sad day!" At this moment Bobby appeared from the direction of the kitchen. Orde, frantic with alarm, fell upon his son. Bobby could only mumble something about "smallpox" and "took mamma away with doctor."

"Where, where?" cried Orde.

At this moment a calm, dry voice broke through the turmoil. Orde looked up to see Dr. McMullen standing in the doorway.

"It's all right," said the doctor. "Your wife was exposed to smallpox and is at my house to avoid the danger of spreading contagion. She is not ill."

"Where was she exposed?"

"Down at Heinzman's. You know—or perhaps you don't—that old Heinzman is the worst sort of anti-vaccination crank. Well, he's reaped the reward."

"Has he smallpox?" asked Orde.

"No; his daughter Mina. Lord knows where she got it. Mrs. Orde happened to be with her when she was taken with the symptoms that begin the disease. As a neighborly deed she remained with the girl. Of course no one could tell it was smallpox at that time. Next day, however, the characteristic rash appeared on the thighs and armpits. I telegraphed to Redding for a nurse. Until she came Mrs. Orde stayed by like a brick. Don't know what I should have done without her."

"When was this?" asked Orde.

"Seven days ago."

"How is Mina getting on?"

"She'll get well. I suppose I'll have old Heinzman on my hands, though. Emotional old fool. Rushed right in when he heard his daughter was sick. Couldn't keep him out. And he's been with her or near her ever since."

"I'm going to step up to your house and see Mrs. Orde."

"You can telephone her," said the doctor.

He called up Dr. McMullen's house on the telephone.

"You're a dear, brave girl, and I'm proud of you," said Orde.

"Nonsense! There was no danger at all. I'd been vaccinated recently. And somebody had to take care of poor Mina until we could get help. How's Bobby?"

After lunch Orde went downtown to his office. Newmark came in. "Hello, Joe!" said Orde, with a slight constraint. "Too bad you got sick just at that time. We needed you."

"You know I'd have been there if possible."

"Well, we had a lively time, you bet, all right, and got through about by the skin of our teeth." He arose and walked over to Newmark's desk, on the edge of which he perched. "It's cost us considerable. I'll have to get an extension on those notes."

"What's that?" asked Newmark quickly

"What's that?" asked Newmark quickly.

"I don't believe I'll be able to meet those notes. So many things have happened"—

"But," broke in Newmark, "the firm certainly cannot do so. I've been relying on your assurance that you would take them up personally. Our resources are all tied up."

"Can't we raise anything more on the nothern peninsula timber?" asked Orde.

"You ought to know we can't!" cried Newmark, with an appearance of growing excitement. "The last seventy-five thousand we borrowed for me finishes that."

"Can't you take up part of your note?"

"My note comes due in 1885," rejoined Newmark, with cold disgust. "I expect to take it up then. But I can't until then. I hadn't expected anything like this."

"Well, don't get hot," said Orde vaguely. "I only thought that northern peninsula stuff might be worth saving any way we could figure it."

"Worth saving!" snorted Newmark.

"Well, keep your hair on," said Orde, on whom Newmark's manner was beginning to have its effect, as Newmark intended it should. "You have my Boom company stock as security."

"Pretty security for the loss of a tract like the upper peninsula timber! I thought you'd surely be able to pay it," retorted Newmark, now secure in the position of putting Orde entirely in the wrong.

"Well, I expected to pay it, and I'll pay it yet," rejoined Orde. "I think Heinzman will renew the notes."

He seized his hat and departed. Once in the street, however, his irritation passed. As was the habit of the man, he began more clearly to see Newmark's side and so more emphatically to blame himself. After all, when he got right down to the essentials he could not but acknowledge that Newmark's anger was justified.

"Mr. Heinzman?" he asked briefly of the first clerk.

"He is at home ill."

"Already?" said Orde. He drummed on the rail thoughtfully. The notes came due in ten days.

"Well, who's in charge?"

"Mr. Lambert."

Orde passed through the grill into the inner room.

"Hello, Lambert," he addressed the individual seated at Heinzman's desk. "So you're the boss, eh?"

"Yes, I'm the boss," said he noncommittally.

"Heinzman holds some notes due against our people in ten days," said Orde. "I came in to see about their renewal."

Lambert struck a bell, and to the bookkeeper who answered he said, "John, bring me those Newmark & Orde papers."

The clerk returned and handed to Lambert a long manila envelope. Lambert spread its contents on his knee.

"Note for $75,000 with interest at 10 per cent. Interest paid to Jan. 10. Mortgage deed on certain lands described herein."

"I want to renew the note for another year," Orde explained.

"Can't do it," replied Lambert. "Mr. Heinzman gave me especial instructions in regard to this matter just before his daughter was taken sick."

"But I'll give him 12 per cent for another year."

"He said not to renew even if you offered higher interest."

ALL-SCHOLASTICS WIN FROM HIGH SCHOOL

The Plainfield High School Basketball team met the All-Scholastic five from Jersey City yesterday on the High School court and went down to defeat by an overwhelming score. The final figures were 56 to 36. In the very beginning of the game the visitors showed their superiority at every point of play and made their goals with such ease and precision that P. H. S. had scarcely a look in. In the second half All-Scholastic simply toyed with their opponent, acting mostly on the defensive and only making a goal when there was nothing else to do. It was no disgrace to the local boys to be beaten by this team which has taken the measure of the Columbia College team and others equally strong.

The seniors defeated the juniors yesterday afternoon with ridiculous ease in the first game of the interclass series, the final score being 22 to 12. The next game will be played tomorrow when the sophomores and freshmen clash. These two teams are evenly matched and a good game ought to result.

SIX DAY RACERS ARE AHEAD OF RECORD

The riders in the big six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden are being led a merry pace by MacFarland and Clarke and if the rate is kept up at its present gait the records for past performances will all go by the board. Up to the present only one team has been forced out of the game The French-Belgian pair, Germaine and Verlinden, got lost in the dust of a two-hours' spurt yesterday morning and finally gave up in disgust. First Clarke then MacFarland would set the pace and they kept at it all day long yesterday and last night without giving any of the others a chance to rest or loiter on the big saucer.

But with all their spurting and plugging and trick riding these two indomitable riders have been unable to gain an advantage over any of the other teams in the race. A singular thing and one which is causing much comment among race followers is that there has been no spill producing sprints so far during the race. It is evident that the American team has determined to keep up the pace with which they began the grind until one or more of the less able teams succumb to the terrific strain.

WILSON HELPS MARTINE

Governor - Elect Captures Hudson County Assembly Delegation.

PRIMARY ACT IN DANGER.

Leaders of Both Parties Plan to Repeal Act at the Legislature's Next Session.

While the storm of yesterday conspired to keep most of the politicians of both the Republican and Democratic parties away from the Governor's day confab at the State House, Trenton, it did not prevent the drifting down from Jersey City of the news that Gov.-elect Woodrow Wilson has won over all of the Hudson County Assemblymen from the camp of ex-Senator James Smith, Jr., the Democratic boss, thereby insuring his defeat for the United States Senate.

It was also declared at Trenton yesterday that Dr. Wilson would today or tomorrow issue a statement indorsing James E. Martine for the Senatorship, in conformity with Mr. Martine's indorsement for the place at the September primaries. It is said that Dr. Wilson will first see ex-Senator Smith and ask him to withdraw from the contest, for the sake of Democratic harmony. It is also said that the Martine statement will follow whether Smith gets out of the way or not, and it is likewise said that Smith wil not withdraw. If Smith stays in the race and Wilson indorses Martine, it will insure a mighty lively contest in the coming Legislature.

Without some assistance from Hudson county, ex-Senator Smith cannot control the situation for himself, but he may be able, notwithstanding, to dictate the selection of some compromise candidate. Behind Smith is the State organization of the Democratic party, and it will take some hard knocks to batter down the opposition to Martine.

One result of the Senatorial contest is likely to be an effort to repeal the Direct Primary act, by which the voters have indorsed Martine. The Democratic and Republican bosses alike are opposed to this act, and always have been. It was forced through the Legislature by Governor Fort, and created much dissatisfaction in organization ranks at the time. Since then the leaders have been awaiting some favorable opportunity of overthrowing it, and it is expected that a strong effort will be made along these lines at the coming session.

One of the significant features of Governor's day was the absence of the entire Essex delegation of Assemblymen. None of them has been at the State House since election. This is taken to be part of the campaign in favor of Smith and against Martine. Few of the other Assemblymen were there yesterday. No one seemed inclined to talk about the Senatorial situation.

The failure to line up sufficient support to insure the election of either Smith or Martine up to this time has had a rather disquieting effect on the legislators. They do not know what to make of the situation, and the prudent ones seem to be inclined to remain non-committal until they ascertain which way the wind is blowing.

Among the Republicans, it is expected that the Senatorial caucus will be held on December 20, although Senator Ackerman, last winter's leader, is waiting to hear from some of the Senators before issuing the call. Senator Ackerman will this year succeed Col. Frelinghuysen of Somerset as the presiding officer of the upper branch, and Senator Leavitt, a banking associate of ex-Gov. Stokes, will be the leader of the majority. It is likely that Senator Silzer of Middlesex or Senator Osborne of Essex wil be the leader of the Democratic minority.

It is also practically settled that Assemblyman Kenny of Hudson county will be the next Speaker of the House of Assembly, with either Matthews of Hunterdon or Ramsey of Middlesex as the floor leader of the Democratic majority.

Assemblyman Radcliffe of Passaic will probably receive the complimentary nomination for Speaker by the Republican minority, as he is the dean on that side of the House. Assemblyman McCran, also of Passaic, will doubtless be the minority floor leader. Mr. McCran gave a good account of himself last winter in many party debates, and it was even then predicted that he would be the next leader.

The minority officers of the two houses will be selected at the majority caucuses, when the patronage will be apportioned to the different counties.

HUNDRED MILLION MORE RATABLES IN THE STATE

Discussing the problems of taxation and suggestions for remedying inherent defects of the present system, coupled with the information that the ratables of the state have been increased by nearly a hundrd million dollars during the past year, are among the striking features of the annual report of the state board for the equalization of taxes, which was submitted to Governor Fort.

Conspicuous among the things urged by the board as of prime importance are economy in municipal expenditures; making the county instead of the present taxing district the unit of assessment; abolition of the system of electing assessors; power to remove assessors for incompetency; compulsory discovery of personal property; limiting the amount of exemptions on bank stocks and placing it on a basis of equality with other personal property; power to require tax maps to be used by local boards, and a re-adjustment of the calendar for assessment work.

Various chapters of the report are devoted to the consideration of these and other subjects, some of which are dealt with exhaustively and in some instances upon the lines quite different from the previous treatment of the subjects in this state.

The portion of the report dealing with returns made to the state board shows that the total net ratables for the year 1910 aggregate $2,045,898,213.85. This is an increase over last year of $96,210,926.56. The ratables consist of real estate amounting to $1,776,408,029.50 and personal property aggregating $271,941,267. Deductions for debt amount to $7,167,285.

The total amount of property exempt from taxation in the state is $172,975,158. This is made up as follows Public school property, $9,476, 685; public property, $65,006,926; churches and charitable property, $57,281,560; cemeteries and grave yards, $7,747,207.

FREE WILL OFFERING AT TEMPLE BAPTIST SUPPER.

Under the auspices of the Philathea class of the Temple Baptist church a supper was served in the Baracca class room last evening and in spite of the storm and cold it was well patronized. The affair was unique in that no charge was made for the good things which was set before the visitors, but each one was expected to make a free will offering toward the building fund of the church. A neat sum was realized from these contributions.

The supper was prepared and served by the social committee of the class which was composed of Mrs. Charles Gulberg, chairman; Mrs. Bouton, Mrs. Jaeger and Mrs. Baker. Those who assisted the committee were Mrs. Joslin, Mrs. Westervelt, Mrs. Peel, Mrs. Winn, Mrs. Griffin, Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. Griffin.

DEPUTY JOHN ZULAUF VISITS JERUSALEM LODGE, F. & A. M.

District Deputy John Zulauf, of the Fifth Masonic district, made his annual visitation to Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. & A. M., last night. There was no work, the communication being given over entirely to an exemplification of the ritualistic work. Owing to the storm the attendance of members was rather small. Following the business of the evening a collation was served.

The annual communication for the election of officers will be held on Tuesday evening, December 20. Dr. George D. Herring is the present worshipful master and Robert Kenny, the secretary. Following the election a banquet will be served.

The request of the board of directors of the Plainfield Chamber of Commerce for the use of the Library parlor was granted. The president was authorized to make such repairs to the building as he in his judgment may deem necessary.

NO AUTO RECIPROCITY

Worthy Master of New Jersey Range Favors Non-Resident Licenses

PROTECTION TO THE STATE.

The State Has Paid Far More for Its Splendid Highways Than Has Its Neighbors.

Declaring that New Jersey's peculiar conditions forbid reciprocity methods in the matter of state auto licenses, Senator George W. Gaunt, worthy master of the New Jersey State Grange, in his annual address before the granges, at Atlantic City, yesterday went on record as opposed to giving non-resident auto tourists the freedom of the splendid Jersey highways without securing a license.

"In our highway system we have already rendered a service to non-residents which no other state has undertaken to give Jerseymen," declared Senator Gaunt. "If Pennsylvania or New York attempted to duplicate our road system it would cost them approximately $100,000,000, and in Pennsylvania it would be necessary to condemn the toll roads.

"Touring by residents is the rule in most states, but in New Jersey the condition is the reverse. In this state there are more non-resident cars run than resident. Mile for mile, there are from fifteen to twenty times as many automobiles running in New Jersey roads as in any other state. Of this number there are fully twice as many non-resident tourists as autoists who reside within our borders. New York, with its 5,000,000 population is closer for motoring purposes to New Jersey than it is to the highways of its own state; and when the superior condition of our highways is taken into consideration, the dissimilarity between the two states is obvious.

"While the increase in revenue from motor vehicles has jumped about 25 per cent. a year, the added repair charges alone on the macadam rodas have increased at the some rate. Cost of repairs during the past four years has averaged approximately four times the total of money received from automobile licenses. Jersey rodas are edteriorating so rapidly that it has been impossible to keep pace in repairs, according to the state commissioner of repairs.

"Notwithstanding this, certain auto clubs in the state are advocating the adoption of a law which would permit non-resident tourists to use our highways without obtaining licenses, basing their plea on the fact that Jerseymen are accorded such a privilege in other states, and it would be unneighborly for our state not to reciprocate the courtesy. Could any state that affords the same splendid facilities for auto travel be discovered, it would be no more than jnust to return the favor, but this is practically impossible.

"We have abolished the speed-trap system, but the instant non-residente lose their identity, which now can be readily estblished by their license number, it will be necessary to re-establish the speed-trap, to halt those who would take advantage of the freedom of the roads, and the resulting damage to the roads, would call for a big increase to maintian the present high standard.

"The only reason offered by non-residents for insisting upon the proposed legislation is the trouble and annoyance involved in obtaining registration. This matter, however important, may be easily overcome. The commissioner of motor vehicles of this state has advised me that he has already worked out an elaborate plan whereby registration can be made automatic; where a car licensed in one state may thereby be automatically registered in all other states in which it may travel, so that an automobilist may, at the state of his residence, secure registration form his own state bureau, giving him the privilege of the other states in which he may travel."

Plainfield Council to Elect.

The annual election of officers of Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum will be held tomorrow night and after the business of the evening, H. J. Bierman, alternate supreme representative, of Newark, will address the members. Mr. Bierman is well-known in Arcanian circles as an eloquent and entertaining talker.

The Mozart Club to Meet.

The Mozart Club will meet Saturday morning at 9 o'clock in the studio of Miss May Vincent Whitney in the Babcock building. This club is three years old and the members take great pleasure in the study of advanced music.

Owing to the snow storm the mid-week chase of the Watchung Hunt Club, scheduled for this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock will be postponed.

POLICE APPOINTMENTS REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

In the rush of business at the Common Council meeting on Monday night the impression was gained that Fred Bader and Thomas O'Gorman were advanced from specials to regulars on the police force. Charles C. Randolph, the efficient chairman of the police committee, as a matter of fact, had the appointments of Mayor Fisk referred to his committee following the usual custom, inasmuch as the mayor's appointments were not known until brought to the city fathers' meeting.

Both of the nominees will have to undergo the required physical and mental tests before the police committee will take any action. Therefore, it is extremely unlikely, it is said, that the Common Council will be called upon to confirm either appointment until after the first of the year if at all. Had confirmation been made on Monday night both O'Gorman and Bader would be under the tenure of office law on the eve of the new administration.

SMITH REFUSES WILSON'S REQUEST TO WITHDRAW

Governor-elect Wilson had a long talk with former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., last night on the United States senatorial problem. Neither would discuss today what took place at the conference. From a reliable source, however, it is learned that Dr. Wilson pleaded with Smith to take himself out of the race for the sake of the party. He told the Newark editor, it is said, that the party was pledged to abide by the direct primary result and that therefore Martine was the logical candidate.

Senator Smith, according to report, is understood to have informed the Governor-elect that he did not consider the primary verdict binding and that under no circumstances would he withdraw. He claimed, it is asserted, that he had thirty-four votes pledged to him on joint ballot, and was therefore in control of the situation.

Dr. Wilson left Mr. Smith asking him to reconsider his determination for a few days. It is taken for granted by friends of both that unless Smith does withdraw in the course of a few days, the Governor-elect will make a formal statement to the people of New Jersey demanding that the Legislature heed the voice of the primary and elect Martine.

CHRISTMAS SOCIAL AND TEA TO BE REPEATED MONDAY.

Owing to the storm last night the Christmas social and Japanese tea held under the auspices of the Women's Guild of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, was not very well attended, but those who did brave the storm were well repaid for their heroism. However, the fact that the attendance was not up to the mark has determined the women to repeat the affair so that all may have a chance to see and enjoy the good things provided on next Monday evening.

Last evening, Mrs. Juan A. Babcock dispensed tea in the costume of a Japanese woman while the Misses Elizabeth and Alice Foster sold candy. Mrs. A. B. Drake had lots of cocoa, cake and fancy articles to dispose of the majority of which will keep until Monday.

MAJOR MARTIN MAKES PERFECT SCORE IN SHOOT.

Major William B. Martin, who is well known here, having been the captain of Co. K, won the .22 calibre indoor rifle championship of Elizabeth, Saturday night. Major Martin's fame as a rifle expert is almost world-wide, for he tied for the championship of the world at the Olympic games.

Those who witnessed the contest Saturday night, had their first opportunity of seeing how Major Martin "does the trick." He was high both at prone and off-hand shooting, at the former style having a perfect score of fifty. His total score for off-shoulder and prone shooting was 97.

Freeholders to Meet.

FOR ENLARGEMENT FUND

Congregational Women Hold Successful Musicale and Sale.

FANCY GOODS BRING $187.

Weather Fails to Keep Women Church Workers at Home—Program a Delightful One.

The women of the Congregational church held a musicale and sale of fancy goods, cake and candy yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. F. A. Weeks, West Seventh street, and in spite of the weather the affair was largely attended and $187 realized for the enlargement fund of the church.

The sale was preceded by a delightful program of music and readings. The Misses Martine Weeks and Elizabeth Martin rendered a piano duet with splendid effect, which was followed by a whistling solo by Mrs. C. A. Rice, who played her own accompaniment on the piano.

A feature of the program was the singing of a group of Indian songs by Miss Elsie S oddard. These selections with their quaint music and peculiarly effective motives completely fascinated the audience and brought to the singer enthusiastic applause. The songs are by C. W. Cadman. Miss Scott was an admirable accompanist.

A delightfully humorous reading, entitled "A Corner in Pickles," was given by Miss Lou Fuller, whose audience was convulsed with laughter over the "old man's" predilection for pickles.

The sale was under the supervision of Mrs. J. W. Beekman, general chairman of the women's association. The booths were in charge of the following: Handkerchiefs, Mrs. Percy Van Alstyne, chairman; Mrs. T. F. Hylan and Mrs. Thad. Doane, Jr.; utility, Miss Jessie McIntosh, chairman; Mrs. J. V. Hubbard, Mrs. Mary Harold, Mrs. C. L. Goodrich, Mrs. F. A. Weeks and Miss Ethel McIntosh.

The cake booth was presided over by Mrs. C. A. Rice, assisted by Mrs. John R. Martin, Mrs. Carl Steiner and the Misses Weseman and Winckler. The candy counter, Mrs. Philip Suffern, chairman; Mrs. G. P. Rhoades and Miss Ethel Miller.

Tea was poured by Mrs. McIntosh and Mrs. Joseph Robinson, and was served by Mrs. Roland Rice and the Misses Weeks and Martin.

The Congregational church has long felt the need of more room particularly for their Sunday school and it is expected that the necessary funds for a projected enlargement of the present edifice will be soon be in hand for the purpose of building an addition. There has already been subscribed an amount of considerable size for this proposition.

FREE ILLUSTRATED TALK ON THE "GRAND CANYON."

The first of the Board of Education course of free public lectures will be given by Mr. Brigham in the Washington school tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. He is a Harvard man of the class of '80, the same class as former President Roosevelt. He was a member of the varsity crew during each year of his course and was soloist of the Glee club. His life has been spent on the plains and mountains of the west, where he was for four years U. S. Marshal for the territory of Utah.

His lecture on the "Grand Canyon of the Colorado" is the result of months experience passed in the canyon, and is splendidly illustrated by numerous stereoptican views. It is a lecture of brilliant description with a natural by-play of humor and of historical interest.

Eugene M. Laing and others have purchased the property on the east-side of the Y. W. C. A. property on East Front street, belonging to Mrs. O. L. The property is 40x165, and is considered especially desirable for the purpose intended, being on a main thoroughfore and near the business section of the city.

MARK SULLIVAN NAMED TO SUCCEED J. B. DILL

Governor Fort yesterday named Assemblyman Mark A. Sullivan, of Hudson County, leader of the minority House, to the Court of Errors and Appeals. He succeeds the late James B. Dill, who died recently.

Mr. Sullivan is the youngest man to be appointed to the highest court of the state. Mr. Sullivan was born in Jersey City on November 23,1878, and is a lawyer by profession. He was educated at St. Peter's Parochial School, Jersey City, and graduated from St. Peter's College, Jersey City, in the class of 1897 with the degree of A. B. and received the degree of A. M. from the same institution in 1898.

He was admitted to the bar of New Jersey in February, 1903, and served as a representative of Hudson County in the Assembly in 1909 and 1910.

The appointment of Mr. Sullivan is an ad interim one made by Governor Fort after consultation with Governor-elect Wilson. Mr. Sullivan will be re-appointed by the incoming executive for a full six-years term. The salary is $20 a day for actual service and will average about $4,000 a year.

Assemblyman Mark A. Sullivan received the news of his appointment as judge of the Court of Errors and Appeals before noon yesterday direct from Trenton. Governor Fort had previously conferred with him on the subject.

When asked yesterday whether he would accept, Mr. Sullivan said:

"I am deeply sensative of the high honor and I believe I shall accept the office. The acceptance of the position means a rearrangement of my private business, for I shall refrain from actual law practise while on the bench. I have not yet arranged all my affairs to meet the new situation, but I expect to have my plans completed shortly."

HEPTASOPHS ELECT OFFICERS FOR THE COMING YEAR.

Numbers of Heptasophs braved the elements last night to attend the meeting at the lodge rooms on Park avenue. Interest in Protective Conclave, No. 505, Imporved Order of Heptasophs has greatly increased since the visit of the Baltimore delegates on November 16, at which time Dr. H. B. Muse gave his address on the order, the new members initiated on that occasion numbering thirty-five.

Last night's meeting was for the purpose of electing officers for the coming year. The election was followed by a social time. The following men were chosen officers: Sitting Past Archon, A. H. Vanderhoef; archon, Edward McCarthy; provost, N. J. R. Chandler; secretary, F. H. Evans; treasurer, E. M. Laing; financier, William Higgins; prelate, Geo. Hueme; inspector, William Anderson; warder, Jack Hallard; sentinel, John LaPoidivau; trustees, R. H. Barnard, P. R. Lindsley and Frank Day.

PLAINFIELDER WINNING SUCCESS ON THE STAGE.

Apropos of the appearance of a local young man at the Plainfield theatre, Monday night, it is worthy of note that another Plainfielder is achieving success on the dramatic stage. He is Edward Springer, who lived with his father on Grove street for many years, the latter conducting a shoe business on West Front street. The young man took up theatrical work several years ago and is now playing important parts.

This week Mr. Springer is appearing at the Bijou theatre, Philadelphia in "The Raven's Nest," assuming a character role. Those who have seen him in the piece say he exhibits marked ability. He is a brother of Alfred Springer, of West Front street.

All Three Fined.

A trio of husky young men from the West End not satisfied with a considerable cargo of intoxicants obtained in the neighborhood of their homes came into the center of town at 6:30 last evening and attempted to buy an addition to their already heavy load. They were unsuccessful and created a disturbance, finally starting a fight among themselves. Patrolman Sweeney escorted the three to police headquarters where they were arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning. Each was fined $3.

Few Assessment Complaints.

The borough officials have received word that the Somerset county board for the equalization of taxes would probably meet in North Plainfield next week for adjustments. The number of complaints this year are unusually small and it is not likely that more than six appeals for reductions on assessments will be made.

BURGLARS AGAIN ACTIVE

Visit New Market Once More and Loot the Village Post Office.

THEY GET SOME BOOTY.

Value of Cash, Stamps and Cards Taken Placed at $400—Postmaster Charles S. Day Again a Loser.

After a brief period of inactivity, burglars again paid a visit to New Market, last night, and found their presence on the postoffice and general store kept by Charles S. Day, in the heart of the village. They effected an entrance through a side window and played havoc with cash drawers and similar receptacles. They secured in all about $50 in money and a like amount in stamps and post cards.

The invaders passed the safe as a hard proposition but would have secured little for their pains, anyway Postmaster Day makes a practice of taking most of the cash and stamps to his home at the close of each day's business. Most of the money stolen from the drawers was Mr. Day's own change supply and is his personal lose.

After leaving the postoffice, the burglars journeyed up the street to the New Market schoolhouse, where they forced entrance to the basement, and evidently wrapped up the stolen cards and stamps in leisurely fashion. A bundle of wrapping paper was taken from the Day store and the remains of it were found at the schoolhouse this morning.

During the past year New Market has been a stamping ground for burglars. The Lehigh Valley station was robbed a short time ago and on one occasion this fall four houses were entered on one night. Postmaster Day suffered a severe loss early in October by someone entering his meat market further up the street from the postoffice, and pouring kerosene about the shop. All the meat in the place was piled in a heap on the floor and the fluid was sprinkled on it and also on the fixtures. A loss of $200 was occasioned.

The police in all the surrounding towns have been notified of last night's affair and a determined effort is being made to apprehend the burglars.

UNION COUNTY TAX BOARD MEETS COMPLAINANTS HERE.

The Union County Board of Taxation held another session this morning in the Common Council rooms to meet with property-owners who have complaints as to their assessments. There were complaints from the Central Land Improvment Company on nine different parcels, and five other individual complaints, most of a trivial matter.

The board listened to the arguments of the complainants and will decide upon them later. If there are a sufficient number of complaints received in the next few days another session will be held in Plainfield. Among the cases presented this morning were several in which the protest was over the ownership of automobiles.

Harris Jury Disagrees.

The jury before which Girard Harris was tried in Elizabeth on charge of reckless automoblie driving was locked up over night and this morning reported to Judge Atwater that they had failed to come to an agreement. The Judge discharged the jury. It was not learned how the jury stood, but it was rumored that five men held out for a verdict of guilty while seven were for the acquittal of Mr. Harris, who was defended by Judge William Newcorn.

For the Children's Home.

A piano recital will be given at the Park Club on Monday evening, December 12, for the benefit of the Children's Home. A novel feature of the music will be that all the accompaniments and solo piano work will be played on a Hallet and Davis player piano. Tickets will be on sale tomorrow and may be obtained from the steward of the Park Club or at the Hallett and Davis piano warerooms, 170 East Front street.

Goes to County Jail.

Fred Schnell whose bondsman surrendered him on Monday, has been unable to obtain a bondsman to insure the payments demanded by the Overseer of the Poor for the support of Mary Canary's child and has been remanded to the County jail at Elizabeth pending an effort to secure the necessary bonds.

HISTORY OF RED CROSS SEALS SINCE 1862

Judging from present indications the sale of the Red Cross seals which were put in the stores on Thursday last will eclipse in quantity the number of stamps sold last year at this time. Many people have become interested in the movement of the fight against tuberculosis because they have seen the results obtained by careful treatment in this city. Hundreds of the little seals will be used on Christmas packages an on letters containing happy tidings of the season. It must be remembered, however, that when the seals are used on packages or letters to be sent by mail that the seals must be placed on the back of the letters or package and that they are not to be used in place of Uncle Sam's postage stamps.

Red Cross Christmas seals date back in their origin to "charity stamps," first used for the soldiers' relief fund in Boston in 1862, during the Civil War. After the war, this method of raising money was discontinued in this country for a generation, although it found vogue in Portugal, Switzerland, Australia, France, Spain, Denmark, Norway, Russia, Sweden and other European countries. There are now several hundred different types of charity stamps used in all parts of the world.

Stamps or seals were first used to get money for the anti-tuberculosis crusade in Norway and Sweden in 1904. After being used in these countries for three years, as a direct result of the interest of Jacob Riis in this movement, the Delaware Anti-Tuberculosis Association, headed by Miss Emily P. Bissell, and the Red Cross Society of Delaware combined in issuing a Tuberculosis Stamp. So successful was this campaign that nearly $3,000 was realized, and the next year, in 1908, the American Red Cross was induced to issue a National Red Cross Tuberculosis Stamp. From this sale, $135,000 was realized, that amount being almost doubled in 1909. This year, for the first time, the sale is organized on a comprehensive basis, taking in all parts of the United States. A million for tuberculosis work is confidently expected.

GIRLS TO HUNT.

Elizabeth Young Women Will Seek Wild Game.

Elizabeth, Dec. 7.—Not to be outdone by Elizabeth men who have gone with their trusty rifles into the woods, fields and hills for game during the past few weeks, a party of Elizabeth girls have decided to do a little hunting for themselves. They will go to Dover during Christmas week and there camp out until the larder is well stocked with game, at least enough to make a showing when the party returns to town.

The girls are Miss Hattie Syers, Miss Emily McGhee, Miss Gertrude Brunner, Miss Helen Carey, Miss Anna Carey and Miss Eva Humphrey. Miss Humphrey will take the girls to her home when they return for a good dinner. They will then form a theatre party at one of the playhouses in Newark.

P. S. C. CHARGES THEFT.

Alleged Current Was Stolen for Picture Place.

Paterson, Dec. 7.—As a result of an alleged discovery that the Public Service Corporation had been the victim of a wholesale theft of electricity, the Paterson Show, in Market street, the largest moving picture theatre in the city, was closed Monday night and will remain closed until the current is again turned on.

Inspectors of the Electric Lighting Company Monday afternoon found they say, that the mains had been tapped by a private wire, which furnished light to the motion picture theatre. The place changed hands several days ago and the new owners were surprised when informed of the discovery.

Warrants have been issued for the former owners, who are said to be in New York.

ARM TORN OUT.

Man Whirled by Belting in Oilcloth Plant.

Trenton, Dec. 7.—Whirled about on the shafting in the plant of the Trenton Oilcloth and Linoleum Company's plant, Joseph Benz's right arm was torn from its socket and his right leg sustained a fracture, in addition to numerous lacerations and bruises about the body.

It is supposed that Benz was trying to adjust a belt when his clothing became caught in the machinery. When fellow workmen heard his cry he had been drawn up to the shaft.

As quickly as possible the machinery was stopped, but not until it was too late to prevent the injuries.

Aged Hotel Man Dies.

Red Bank, Dec. 7.—Charles G. French, one of the best known hotel men in Monmouth County, died Sunday night at his home in Monmouth street, from general debility. He was 82 years old. He leaves one daughter, wife of Councilman George Brower, and one brother, William A. French, with whom he lived, and who is now in New Smyrna, Florida, where he went last month by automobile.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

While the message of President Taft is what might be called mighty interesting reading, few American citizens have either the time or inclination to persue the document as carefully as they should. To those who wish to learn at a glance what recommendations are made the following summary will be of interest:

The stoppage of legislation with reference to the regulation of corporations and the strict enforcement of existing laws.

The invitation of expressions from other powers on the proposition of limiting armaments by international agreement.

Economy of administration, the enlargement of opportunities for foreign trade, the building of home industry and the strengthening of confidence of capital in domestic investment.

Some form of ship subsidy to increase American shipping, especially to South America

That the tariff board be made permanent and that all future revisions be made schedule by schedule. The President opposes another general revision and says he will not recommend any tariff legislation until the new Congress convenes.

An appropriation of $19,000,000 for the fortification of the Panama Canal.

The abolition of all "pork barrel" methods in river and harbor and public building bills.

The enactment of anti-injunction and federal incorporation laws.

The readjustment of second-class mail rates.

The establishment of a new banking and currency system.

Two new battleships and several auxiliary vessels for the navy.

That coal, phosphate and oil lands and water-power sites be disposed of in the future by leasing.

The extension of the civil service principle to the diplomatic and consular corps.

More officers for the army.

The early completion of fortifications now in course of construction.

The physical valuation of railroads by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The establishment of parcels post on rural free delivery routes.

The curtailment of the franking privilege and the placing of the first, second and third-class postmasters on the civil service list.

The establishment of a bureau of public health.

THE FORUM.

SUGGESTS DEBATING CLUB.

Editor, The Daily Press,

Monday afternoon at the Monday Afternoon club, Miss Mary A. Jordan gave an address on "Democracy and Woman," in which she said some things in opposition to giving the suffrage to women.

Monday night at the Democratic club rooms, Mrs. Riley, president of the Equal Suffrage League and Miss Bateman gave addresses on the justice of giving votes to women.

Surely these questions concerning women are fast forcing themselves to the front as are many others of importance. May I suggest that there is room and need for a "parliamentary debating club," in Plainfield where many important questions of benefit to the city and nation could be debated with much educational profit all around.

May I ask that you kindly print this and ask for an expression of opinion in your valuable journal.

J. W Harrison.

Plainfield, December 5, 1910.

'PHONE COMPANIES CAN FURNISH FREE SERVICE.

In the opinion of Attorney-General Edmund Wilson, the act of 1910, establishing the Board of Public Utility Commissioners, does not prevent a telephone company seeking a franchise from furnishing free telephone service at public places, such as firehouses, city halls, police departments and public schools. The question was raised by the municipal authorities of Ventnor, who contemplated the granting of a telephone franchise, subject to certain obligations, to furnish free service to the city.

The act of 1910 provides that no public utility shall give, grant or bestow upon any local, municipal or county official any discrimination, gratuity or free service whatsoever. The Board of Public Utility Commissioners was asked for a construction of this provision, and the board, in turn, referred the question to the attorney-general.

In construing the purpose of the act, the attorney-general said:

"In my opinion, the language of the statute has regard merely to such discrimination, gratuity or free service as may be granted or bestowed upon the class of officials described by its terms. The discrimination and gratuity forbidden is purely personal in its scope.

"In my opinion, the act would not prevent the granting of a franchise to a telephone company by a municipality, when, by the terms of the franchise, free service was to be furnished the firehouse, city hall and other public departments within the confines of the municipality. Such free service might well be one of the moving considerations in the granting of the franchise, and does not, in my opinion, fall within the evil which the statute sought to eliminate."

AN INQUISITIVE GIRL PREFERRED THE SEALS.

"Mamma, what's a seal?" asked eight-year-old Mary, looking up from the paper, whose black headlines she was laboriously deciphering.

"A seal is a little animal that lives in the ocean. We use its fur for coats and wraps," was the enlightening answer of the parent.

Mary puckered her brow for some minutes and again interrogated, "Mamma, will seals stop plague?" referring perhaps to some of the Biblical narratives she had heard told in Sunday-schol.

"Stop plagues! Why, child what are you talking about?" cried the mother in amazement.

"Why, here it says, 'Red Cross Seals Stops White Plague,'" triumphantly holding up the paper.

The mamma explained to her little girl that the Red Cross Seal is a tiny stamp-like sticker which is placed on the back of letters and packages coming from Santa Claus and others. Every seal costs a penny, and every jenny goes to fight and cure consumption, which is the real name of the white plague, and which is an awful sickness. Mamma told her of a little girl in their own neighborhood who had consumption, but who was given a chance to get well because the people had bough Red Cross Seals.

Mary listened attentively, and finally touched by the closeness of the appeal, said, "Mamma, I think I'd rather have some of those seals than a new dolly."

PUBLIC PROVISION CONSUMPTIVES.

Sixteen state sanatoria, twenty-eight hospitals, and twenty-one municipal hospitals for tuberculosis have been erected and provided for since January 1, 1909, says a bulletin of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, issued today.

Within the last two years the number of state institutions for tuberculosis has doubled, and the number of county and municipal institutions has increased from about 30 to 80. The expenditures of public money for treatment of tuberculosis also has more than doubled. Not less than $3,000,000 of state money was appropriated for tuberculosis institutions in 1909, when 43 legislatiures met, and over $600,000 in 1910, when only eleven legislatures were insession. The hospitals and sanatoria in the last two years will aggregate fully $2,500,000 bringing the total of official appropriations for tuberculosis hospitals up to over $6,000,000 in the past two years.

In spite, however, of this good showing, the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis states that not one-tenth of the public provisions for tuberculosis that is neded has been made. More than 250,000 tuberculosis patients are constantly without proper institutional treatment.

HERE AND THERE.

The pecularities of the postal system were demonstrated yesterday, when a young woman of this city, received a letter, that she had written more than a year ago, to a friend at Flemington. She thought at first it was strange that she did not get a reply to her letter, but a little later correspondence between the two was resumed and has been continued ever since. When the miscarried letter turned up yesterday, the young woman was greatly surprised for the matter had passed out of her mind entirely. It was learned that the letter had gone to Flemington, but had failed in delivery and then in the course of time went to the Dead Letter Office in Washington, from which point it was returned to the writer.

WANTS COUNTY TAX BOARD ABOLISHED.

Atlantic City, Dec. 7,—Repeal of the law authorizing the formation of county boards of taxation was the text of a resolution offered in the session of the New Jersey State Grange, yesterday. The resolution was presented by A. G. Van Ness and referred to the legislative committee. It will be reported on at the afternoon session today.

The Grange is decidely against this law and there is not the slightest doubt but the resolution will be unanimously adopted. The State Grange has endeavored for the last two years, through its worthy master, Senator Gaunt, to have this bill repealed, but up to this time has not been successful.

Another resolution coming from the Swedesboro Grange deals with the question of a uniform package measure for farm products. There are now two or three sized baskets used by the farmers, and the State Grange wants a law passed that will make the baskets and other receptacles for farm produce of a uniform size.

A. G. Van Ness presented a resolution calling for a change in the standards of milk He said that there were some men being prosecuted now for selling lacteal fluid that did not come up to the standards, but that they were not guilty of a violation of the law for the simple reason that they were dispensing their milk as it has come from their cows and that they were not at fault if the cows did not give milk that was up to the standards required by the State laws.

DESERTED, ENDS LIFE IN CISTERN.

Paterson, Dec. 7.—Crazed by the absence of her husband, who had deserted her three months ago, Mrs. Frank McDaniels, of Clara street, North Haledon, committed suicide late yesterday by jumping into a cistern in the rear of her home.

Mrs. McDaniels, after preparing the noon-day meal, wrote a number of letters in which she stated that she was going to end her life and asked forgiveness. She then left the house and it is believed wandered about in the snow some time.

When she did not return searchers went on the hunt after her for several miles around. The McDaniels home is at the base of High Mountain and the hunt led over the high altitude down the valley to the ice ponds. It was not until late this afternoon that someone discovered some of her clothing, which she had discarded near the cistern. Her body was taken out with considerable difficulty.

Frank McDaniels, the dead woman's husband, was a member of the Board of Education at North Haledon and was in good circumstances when he disappeared.

Cragin Divorce Incident.

The New York Herald, of yesterday contained this "personal" advertisement: "Ruth Anglover Wilson, formerly my servant five years; information wanted as to her whereabouts at once; it will be to her advantage. W. B. Cragin, Jr., 44 Hudson street." Mr. Cragin is a crack tennis player. He lived here for some time at Truell Hall. Recently, he sought a divorce from his wife, following a similar acting brought by Mrs. Cragin. The matter is still pending in the courts.

The body is being held at the home of Mrs. Johnson, on Grove street, with whom Hale boarded.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The baby blizzard yesterday was well taken care in town, the sidewalks being ketpt open by the Township snow plow so that the residents could get around in fairly good shape. The trolley company maintained a fair schedule considering what they were up against.

The weekly prayer and praise service of the Baptist church, will be held tonight in the church parlor. Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews will lead the meeting.

Owing to the storm, the Bachelor's Club decided to postpone the club's monthly dance which was to have been held last night, in Excelsior Hall.

The snow storm will give the "cotton tails" a short respite, as the law forbids hunting while their is a tracking snow.

Only one session of the publis school was held yesterday, school closing for the day ot 1 o'clock.

The electric light current on Front street was out of commission last night owing to the snow storm.

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Corry, of Park avenue, have been entertaining friends from out of town.

5,000 LBS. CANNED EGGS SEIZED, 34,000,000 GERMS.

United States marshalls yesterday, seized 5,000 pounds of "canned" eggs shipped into Chicago. United States District Attorney Sims charges that they were spoiled, and that a test of one teaspoonful of the substance showed the presence of 34,000,000 bacteria, of which at least 1,000,000 were of the gas producing variety.

Mr. Sims declares the seizure is the beginning of a federal crusade against spoiled eggs, both "canned" and desiccated, which the government officials claim are being shipped here by the ton and sold in various forms to the Middle West and East, though much of the substance, according to test, is said to be unfit for food. Federal agents are now posted at receiving stations.

GOV-ELECT WILSON FOR ELECTION FRAUD PROBE.

That Governor-elect Wilson has taken more than ordinary interest in the election frauds in Camden and Atlantic counties, was indicated yesterday morning, when he had a long talk with Frank W. Halliday, representing the Democratic State committee.

Mr. Halliday called on Mr. Wilson at his home in Princeton and at the close of the conference it was said that Governor-elect had promised to give Mr. Halliday all the assistance in his power. He urged that the probe go as deep as possible, and added that his ambition was to see purer elections.

Mr. Wilson seemed especially interested in the effort being made to probe the frauds in Camden county, although he declared that if any other county showed corruption that also should be investigated.

There had been some talk that the Camden Bar Association would not receive the support it thought it was entitled to in prosecuting the fraud cases. Mr. Wilson made it plain that he wanted no let up in the inquiry.

BATTLESHIP STOKER IS CONVICTED OF MURDER.

Ernest H. Walker, a fireman of the battleship Kansas, has been convicted by a court-martial of having caused the death of Patrick J. Fitzsimmons, a water tender of the Louisiana, and sentenced to six years' imprisonment.

The court found that the crime was not premeditated.

Fitzsimmons was a participant in a free fight between white and negro bluejackets from the second division of the United States Atlantic fleet on November 18, and received wounds from which he died at a hospital on the following day.

The court-martial was held on board Rear Admiral Vreeland's flagship, the Louisiana, at Cherbourg, on Saturday, and the verdict became known today.

Ernest Weber, of Greenbrook road, will sail for Germany next Saturday to assume charge of a business for his father.

MAIL TRAVELS MILE A MONTH.

The mail service between Jersey City and Montclair is rather slow, if a recent experience of Dr. James McDonough, a veterinary surgeon of Portland place, Montclair, is a sample. Dr. McDonough recently had a number of dogs to dispose of for a Montclair resident, who didn't like the town's ordinance regulating canines.

The fact that this man wished to give away a large kennel of high-bred dogs through Dr. McDonough was published all over the country, and he soon got rid of the animals.

Picking up his mail Saturday, the doctor found a letter bearing a Jersey City postmark, in which the writer asked for one of the animals.

Looking the missive over carefully, the veterinary found that it bore a date December, 1909, and was therefore about a year in transit.

In answer, Dr. McDonough told his correspondent that he had no more dogs.

"But," he added, "if the mail service between Montclair and Jersey City does not improve I probably will have when this letter reaches you."

CRANFORD MAN MISSING.

Starts for Canada and Hasn't Been Heard From.

Cranford, Dec. 7.—Albert Tusch, of New York, formerly of Cranford, is missing. Mrs. Anna Tusch, his wife, accompanied by her widowed mother, Mrs. Mary Dexter, visited police headquarters in New York yesterday and requested the authorities to search for Tusch, who they believe has met with foul play.

When Tusch, who is 32 years old, kissed his wife godbye, November 7, he said he was going to Montreal. He promised to write home, but never did. He did not go to the hotel he designated.

Traffic Blocked by Fire.

Elizabeth, Dec. 7.—At Pine and Third streets a chimney fire at the house of James Enright, 323 Bond street, Monday resulted in the blocking of traffic on the Long Branch division of the Central Railroad for several minutes. The firemen laid their hose across the tracks, prepared to fight the fire if water was necessary. The blaze was quickly extinguished.

Fire Threatens Factory.

Red Bank, Dec. 7—During a blinding snowstorm the firemen were called out Monday afternoon to put out a fire that threatened to destroy Demarco's clothing factory, in Bridge avenue, where a number of men and women are employed. The upsetting of a stove set fire to the woodwork. Several employees had narrow escapes.

NO MONEY DOWN

Talks With the Credit Man

A hundred years ago credit was practically unknown. Neither merchant nor mechanic wanted it—didn't need it. It's different nowadays. Every man, whether in business or working at a bench, can use credit to advantage. The world would be a funny place indeed without it.

Life is brighter—and better—when your credit is "O. K," and you can furnish your home beautifully without taxing your income.

Every trustworthy man or woman can open a charge account in this store. It doesn't cost you a penny extra. No red tape—no trouble at all—just charge your purchases and pay at your convenience.

HAPPY RESULTS.

Have Made Many Plainfield Residents Enthusiastic.

No wonder scores of Plainfield citizens grow enthusiastic. It is enough to make anyone happy to find relief after years of suffering. Public statements like the following are but truthful representations of the daily work done in Plainfield by Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. J. C. Manchester, 120 Lafayette place, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I was a sufferer from kidney and bladder trouble for a long time. I doctored a great deal but failed to find a cure until I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and made up my mind to give them a trial. Good results followed their use and my kidneys were soon restored to a normal condition. I believe my cure is a permanent one and I will always give Doan's Kidney Pills my endorsement when an opportunity occurs."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co. Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Richard Tyler, of Paulsboro, picked a pimple on his chin, and as a result is suffering with blood poison.

Bitten on the leg by a dog, William Plugh, forty-six years old, of 224 Division street, Camden, had the wound cauterized at the Homeopathic Hospital Monday.

It is rumored that the West Jersey and Seashore Railroad Company will double-track and electrify its line from Millville to the seashore before next season opens.

Upsetting a cup of hot tea Monday, William Astrod, thirteen months old, of 335 Mickle street, Camden, was cared for at the Homeopathic Hospital.

Some thief robbed the hennery of Rev. A. N. Smith, of Paterson Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, Paterson, early Monday morning. The thief also stole the milk that the milkman had left at Mr. Smith's home.

Thomas Lord, who is a very strong man, was carrying a heavy stove on the street in Beverly, when he stumbled over a projecting flagstone and the stove fell upon him. He was found unconscious and is in a serious condition.

First Lieutenant Frank J. Toner this week will assume temporary charge of Company G, Third Regiment, of Beverly, the resignation of Captain James Cain, for thirty years its commander, having been accepted by the State military authorities.

On the ground of desertion, Mrs. Florence T. Hack of Westmont, has received an absolute divorce from her husband, Harry E. Hack, of Trenton, Howard Miller, her counsel, having received word to that effect, in Camden, Monday.

David C. Richards seventy-one years old, complained to his wife after eating supper at the State Soldiers' Home in Vineland, Sunday night, that he "felt funny." Richardson began to tremble and inside of three minutes he was dead from heart disease. His former home was in Paterson.

Following argument on the application for a writ of certiorari reviewing the action of the Council of Sea Isle City in adopting a resolution vacating the seat of Thomas E. Ludlam as a member, Supreme Court Justice Trenchard in Camden Monday reserved decision. Because he missed fifteen out of seventeen meetings of the Council, Ludlam's seat was declared vacant, and John Dallas was chosen his successor.

N. Y AMUSEMENTS.

"Alma, Where do You Live?" is still staying at Joe Weber's Theatre, 29th Street and Broadway, with Kitty Gordon, the English beauty, and best dressed woman on the New York stage, and promises to draw capacity houses until the end of the season. One of the hits in the play is being made by Miss Georgia Harvey, as Antoinette, Theobold's shrewish wife, who wears "not only the trousers, but the coat and vest too" and looks like "lemonade before they add the sugar" to use her husband's description. Miss Harvey is new to Broadway audiences but her clever and painstaking portrayal of the "boss" in the Martin household, has won the New York critics and public, largely because true characterizations in farce are so seldom realized. Miss Harvey is a Canadian, and was born in Newport, Nova Scotia. She comes from a family of Baptist ministers, no member of which has ever seen the inside of a theatre. She develops her character types from the people with whom she comes in contact.

EDEN MUSEE SCULPTOR SUCCUMBS IN STUDIO.

Constance Thys, designer and maker of most of the wax figures at the Eden Musee, in West Twenty-third street, died suddenly of heart disease in his studio at the Musee Monday. At the time he was working on a group called "Christmas," a huge wax Santa Claus, surrounded by figures representing every country in the world.

Thys was fifty-six years old and came to this country from Belgium forty-six years ago. He had been engaged by the Musee for more than twenty years. He lived at Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., and was a member of the Board of Education of that place and a prominent member of the Royal Arcanum. He is survived by a widow, three sons and a daughter.

Breaks Arm in Runaway.

Elizabeth, Dec. 7. — Edward Baker, 15 years old, of 153 Fifth street, fell from a wagon which he was driving in Bond street, Monday, and broke his arm. He was taken to the Alexian Hospital. Baker said that the horse got beyond his control and the motion of the wagon threw him into the street.

The Women's Relief Corps, auxiliary to Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will meet in regular session Friday night.

Miss Acken, of the clerical staff at the hospital, has been detained from her duties by illness.

The Misses Estella and Jennie Staats, of New York, have returned home after a visit with Plainfield friends.

The Riverman

By STEWART EDWARD WHITE

Copyright, 1908, by the McClure Company Copyright, 1907, 1908, by Stewart Edward White

"What does he intend about this mortgage?"

"To foreclose.'"

"Where's your telephone?" Orde asked.

He tried in vain to get Heinzman at his house. The bell had been removed. Orde left the office at a loss how to proceed next.

"There's the year of redemption on that mortgage," he reminded himself. "We may be able to do something in that time. I don't know just what," he added whimsically, with a laugh at himself. He became grave. "Poor Joe," he said. "This is pretty tough on him. I'll have to make it up to him somehow. I can let him in on that California deal when the titles are straightened out."

Chapter 35

ORDE did not return to the office. He felt unwilling to face Newmark until he had a little more thoroughly digested the situation. He spent the rest of the afternoon about the place playing with Bobby. Three or four times he called up Carroll by telephone. After dinner they sat on the porch until Bobby's bedtime. Orde put his small son to bed and sat talking with the youngster as long as his conscience would permit. Then he retired to the library.

Suddenly Orde leaned forward, his senses at the keenest attention. After a moment he arose and quietly walked toward the open window. Just as he reached the casement and looked out a man looked in. The two stared at each other not two feet apart.

"Good Lord, Heinzman!" cried Orde. "What are you doing here?" he demanded.

"Dake me somewheres," he whispered hoarsely. "I haf broke quarantine, and dey vill be after me."

"What do you mean by coming here and exposing my house to infection?"

Heinzman began to blubber and cried aloud in greatest agony:

"I haf somedings to say to you." He grasped Orde by the arm. "Dey are dere mit shotguns to kill me if I broke quarantine. And I haf left my daughter, my daughter Mina, all alone to come and tell you. And now you don't listen."

"Come with me," said Orde briefly.

He led the way around the house to the tool shed and lit a lantern.

Heinzman sat down on a nail keg.

Orde looked at him curiously. He was half dressed, without a collar, his thin hair unkempt. His eyes burned bright as though from some internal fire.

"What is it?" asked Orde.

"Ach, Orde," cried the German, "I am tortured mit hollenqualle—what you call?—hell's fire. You, whose wife comes in and saves my Mina when the others runs away—you, my best friends! It is schrecklich! She vas noblest, the best! She might take the disease; she might die. It vas noble." He shuddered. "My Mina left to die all alone!"

Orde rose to his feet.

"That is all right," said he. "Now let me get you home."

"No!" cried Heinzman. "Listen to me! I haf your note for sefenty-five t'ousand dollars. No?"

Orde nodded.

"Dot money I never lent you. No! I'm not crazy. Sit still! I know my name is on dot note, but the money came from your partner, Newmark."

"What?" Orde asked in bewilderment.

"Den ven you could not pay the note I vas to foreclose and hand over dot northern peninsula land to Joseph Newmark, your partner."

"Impossible!" cried Orde.

"I vas to get a share. It vas a trick."

"Why do you come to tell me now?"

"Because for more than one year now I say to mineself: 'Carl Heinsman, you vas one dirty scoundrel. You vas a thief. It iss all righdt to be smart, but to be a thief!'"

"It iss all righdt to be smart, but to be a thief!"

"Why didn't you pull out?" asked Orde.

"I couldn't!" cried Heinzman piteously. "He haf me cold. I paid Stanford $500 for his vote on the charter, and Newmark he know dot. He can prove it. He tell me if I don't do what he say he put me in jail."

"Well, he can still put you in prison," said Orde.

"Vot I care?" cried Heinzman, throwing up both his arms. "You and your wife are my friends. She save my Mina. Du lieber Gott! If my daughter had died, vot good iss friends and money, vot good iss anything? I don't vant to live! And ven I sit dere by her always something ask me, 'Vy you do dot to the peoples dot safe your Mina?'"

His excitement died.

"Have you that note?" asked Orde.

"It is at my office for the foreclosure. I vill not foreclose. He can send me to the penitentiary."

"Telephone Lambert in the morning to give it to me. No—here. Write an order in this notebook."

Heinzman wrote the required order.

"I go," said he, suddenly weary.

Orde accompanied him down the street and succeeded in slipping him through the improvised quarantine.

Morning found Orde still seated in the library chair. His head was sunk forward on his chest; his hands were extended, listless, palms up, along the arms of the chair; his eyes were vacant and troubled.

When the full sun shone into the library he aroused himself to change his clothes. Then, carrying those he had just discarded, he slipped out of the house and down the street. He paused only long enough to telephone from the office telling Carroll he would be out of town all day. Then he set out at a long swinging gait over the hills, miles from the village and in the high beech woods. There he sat down, his back to a monster tree. All day long he gazed steadily on the shifting shadows and splotches of sunlight; on the patches of blue sky, the dazzling white clouds that sailed across them; on the waving, whispering frond that overarched him and the deep cool shadows beneath.

At evening Orde shook himself and arose.

He reached home a little before 6 o'clock. He found Taylor awaiting him.

"I have things pretty well in shape," the lawyer said.

"Then the trouble is over?" asked Orde.

"I wouldn't say that," replied Taylor, "but you can rest easy as to the title to your lands. The investigation had no real basis to it. There may have been some small individual cases of false entry, but nothing on which to ground a real attack."

"When can I borrow on it?"

"Not for a year or two, I should say. There's an awful lot of red tape to unwind."

"Oh," said Orde in some disappointment.

Taylor hesitated.

"I have something more to tell you—something that will be painful," said he.

Orde looked up quickly.

"Well, what is it?"

"The general cussedness of all this investigation business had me puzzled until at last I made up my mind to do a little investigating on my own account. There was one man behind all this. He was"—

"Joe Newmark," said Orde quietly.

"How did you know that?"

"I just guessed."

"Well, it was Newmark. He tied up the land in this trumped up investigation so you could not borrow on it."

"How did he find out I owned any land?" asked Orde.

"That I couldn't tell you. Must have been a leak somewhere."

Orde did not wish to return to the office until he had worked his problem out, so to lend his absence the color of naturalness he drove back next morning to the booms.

In the evening he went direct to Newmark's.

"Mr. Newmark is out, sir," said Matlock and started to close the door.

But Orde thrust his foot and knee in the opening.

"I'll come in and wait," said he quietly.

"Yes, sir; this way, sir," said Matlock, trying to indicate the dining room.

Orde caught the aroma of tobacco. He turned the knob of the door and entered the library.

There he found Newmark in evening dress, seated in a low easy chair beneath a lamp, smoking and reading a magazine. At Orde's appearance in the doorway he looked up calmly, his paper knife poised, keeping the place.

Orde entered the room and mechanically sat down.

"Newmark," Orde began abruptly, "I know all about this arrangement you made with Heinzman."

"I borrowed some money from Heinsman for the firm."

"Yes, and you supplied that money yourself."

Newmark's eyes narrowed.

"Well, what of it?"

"If you had the money to lend why didn't you lend it direct?"

"Because it looks better to mortgage to an outside holder."

about the necessity of saving SMALL SUMS against the inevitable time when large sums will be needed, he probably would not have changed a word of

"Who thinks that Fortune cannot change her mind,

That spreads and swells in puff'd prosperity,
Or blest with little, whose preventing care
In peace provides fit arms against a War."

SIX DAY WHEELMEN FAIL TO KEEP UP PACE

Only twelve teams are left in the six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden and nine are bunched. The pace has so diminished since yesterday morning that at 1 o'clock this morning the riders were four miles and one lap behind the record made by Rutt and Stol last year. The American-Danish team, Galvin and Anderson, retired from the race shortly after 11 o'clock last night because of Anderson's illness and after the team had made 972 miles. Galvin was in good condition, but Anderson continued to feel worse until he finally decided to quit.

BOWLING.

The local Elks' bowling team fought a losing battle on Campbell's alleys last night dropping three games to the visiting team from the Somerville lodge. The locals' regular team was not on the job last night which may account for some of the poor scores in the first game which Somerville captured by 152 pins. Plainfield played a progressive game and lost the third by only one pin. The second Somerville took by 25. The score:

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

Right in the middle of a dull week comes the announcement that Fiske O'Hara in his newest play, "Wearing of the Green," will visit us at Plainfield theatre, next Saturday afternoon and night, December 10, and that it is a pleasant announcement none will gainsay. Mr. O'Hara is in the second season of "The Wearing of the Green," and from the warm welcome that greets him at every point it looks as though his admirers will keep him in the pretty little Irish drama for some time to come. This season patrons will hear the popular singing comedian in many new songs, as it is his custom never to use the same song two seasons, except upon special request for some special song.

CONVENTS COME HIGH HE TELLS METHODISTS.

Bishop W. F. Berry, of Buffalo, in an address Monday at the meeting of Methodist ministers in Wesley Hall, Philadelphia, gave some statistics aimed to show that the Methodist church, though optimistic in its view of things, was really doing very little in the way of practical conversion. Money, he said, was pouring into the church from all sides, but there was very little to show for it, if the object of Methodism was to save souls. If souls were to be saved with money, he declared that they were put up at a very high price, and he considered money so spent a very poor investment by the denomination.

In the past year, according to the bishop, $49,000,000 was collected in the Methodist Episcopal churches in this country alone, and of this amount some $15,000,000 was devoted to the support of over 19,000 ministers, bishops and missionaries. The remainder of the money was largely spent in foreign fields, with the result that 63,000 persons had been converted, making an average of only two and one-half persons per church. Blame for this poor showing could not be laid upon the ministers or the people, but on the conferences of the church, which falsely reasoned that a preacher's value was to be reckoned by the amount of money he could bring in.

"Too much stress," said Bishop Berry, "is laid by the conference on the money standard of a man. If a man's name is proposed for an office the superintendent invariably writes the O. K. upon it, if he has been successful in bringing in the money. Now, to my way of thinking, the man for the place is the man who brings in the most souls. The money should be a secondary consideration."

BULLET THROUGH DOOR WOUNDS BOY'S MOTHER.

Picking up a rifle which stood in the corner of the dining-room in his home in New Providence, Hilton Higgins, ten years old, aimed at the door leading into the kitchen and fired. There was a scream and the boy's mother fell to the kitchen floor shot in the arm She was standing near the door when the boy fired and the bullet went through the door and lodged in the fleshy part of the left arm.

Frightened at what he had done, the boy ran to a neighbor's house and a physician was telephoned to. Mrs. Higgins was taken to Overlook Hospital, Summit, where an operation was performed to remove the bullet.

John Mortimer, for many years a resident of this city, died this morning of cancer at the New York hospital. His remains will be brought here for interment. Mr. Mortimer is survived by two children.

THE FIGURED CREPE SCARF.

It can be combined with black satin and chiffon to form a stunning blouse, the scarf cut in bolero effect, with the upper part of the sleeves and the lower part of the bodice of the satin, and the black chiffon draped all over it.

It can be pleated as the facing of a picture hat, the Persian printing being especially effective. A border of galloon or gimp defines the edge of the pleating.

Two scarfs together can form a very striking tunic, extending in a slight bib effect above the girdle. At the sides they are stitched together and bordered with plain-colored ribbon in the predominating shade.

It can be trimmed with deep fringe and the sides caught by a few stitches which will convert them into sleeves, the whole appearing as a remarkably pretty light evening wrap.

It can be used as an applied hem on a lighter chiffon dress, slip-stitched or cat-stitched to the fabric or with its outermost edge cut off and quilled.

It will make the very prettiest of girdles, tying with an obi bow or with a stiff rosette combined with metallic lace edging.

It will make pretty shirred sleeves on an evening dress ,since nothing is supposed to match nowadays, and colors can be made to harmonize well enough without being of the same fabric.

Finally, its separate figures cut out and whipped with metal thread, will make lovely appliques for a veiled blouse, especialy if the colors be bright and somehow barbaric.

TO PROVIDE ANTI-TOXIN

The Board of Health to Give it to Those Who are Unable to Pay.

INSPECTIONS DURING MONTH.

14 Cases of Scarlet Fever; 7 of Diphtheria and 18 of Measles Were Reported in November.

The Board of Health at its December meeting, yesterday afternoon, decided that, inasmuch as there are from time to time cases of diphtheria in families unable to pay for anti-toxin, and the use of this restricts the spread of the disease and is necessary for the public good, to purchase a quantity of anti-toxin and keep it on hand for such indigent cases. The local physicians will be notified as to how and under what circumstances the anti-toxin may be procured.

It was reported yesterday that the general sanitary condition of the city is good. The number of communicable diseases numbered fifty-eight, divided as follows:

Scarlet fever, 14; diphtheria, 7; tuberculosis, 13; measles, 18; chicken-pox, 1; typhoid fever, 5. The fourteen cases of scarlet fever are in seven houses, there being five in one house, three in another and two in another. On December 1 there were eight houses under quarantine, four on account of scarlet fever and four on account of diphtheria. There was also one case of scarlet fever in the hospital.

During the month seventy-two inspections were made of dairies and bottling places. Thirty samples of milk were collected and analyzed with unsuually good results; six of the samples contained less than 10,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter and none contained more than 47,500. Three samples of water, one from the public supply and two from wells, were collected and sent to the State laboratory for analysis. The former was of its usual good quality, but the water from the wells was found to be polluted. The owners were accordingly notified to discontinue the use of the water and provide a pure supply for their tenants.

The following inspections were made during the month:

In connection with plumbing and sewer connections, 90; milk supply, 194; miscellaneous, of complaints, stables, restaurants, bakeries, back yards, barber shops, etc., 845, making a total of 1,129.

The plumbing bonds of two new plumbers, Edward O. Driver, of North Plainfield, and O. M. Webber, of Dunellen, were accepted; also two renewals, George F. Giles and Edward Dacy. Frank Sikova was granted a permit to collect garbage on condition that his apparatus is satisfactory. These returns were made during the month: Marriages, 21; births, 39; still-births, 2; deaths, 29.

MISSIONARY OF ASSAM DESCRIBES THE GAROS

The usual mid-week service of the First Baptist church was varied last evening by an address from Mrs. Walter C. Mason, a missionary from Assam, who gave a thrilling story of pioneer work among the Garoe, one of the Sabage Hill tribes of Assam. She said that thirty-eight years ago the Garos were a tribe of naked savages, pronounced by the English government incorrigible and the terror of neighboring tribes. The beginning of the change for the better came with the work of two boys, out of twelve, who were educated at the hands of the English government. They returned to their native tribe fired with the desire to christianize them and after some years of perseverance and toil succeeded in winning forty of them to Christ.

At the same time, Messre Philips and Mason, two Americans, who were forbidden by the government to enter the Garo borders because of its danger, prepared the way for future work by reducing the Garo language to writing, a hurculean task. When they were finally allowed to enter the hills, the Garo warriors, who received them, planted their spears in the earth and gave them a hearty hand shake. From that time the work has progressed rapidly, the Christians in the tribe numbering 5,000, who have the Bible in their own language, books churches and schools.

The Mission station is at Lura, and Mrs. Walter Mason, the daughter-in-law of the pioneer missionary, described among the building one for literature and publications, built as a memorial to her mother, by her father, Dr. Stephen Smith, of New York.

ANTI-TUBERCULOSIS LEAGUE ANNIVERSARY

The first anniversary tea and pound party, under the auspices of the Anti-Tuberculosis League of Plainfield and North Plainfield, and the direction of the membership committee, was held at the Nurses' Home, adjoining Muhlenberg Hospital, yesterday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock. The affair was largely attended, everyone present bringing a pound of something of use for the tuberculosis work. Many who could not attend sent donations.

Mrs. William H. Murray, chairman of the membership committee, poured and was assisted by Mrs. William C. Kinney, Mrs. Chapman Fisk, Mrs. Daniel Ginna and Mrs. William S. Tyler. All of the members of the committee assisted in serving tea.

Miss Margaret Merrill sold Red Cross stamps and several thousand of them were disposed of during the afternoon. During the hours of the tea, the visitors inspected the tuberculosis camp, where there are seven children and one adult. There was especial interest in the children who were found playing out-of-doors in the snow and all gave unmistakable evidence of decided improvement in health. During the past year twenty patients were cared for at the camp and not one failed to respond to the treatment. Eleven have been discharged and returned to work.

REMARKABLE SIDES OF ILLINOIS BEEF HERE

There were on exhibition at the Union Beef Company's plant this morning twelve sides of beef representing six Illinois steers which Ralph I. Tolles, the president of the concern, declared have never been equaled in all his eighteen years' experience in the business.

The sides are huge and weigh from 800 to 900 pounds apiece and as Mr. Tootles says, "are the finest of my thing I have yet seen." In speaking of the meat he added, "while an isolated case may crop up where beef of this kind gets to Plainfield, there never has been such a sextet come to my notice. You will notice that they are absolutely identical in shape, bone formation and primeness and without a doubt were bought from one cattleman and slaughtered by the same hand."

They surely look "good enough to eat," and will ultimately find their way to the tables of Plainfielders through William Smalley & Co., who have purchased the entire consignment.

DR. EARL BARNES TALKS TO SCHOOL TEACHERS

School teachers from the borough and Dunellen joined the local corps at the Plainfield High school yesterday afternoon to hear Dr. Earl Barnes, of Philadelphia, a noted educational lecturer, who addressed the large gathering on "Impeding Changes in Our Educational Ideals and Practices."

In considering the subject, Mr. Barnes said in part, "The mind is dependent upon the nervous system which in turn depends upon a strong and healthy body. Hence physical education takes precedence over every thing else and it is shameful if a child breaks down from over study or starves himself to get an education. Playgrounds are much more important than class rooms; good air is better than a good roof and a sickly student is an educational sin.

"All life is generic in its processes hence we must follow the natural stages of development in our educating. We can hasten development by directing efforts and preventing waste, but anticipating stages of power by jumping over them or thwarting then gives bad results. Therefore, we must grade not only our reading lessons but also music, discipline, morals, religion and other things used in education. Some of our history and geography in some of the lower grades are far above the comprehension of the student and statuary, pictures and other art are misinterpreted by the pupils of these grades."

Mr. Barnes declared that the general atmosphere should be such that the pupil would like his surroundings and instead of dreading school hours would look forward to them with pleasurable anticipation. He spoke for more than an hour and was given serious attention.

MAKE SUNDAY A DELIGHT SUBJECT OF LECTURE

The subject of Rev. F. K. Mathiew's lecture to mothers in Y. M. C. A. Hall tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 will be "How to Make the Sabbath a Delight for Children." The lecture will be illustrated with such materials as parents may give their children for Sunday occupation; the place of play in religious education will be emphasized; model Sunday programs will be presented and a number of the best books for Sunday reading will be exhibited. The question of the use of the "Sunday Walk" and that of the use of the boy's physical energies for his spiritual development will be answered.

At the close of the lecture there will be an exhibit of the many things—games, puzzles materials for manual and mental occupation, pictures and books that will help the mother on Sunday to say "do" rather than "don't" to the child.

The special collection of new Christmas books that was received too late for last week's exhibit will be shown on Friday. All of these books have been chosen out of many because of their value in helping to train the boy morally and religiously.

All the mothers of Plainfield and vicinity are invited to attend the lecture and exhibit.

MAYOR SMALLEY FAVORS RENEWAL OF FIGHT FOR CONSOLIDATION OF CITY AND BOROUGH

Replying to Former Mayor Randolph, Borough's Executive Warmly Approves His Suggestion That for the Common Good the Two Municipalities be Merged.

Responding to a letter from former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph which contained the suggestion that for the mutual welfare of the taxpayers of the city and borough the two municipalities should be consolidated, Mayor Newton B. Smalley comes out strongly in favor of a union. Two plans were referred to, one for a new county with Plainfield as its centre and the other for the merger of the two towns.

Report has it that early in the year, the old fight for annexation and consolidation will be renewed and will be brought to an issue within a short time. As Mr. Randolph is an officer of the Bi-partisan League, it is believed that he and his colleagues will be active in the agitation. That North Plainfield's mayor is heart and soul for the proposition is amply shown by the tone of his reply to Mr. Randolph. He does not consider the county idea feasible but he does claim that the consolidation should and will be effected. A referendum on the question is not favored by him for reasons set forth in his letter which follows:

Your letter of December the First, concerning your views on matters vital to Plainfield and North Plainfield in common, particularly as to a proposed merger of the two municipalities, has been carefully considered by me. The talk of a union of the two places, as you know, has been of long standing. Personally I regret that there was not a merger years ago, for if there had been, I believe the progress of the community would have been more rapid, and today we would be enjoying needed improvements which as yet appear a long way off.

"One of the chief obstacles to every suggested improvement considered on either side of 'the brook' has been the attitude assumed, by force of law or otherwise, of the other. Both may equally need such an improvement but the one without the other is helpless to accomplish it. To quote your own words: "These problems in Plainfield and North Plainfield, if not actually identified, are closely allied."

"As matters stand at present, disunited politically and geographically, satisfactory results can be obtained by neither independent of the other. This condition, through annexation, could be removed for a consolidation would effectually bring the desired results. North Plainfield is nothing more or less than part of Plainfield's expansion. We are a residental section of Plainfield in every respect except in law. And there is no reasonable argument against that barrier being removed and for us to be all one, working for our common good.

"While the new county idea which you suggest would solve the problem, the loss of so important a territory to the three counties involved would bring formidable opposition, which, in the event of our failure, would result in delaying the prime object. North Plainfield holds the key to the proper solution of important questions effecting the future of the whole community. And if you succeed in arousing public sentiment, along the lines we aim at, I am certain North Plainfield will meet you at the door of hope.

"I do believe that a consolidation could be effected. North Plainfield, and I might add also North Plainfield township, have no interests in common with the rest of Somerset county. The reasons are too well known and have been too oft repeated to need any comment. We are at the door of Plainfield and of Union county and there our interests lie. This is true of both the borough and the township.

"It is my firm conviction and has always been that a bill should be passed by the Legislature without a referendum clause. When this matter was fought out some few years ago, the result did not reflect the real sentiment of our people. This was because as soon as the campaign began, factional politics, personal animosities and other things that had no bearing on the question at issue cropped put. In the end, even before the day of election, political feuds had already defeated the proposition and a great wrong was done to our interests as citizens and taxpayers. Therefore, I would be sorry to see such a performance repeated and it possibly would be if a referendum clause were inserted in the bill.

"In my humble judgment, the Legislature could be convinced that it would be the duty the State owes to the people of both the city and the borough to make them one in law as they are now in all other respects. And this is what I wish to see. I may add that I have never lost hope for the ultimate success of the cause.

"There are other matters I should like to confer with you and others who are proud of our community about, but I shall wait until a more opportune time."

This is Mr. Randolph's letter which brought the mayor's reply:

"Two of the prominent citizens of North Plainfield—gentlemen of high intelligence and considerable vested interests—have recently written letters looking to a courageous and progressive public policy in regards to needed improvements. The time seems to have fully arrived when men of standing who have much at stake in the community should confer and agree on large questions of policy in Plainfield and North Plainfield.

"The feeling must be borne in upon our minds that we are now confronted with problems seriously concerning our present welfare and still more seriously concerning the welfare of those who shall come after us. These problems in Plainfield and in North Plainfield, if not actually identical, are closely allied. If they can be dealt with as a whole by one commuity the results will be attained with far greater economy and with immeasurably greater satisfaction.

"For example, the Water Problem should be met by the entire community of Plainfield and North Plainfield as a whole and the same is true of the Sewage Problem. In either case any half-way, or separated, schemes must result in waste and disappointment.

"It is said that Plainfield and North Plainfield respectively border on Greenbrook, but the municipal situation of these two civic corporations borders on absurdity. Here we have one community attending the same churches, dealing at the same banks, receiving news from the same public journals, served by the same national postoffice, taking railroad service at the same station. And yet this community calls itself by different names on the two sides of a dribbling stream and on each side maintains a full-fledged organization for government and taxation. And each side is now contemplating plans for important improvements. For one, I agree and insist that unless the two municipalities are to come together in one, then each one of them must go on with an independent scheme of progress. A general partnership, involving proportions of cost in this plan and that, is most impracticable and would be utterly objectionable. I do not think it ought to be seriously entertained. Ultimately it would lead to serious perplexities and litigations. The simple way out of this dilemma is to obtain such legislation as is necessary to bring together in one the two municipalities, and then let the wheels of progress be put in motion—with all due deference to economy and good management.

"I am aware that difficulties have arisen; one in respect of the fact that Plainfield and North Plainfield lie in two counties, the brook being the dividing line. But I feel sure that, wisely guided, legislation may be obtained overcoming such obstacles.

"For myself, I would favor a greater Plainfield with our city serving as the County seat to a new county. In my opinion our community and, for the most part, the entire State would be much benefitted by such a plan. If, however, this plan is not found to be possible, then I would favor simply taking North Plainfield into the city lines of Plainfield. Some plan of this general character is really becoming a public necessity. It is earnestly to be hoped that the authorities of Plainfield and North Plainfield will take measures—looking first to a full consultation and exchange of views, and next to the adoption of a distinct plan such as will consummate an object so desirable and so essential to wise progress.

"The legislature of 1911 will largely be composed of new material uncommitted and unprejudiced on this question of the union of the two municipalities. It seems a most favorable opportunity for obtaining the required legislation, and the subject should receive immediate attention, I think, of the authorities and leading citizens of Plainfield and North Plainfield—and indeed of all who are interested in the proper advancement

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

Absorbingly interesting, brimming over with heart interest and a potent vein of magnetic romance, "The Wearing of the Green," written by Theodore Burt Sayre, for Fiske O'Hara, the Irish singing comedian, which comes to the Plainfield theatre, Saturday, matinee and night, December 10, should attract more than the usual amount of attention. Telling in a direct way the story of Phil Fitzgerald's struggles for recognition, his efforts in behalf of the country he loves, and finally of his triumph. "The Wearing of the Green," by Theodore Burt Sayre, is to the Irish drama what Rip Van Winkle was to Joseph Jefferson. Mr. O'Hara portrays the role of the impulsive, honest Phil Fitzgerald, who, upon securing an opportunity to sing in public, grasps the chance and by dint of much labor and many adventures succeeds. The scenic investment and property equipment make the environment of the play as natural as possible and carry the auditor back to those dark days in Ireland when the singing of "The Wearing of the Green" was a crime, punishable by death.

The secret of "Three Twins" success, and which has scored the biggest kind of a hit everywhere, lies in the excellent comedy that the authors have put in their story and in the superb cast, headed by Clifford Crawford. Mr. Crawford, who is the leader of fun-making, appears on the stage within a moment after the opening chorus and immediately puts the audience in a hilarious mood. From then to the finale of the last act there is no let up in the smart pace set for the comedy, songs and dance. While, during every moment of the dialogue the laughter is incessant, the musical and specialty features have not been neglected. The production abounds in surprises in chorus groupings and mechanical effects. "The Girl Up There" introduces the "faceograph" which shows the features of a chorus girl on the back drop, magnified a hundred times. The dancing chairs in the "Yama Yama" number are a source of wonderment. The chorus is made up of pretty girls and there are lots of them. This phenomenal success will be seen at the Plainfield Theatre, Tuesday evening, December 13.

Ban on Brandy Drops.

The next action to be comtemplated by the Elizabeth Board of Excise it is said, is the prohibition of the sale of brandy drops. Chocolates filled with a weak extract of the fiery fluid, it is learned from authoritative sources, has raised the ire of some of the board members.

A social was held Tuesday evening in the chapel of the First Reformed church, under the auspices of the Young People's Society.

Mrs. Norman Wright, who has been spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. William Wright, left Tuesday for Palm Beach.

Mrs. J. A. Seltzer has returned from Atlantic City, where she spent a week with her sister.

Dr. and Mrs. Satterthwaite, of Altamont place, are at Lakewood.

"NOBODY SEEN ME," SAYS ACCUSED MAN.

Asbury Park, Dec. 8.—"Nobody seen me do it," cried Thomas Williams, the negro suspect in the Marie Smith murder case, as he panted wild-eyed in his cell from a seven hours' grueling process by three detectives, one of whom told "Black Diamond" a woman saw him do it.

"She didn't see me. I know nobody seen me. It's a lie. What am I saying? What are you trying to do do to me? It's all a lie," he cried, with bitter oaths and invectives on detectives for their questioning. Rehearsing of the probable method of killing the schoolgirl brought a fresh outbreak of profanity.

City Council has increased the reward offered from $500 to $1,000 and the Elks' $250 reward still stands. This may be increased to $300.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has a representative at Freehold, who after interviewing Williams said he would apply for a habeas corpus to release him. Prosecutor Applegate will not say whether he will oppose Williams' release, if it is sought.

The petit jury drawn Tuesday for January consists of sixty men, instead of fifty-eight, as formerly, which might indicate the murder case would reach the January term.

BASEBALL.

Charley Murphy, president of the Chicago Cubs, has another grouch on. It is nothing for this little fighting baseball mogul, who invariably gets licked, to have a grouch on. But this time he is funny, though he very likely meant to be serious. Murphy is after the National Commission this time. You must hand it to him for one thing—he never goes after dead ones. He fights and the bigger they are the more publicity he receives and the better he likes it. His attack is directed at Garry Herrman, Thomas Lynch and Ban Johnson, and it all came about through Johnson's announcement that the umpires in the last world's series would be presented gold medals. Murphy admits that the arbiters should receive the medals, but not the kind that Johnson proposed, Said the chubby little fighter, who always gets a beating, to the Chicago newspaper men Tuesday:

"Certainly the umpires in the recent unpleasantness between the Cubs and the White Elephants should be rewarded with medals, but the medals should be made either of leather or boiler plate. The work of Sheridan and Connolly in the series was so bad that it is a shame to reward them for it. It is not sour grapes at all on my part, for we might not have won the world's championship even if the decisions made against us had been in our favor.

"So many Cub fans have written to me about the impropriety of the umpires in the recent series, particularly Connolly and Sheridan, receiving any reward beside the salary paid to them, that I must speak of it. The series is now past, and I have had time to view it from a distance. I think Connolly was entirely too officious when he ordered Chance out of the game and then fined him, and I think Sheridan was wrong when he called Hartsel safe and declared Schulte out in stealing second."—J. PRICES OF FRESH MEAT BEGIN TO CLIMB AGAIN.

The wholesale prices of fresh meat, which have been on the downward trend for three weeks, took a turn Tuesday and started upward, and retail prices all over the country will follow at once.

Prices on all grades of beef and pork were increased one cent a pound, and the wholesale price of pork, which last week was 10 cents, is now 12 cents.

Packers say the price of all fresh meats will continue to advance for the present. In the market yesterday the price of hogs rose from fifteen to thirty cents per hundred. Cattle have been advancing steadily for a week.

MILLIONS FOR THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Showing that the total amount available for public school purposes in this State for the school year of 1909 and 1910 was $22,473,586.22, Professor Charles J. Baxter, State superintendent of public instruction, presented his annual statistical report to the State Board of Education at its meeting in Lakewood Tuesday. The total sum available showed an increase of $509,166.34 over the preceding year.

The total amount expended for all school purposes, including current expenses, repair account and total cost of new buildings was $17,235,884.97, an increase over the preceding year of $1,158,674.49. This left at the close of the school year, an aggregate balance in all the public school treasuries in the State of $5,241,511.47, an increase of $504,423.37.

This balance includes, of course, the amounts received in many school districts from the sale of bonds on new building account, but which had not been expended on existing contracts.

The total enrolment in the schools was 429,797, an increase over the preceding year of 5,263, or 1.25 per cent. The percentage in increase of attendance was 3.6, or 2.36 per cent. more than the increase in enrolment.

The current expenses of the schools, exclusive of new building and repair account, was $12,102,839.14, the increase in this item being $519,637.84. The average cost of the education per pupil for the year, based on the total enrolment, was $28.16, or eighty-eight cents more than for the preceding year.

Professor Baxter showed that the total amount received by the schools from the main stem railroad taxes was $2,116,728.29. The main stem school fund total was $2,384,728.29, but under the law of 1909, the passage of which caused the cry that an attack was being made on the public schools, $268,000 of the amount went to pay the expenses of the two State normal schools, the Rutgers College scholarships, the School for the deaf in Trenton, county superintendents, School for Colored Youth at Bordentown, evening schools for foreign-born residents, and the State Department of Public Instruction.

HISTORY OF AIRBRAKE TOLD BY WESTINGHOUSE.

In his annual address to the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, George Westinghouse, president of the society, told Tuesday night how he invented the airbrake. He said:

"My first idea of braking apparatus to be applied to all of the cars of a train came to me one day when a train upon which I was a passenger was delayed a couple of hours by a collision. My first notion was to connect the brake lever of each car to its draft gear, so that an application of the brakes to the locomotive, which would cause the cars to close up toward the engine, would thereby apply a braking force through the couplers and levers to the wheels of each car. The crudness of this idea became apparent upon an attempt to devise an apparatus to carry the scheme into effect.

"A while later, I read in a popular magazine of the tunneling of Mt. Cenis by machinery driven by compressed air conveyed through 3,000 feet of pipes. This convinced me that a brake apparatus could be operated by compressed air upon any length train. I immediately started drawings of that apparatus and filed a caveat in 1867.

"In Pittsburg, I met Ralph Baggaley, who volunteered to defray the cost of constructing the apparatus and in 1868 a crude apparatus embodying mp idea was put on a train of the old Panhandle Railroad. On the very first run a horse and wagon were standing across the track when the train thundered out of the tunnel near the Union Station in Pittsburg, the new brake averted an accident.

The following officers were elected by the society for the year 1911: Colonel E. D. Meier, president; Calvin W. Rice, secretary, and William H. Wiley, treasurer.

Fixed Date of Election.

The Westfield Board of Education at a regular meeting held Tuesday night decided to hold the special school meeting on Thursday, December 22, between 3 and 9 p. m., in the auditorium of the Washington School. It was also decided that no ballots to be used at the election be given out until the afternoon of the election day.

Trolley Car Kills Horse.

A Newark-bound trolley car sideswiped one of the horses harnessed to a cab driven by Max Friedl, in front of the home of Benjamin H. Campbell, 333 North Broad street, Elizabeth, and after dragging the outfit about twenty-five feet came to a stop. The horse died in five minutes.

CONSOLIDATION.

More than usual interest may be attached to the correspondence between former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph, of the city, and Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of the borough, on the subject of consolidation. The authors of the letters, which are reproduced in this paper today are both known for their fighting proclivities and their devotion to the cause of good government. They have taken up a matter vital to the welfare of both municipalities and one which is more popular today than ever during the long period it has been either quietly or aggressively agitated.

It was indeed most unfortunate, as Mayor Smalley says, that when the consolidation and annexation campaign was waged in the borough less than ten years ago that many were blinded to the real issue by the petty personal and political animosities. Nasty things were said and done during the battle and the result was that the fight became a personal matter among political enemies. Both the consolidationists and the antis indulged in personal abuse and ridicule. Consequently, the verdict, as the mayor rightly says, in no sense reflected the sentiment of the borough taxpayers on the issue.

If Mayor Smalley can prevail upon Mr. Randolph to obtain the cooperation of the Bi-partisan Municipal League to advocate merger he will be doing a public service. If Mr. Randolph stirs the League to action he will deserve public gratitude. If the League is instrumental in arousing public sentiment and bringing about a consolidation, it will win a place in local history of which its members may well be proud.

PERSONAL.

Jacob Voehl, of Grove stret, has been confiend to the house by illness for the past two weeks.

Alex. Lusardi, of West Front street, who recently disposed of his fruit business, has made arrangements to sail for Italy next week. He will remain abroad until next Spring.

Frank Wagner, the city market newsdealer, returned last night from a visit with his parents near Camden. Mr. Wagner's father, Christopher Wagner is in his ninety-second year and is very feeble. Mrs. Wagner, although nearly as old, is quite well and strong. They are living on a farm with Mr. Wagner's sister.

Touching Memories.

There were introductions all around. The big man stared in a puzzled way at the club guest. "You look like a man I've seen somewhere, Mr. Blinker," he said, "your face seems familiar. I fancy you have a double. And a funny thing about it is that I formed a strong prejudice against the man who looks like you—although, I'm quite sure, we never met."

The little guest softly laughed, "I'm the man," he answered, "and I know why you formed the prejudice. I passed the contribution plate for two years in the church you attend."—Everybody's Magazine.

Not Buying Wholesale.

A man went to the store to select some goods for a dress as a present to his wife. He caused the fat lady behind the counter no little trouble, but she finally persuaded him to decide upon a certain piece of goods.

"Now, I don't exactly know how much I want," said the man.

"Well," interposed the fat saleswoman, suavely, "let's see. Now, I should need about——"

"Madam," brusquely rejoined the husband, "I don't want this for an awning; I want it for a dress."—Harper's Magazine.

To Say and To Do.

"Do you wish to go to church this evening? Father is going to preach, you know," the minister's fair daughter asked.

"Um. The last time I went he rather fell on some of my feelings. The young man considered. Do you know what his text will be tonight?"

"Yes,: 'Love One Another.'"

He regarded the round pink check approvingly.

"Suppose," he suggested softly, "that we let the old gentleman go preach, while we sit out on the porch and practise?"—Lippincott's

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The police of the neighboring towns have been notified to be on the look-out for the burglars who broke into the New Market postoffice, Tuesday night, but so far no trace of them has been discovered. The impression prevails that the job was accomplished by local talent as the intruders showed a familiarity with the building and the village.

At the conclusion of the trial in the Middlesex County court, Tuesday, Marshal James Benson, was found guilty by a jury of assaulting John Carney. He had entered a plea of not guilty and was defended by Walter Van Sickle, of New Brunswick. Sentence will be pronounced by Judge Lyon at a later date.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Former Game Warden Jonathan D. Cunard, a long time resident of Almonesson, is dangerously ill with cancer of the stomach.

Struck in the head by a falling piece of iron at the plant of the New York Shipbuilding Company, in Camden, Tuesday, Harry Donaldson, forty-two years old, of Gloucester, sustained a lacerated scalp, and was cared for at the Homeopathic Hospital.

Accused of threatening to kill his twenty-four-year-old son, Charles Hand, fifty-nine years old, was held in $300 bail in the Camden Police Court Tuesday. Testimony of the son, showing that he was chased from the home of a married sister and threatened with a butcher knife, was corroborated by his brother, who declared that the family disturbances were due to father going on the "warpath" every once in a while. The parent said he thought he had a right to chastise his sons, and was told by the court that it should be done in a different manner.

REICHSBANK WON'T GIVE UP ABDUL HAMID'S MONEY.

The suit instituted by representatives of the Turkish Government against the Reichsbank of Leipsic, Germany, to compel that institution to surrender $4,500,000 which it has on deposit to the credit of the deposed Sultan Abdul Hamid came before the Imperial Supreme Court yesterday.

When Abdul Hamid entrusted his personal fortune to the Reichsbank he exacted a solemn agreement that the funds should not be withdrawn except on presentation of an order under his hand and seal. After he was driven from the throne the new government attempted to recover the funds and laid before the bankers what purported to be a letter from the deposed Sultan authorizing their withdrawal. The order, however, did not bear the secret seal agreed upon, and the bank, which took the further ground that their customer, being practically a prisoner, was unable to act of his own free will, refused to surrender the money.

Suit was then brought against the bank in the name of the former Sultan in the Provincial Court at Berlin. This court dismissed the complaint, holding that it was brought under compulsion, and otherwise sustained the contentions of the Reichsbank.

After the hearing of testimony the Imperial Supreme Court refused to entertain the plea that Abdul Hamid signed the order of withdrawal under duress and decided that the Reichsbank must pay the money as demanded.

LARGER RESOURCES FOR JERSEY'S STATE BANKS.

A statement issued by Commissioner Vivian M. Lewis of the department of banking and insurance, shows that during the past twelve months the resources of State financial institutions have increased by $15,860,545 and the deposits by $11,957,339. The same institutions have now aggregate resources of $354,604,662 and deposits of $285,867,600.

The report includes returns from eighty-four trust companies, nineteen State banks and twenty-five savings banks, the condition of which is shown at the close of business on November 10. The comparison is made with November 16, 1909, when corresponding reports were received last year.

The trust companies have resources of $222,850,894, an increase of $10,045,034. The savings banks have resources of $113,089,431, an increase of $5,787,464. The resources of the State banks amount to $18,664,336, an increase of $28,045.

The deposits in trust companies amount to $167,122,741, an increase of $6,198,795. The savings banks have deposits of $103,891,303, an increase of $5,540,863. The deposits in the State banks are $14,763,555, an increase of $217,680.

In the comparison made with last year there are included four more trust companies, one less savings bank and one less State bank.

TO TELL AMERICA'S WOMEN ABOUT THEIR LAUNDRIES.

Laundrymen's National Association Decides to Conduct Unique Educational Campaign.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—(Special.)—The Laundrymen's National Association has concluded to enter upon a decidedly unique campaign of education. The Executive Committee, headed by L. H. Fisher, of Kansas City, Mo., was authorized to present to the women of America the claim of the modern steam laundry upon their greater patronage, and for the purpose of securing the desired publicity the sum of $75,000 will be expended.

The Laundrymen's National Association will tell its story to the people of the country through the leading newspapers.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 11, 1910.

Topic.—How must a Christian be different from others?—II Cor. vi, 14-18. Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

There is no need scarcely to argue the question that there should be a difference between a Christian and others who are not Christians. One is ruled supremely by the will of God and possesses the mind and spirit of Christ. The other does not possess these characteristics, and hence there is a wide separation between them. The very essence of Christianity is separation and consequently difference from the other people of the world. One becomes a Christian by being called of God to separate himself from "the world, the flesh and the devil," which are for the most part the associations of non-Christians. Being called of God to separation, the Christian has implanted within him a new principle of life, which widely separates him from others. Therefore in his thoughts, his beliefs, his words and deeds the Christian must be different from others.

The difference is not one of form. It does not consist in wearing different costumes or dress. The Puritan garb never made a Christian. The most wicked and sinful of men could have easily possessed and worn one of them. The Christian has no reason to dress differently from any other people. In fact, such methods of manifesting their difference from others often smacks too much of a possible insincerity. The Christian needs no outward garb or badge to convince others that he is different from them. If his words and life do not do this no weight will be given to his claim by that with which he may clothe himself. This principle should also apply to the Christian ministers. Why should they by clerical dress be distinguished from others, except upon occasions when they are performing purely ministerial duties? Do judges wear their robes upon the street and in public places that they may say, "I am a judge?" In so doing they would make a laughingstock of themselves. Imagine a refined and cultured man in these days of buttons and badges wearing a badge with the inscription "I am a gentleman" upon it. It would at once stamp him as a snob. Culture and refinement do not need to be advertised. They manifest themselves in action. So should the Christianity of the Christian minister. If it does not, no tinseled gown or white tie, years behind the style, can convince men of it. Actions speak so loud that garbs and dress cannot drown them.

The tendency today is to lessen the manifestation of the real difference between Christians and others. In ordinary conversation can any one tell which is the Christian? In places of dubious amusement is the separation complete? It should be by the absence of all Christians. In business dealings can the Christian always be told from the outsider? It is very doubtful in the majority of cases. There are those who claim that they can tell a Christian by the glory shining from his face. What folly! The children of the world in appearance are not different from the children of God. Is there strictness in drawing the line in matrimony? Do believers only marry believers? Do they even think of this question when considering the subject? If so it is not proved by marriage itself. Many Christians marry unbelievers.

The line of separation and of difference should be more sharply drawn. There is no fellowship between righteousness and unrighteousness, between Christ and Belial, the temple of God (the Holy Spirit within our hearts) and idols. "Wherefore (let us) come out from among them and be separate," as the Lord Himself hath said.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ex. xx, 1-7, 8-11, 12; Prov. x, 1-7, 22, 29; Ps. i; Matt. v, 33-37; Rom. xii, 1, 2, 17-20; Eph. iv, 1-3; vi, 5-9; Phil. ii, 1-8; Eph. iv, 20-32; I Pet. i, 15; Rev. ii, 10.

Loyalty Its Keynote.

The Christian Endeavor society stands for loyalty to the church and its services as no other organization in the church does. So strenuously does it believe in this that it has put this matter of church attendance into the heart of its pledge. It insists on the idea as one of its cardinal principles and issues booklets and articles on the subject and in every way strives to promote it.

But it cannot be expected that one organization of the church will do what the whole church is bound to do or that one organization will counteract all the other influences of the church and community that make against even churchgoing.

I have noticed that pastors who blame their young people for not going to church often say very little about the delinquencies of the older church members in this respect. Why do they not berate the older church members who do not go, or the members of the Sunday school who stay at home in the evening, or the members of the ladies' missionary society, or the brotherhood?

But it will be said, "These organizations do not require their members to be faithful to the church services."

Then so much the worse for them, for no organization has any right in a church that does not promote loyalty to the church and its services. In any event, the purpose and methods of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor in the future, as in the past, will always be to promote thoroughgoing loyalty to the church and all its services.—Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D.

By STEWART EDWARD WHITE

Copyright, 1906, by the McClure Company. Copyright, 1907, 1908, by Stewart Edward White

"That was not the reason," went on Orde. "You agreed with Heinzman to divide when you succeeded in foreclosing me out of the timberlands given as security. Furthermore, you instructed Floyd to go out on the eve of that blow in spite of his warnings, and you contracted with McLeod for the new vessels, and you've tied us up right and left for the sole purpose of pinching us down where we couldn't meet those notes. That's the only reason you borrowed the seventy-five thousand on your own account—so we couldn't borrow it to save ourselves."

"It strikes me you are interesting, but inconclusive," said Newmark as Orde paused again.

"That sort of thing is somewhat of a facer," went on Orde without the slightest attention to the interjection. "It took me some days to work it out in all its details, but I believe I understand it all now. I don't quite understand how you discovered about my California timber. That 'investigation' was a very pretty move."

"How the devil did you get on to that?" cried Newmark, startled.

"Then you acknowledge it?"

"Why shouldn't I?" Newmark laughed. "Of course Heinzman blabbed."

Orde half sat on the arm of his chair.

"Now, I'll tell you what we will do in this matter," said he crisply.

"We'll follow," said Newmark, "the original program, as laid down by myself. I'm tired of dealing with blundering fools. Heinzman's mortgage will be foreclosed, and you will hand over as per the agreement your Boom company stock."

Orde stared at him in amazement.

"I must say you have good nerve," he said. "You don't seem to realize that you are pretty well tangled up. I don't know what they call it—criminal conspiracy or something of that sort, I suppose. So far from handing over to you the bulk of my property I can send you to the penitentiary."

"Nonsense," rejoined Newmark, leaning forward in his turn. "I know you too well, Jack Orde. You're a fool. Do you seriously mean to say that you dare try to prosecute me? Just as sure as you do I'll put Heinzman in the pen too. I've got it on him, cold. He's a bribe giver—and somewhat a criminal conspirator himself."

Newmark leaned back with an amused little chuckle. "If the man hadn't

"How the devil did you get on to that?"

come to you and given the whole show away you'd have lost every cent you owned. And for your benefit I'll tell you what you can easily substantiate. I forced him into this deal with me. I had this bribery case on him. What had the man to gain by telling you? Nothing at all. What had he to lose? Everything—his property, his social position, his daughter's esteem."

He paused a moment to puff at his cigar.

"I'm not much used to giving advice," he went on, "least of all when it is at all likely to be taken. But I'll offer you some. Throw Heinzman over. Let him go to the pen. He's been crooked and a fool."

"That's what you'd do?"

"Exactly that. You owe nothing to Heinzman, but something to what you would probably call repentance, but what is in reality a mawkish sentimentality of weakness. However, I know you, Jack Orde, from top to bottom, and I know you're fool enough not to do it. I'm so sure of it that I dare put it to you straight. You could never bring yourself to the point of destroying a man who had sacrificed himself for you."

Chapter 36

"YOU seem to have this game all figured out," said Orde with contempt.

"Well," said the other, "let's settle this thing. The fact remains that the firm owes a note to Heinzman which it cannot pay. You owe a note to the firm which you cannot pay. All this may be slightly irregular, but for private reasons you do not care to make public the irregularity. Am I right so far?"

Fine Gift Pictures

There are no more popular subjects in the higher grade pictures than

"WHEN THE HEART IS YOUNG"

and "DREAM OF LOVE."

These we have featured for some time, and we have them for the holidays together with a large line of other colored photogravures, all large sized pictures, copyrighted pictures, filling a wall space 36x40 inches, with fine Paris mats and heavy Roman gold frames. The regular value of these pictures is $18, but we are making the Christmas price $12.50

We recommend these most highly to the favor of those desiring to get really fine gifts.

5.00 and 10.00 Pictures

Remarkable collections at both the popular prices—$5 and $10—large pastels in gilt frames, mainly marines and landscapes and many beautiful figures as well as large water color etchings in mission frames.

We devote one big division of the Picture Galleries to the $5 pictures, making it easy for you to pick when you have decided upon the amount you wish to spend.

$2.50 PICTURES.

Pictures at this price are always immensely popular—and they are especially so here because we are selling pictures easily worth $5 at $2.50.

A feature of the $2.50 collection is the picture of the "Lady with the Fan" and its companion, "The Duchess," by Gainsborough. Both of them rank high in the world as practically perfect specimens of pictures of women. These are in handsome gilt frames and formerly sold at $5.

Other beautiful pictures in gilt frames including etchings, colored oleographs, colored photos, all large pictures and easily worth double the money, are included in this collection at $2.50.

There are many other lower-priced pictures, including the Harrison Fisher, Christy and other productions, and a truly remarkable line selling for as little as 25c—pictures of the sort largely used by Sunday Schools for Christmas tree affairs.

FICTURE FRAMING

We do the largest picture framing business of any concern in the State, and we are filling many orders at the present time, keeping all our workers busy day and night. If you have framing to do we advise you to place your orders at once.

Sterling Silver

IMMENSELY POPULAR FOR GIFTS.

This Holiday Silver Store is a revelation to many who have an idea the jewelry and silver departments of the big store are simply side shows. When these magnificent stocks are seen every one awakens to a realization of the fact that ours are full fledged jewelry and silver stores, and a little examination reveals the fact that the stocks here are on a par with those of the best regulated specialty jewelry and silver houses. Why should anybody think differently? Why won't they know that we buy our goods from the same sources of supply that the jeweler and silversmiths go to? Why shouldn't an establishment with the powers this one possesses have every trade advantage that any little jewelry or silver store could have? Isn't it the most remarkable thing in the world to believe us capable of selling you jewelry and silver for less than specialty stores would have to ask you and yet maintain the highest standards of utility?

We invite critical inspection of our great stock of sterling silver gift things, most of which we list for your edification.

"You might hear the other side," interrupted Orde. "In the first place," said he, producing a bundle of papers, "I have the note and the mortgages in my possession."

"Whence Heinzman will shortly rescue them as soon as I get to see him," countered Newmark.

"If you force Heinzman he'll land you," Orde pointed out.

"There is Canada for me. He travels with heavier baggage."

"You'd lose everything."

"Not quite," smiled Newmark. "And, as usual, you are forgetting the personal equation. Heinzman is—Heinzman. And I am I."

"Then I suppose this affidavit from Heinzman as to the details of all this is useless for the same reason?"

Newmark's thin lips parted.

"Correct," said he.

"But you're ready to compromise below the face of the note?"

Newmark hesitated.

"Yes," said he, "because I know you well enough to realize that there is a point where your loyalty to Heinzman would step aside in favor of your loyalty to your family."

"And you think you know where that point is?"

"It's the basis of my compromise."

Orde laughed.

"The worst of it is I believe you're right," said he at last. "You have the thing sized up, and there isn't a flaw in your reasoning. I always said that you were the brains of this concern. If it were not for one thing I'd compromise sure, and that one thing was beyond your power to foresee."

He paused. Newmark's eyes half closed again in a quick darting effort of his brain to run back over all the elements of the game he was playing.

"What is it?" asked Newmark at last.

"Heinzman died of smallpox at 4 o'clock this afternoon," said Orde.

Newmark's face went slowly gray. For a full minute he sat absolutely motionless.

"Where are you going?" asked Orde quietly.

"I'm going to get myself a drink in my bedroom," he snapped. "Any objections?"

"No. After you get your drink I want to talk to you."

Newmark snarled at him: "You needn't be afraid I'll run away. How'd I get out of town?"

Orde looked thoughtfully at Heinzman's affidavit, which, duly disinfected, had been handed him by Dr. McMullen as important. Then he arose to his feet and glided softly across the room to take a position close to the door through which Newmark had departed. Finally the door swung briskly inward. Like a panther Orde sprang forward. He pinioned Newmark's arms to his side, where he held them immovable with one of his own. The other hand he ran down Newmark's right arm to the pocket. There followed an instant of resistance. With a sharp cry of pain Newmark snatched his hand out and gazed amazedly at the half crushed fingers. Orde drew forth the revolver Newmark had grasped in the coat pocket. He spilled out the cartridges and tossed the empty weapon to Newmark.

"There's your plaything," said he. "So you wanted that affidavit, did you?"

He paused.

"I don't need to tell you that I've got you," said he finally, "nor what I think of you. I can send you over the road for the best part of your natural days; also I've got these notes and the mortgage."

"Quit it," growled Newmark. "Send me up and be d——d!"

"That's the question," went on Orde slowly. "You hurt me pretty bad, Joe. I thought of you as a friend. I had a hard time getting over that part of it. We've been together a good many years now, and as near as I can make out you've been straight as a string with me for eight of them. Then I suppose the chance came and before you knew it you were in over your neck."

"Oh, for God's sake, drop that preaching. It makes me sick!" broke out Newmark.

"I'm not preaching," said Orde, "and even if I were I've paid a good many thousands of dollars, it seems, to buy the right to say what I d—n please. And if you think I'm working up to a Christian forgiveness racket you're mistaken. I'm not. I don't forgive you."

"Well, turn me over to your sheriff and let's get through with this," said Newmark sullenly.

Orde rose.

"Look here, Newmark, that's just what I've been coming to, just what I've had such a hard time to get hold of. I'm not going to hand you over to any sheriff. I'm going to let you off. No," he continued, in response to Newmark's look of incredulous amazement, "it isn't from any fool notion of forgiveness. I told you I didn't forgive you. But I'm not going to burden my future life with you. That's just plain, ordinary selfishness. I suppose I really ought to jug you, but if I do I'll always carry with me the thought that I've taken it on myself to judge a man. And I don't believe any man is competent to judge another."

Newmark, who had listened to this rambling exposition with curiosity, broke into a laugh.

"You've convicted me," he said. "I'm a most awful failure. I thought I knew you, but this passes all belief."

Orde brushed this speech aside as irrelevant.

MAY SECURE RELEASE OF ALLEGED MURDERER

The mystery surrounding the murder of the little school girl, Marie Smith, at Asbury Park, on November 13, has not been cleared up and it is possible that the negro Williams, who is in jail at Freehold, will be released as nothing has been proved to connect him with the crime. W. L. Glenney, of this city, counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, which has taken up the matter of Williams' release, will be given a hearing on habeas corpus proceedings in Supreme Court Justice W. P. Voorhees chambers tomorrow.

Mr. Glenney and C. Ames Brooks interviewed the negro prisoner at the Freehold jail on Tuesday and obtained from him an absolute denial of any knowledge of the crime. The members of the National Association are firm in their belief of the innocence of the man and will do all in their power to secure his release. The verdict of the coroner's jury on Monday was that "Marie Smith came to her death at the hands of a person or persons unknown.' The rewards offered by the Asbury Park police and the lodge of Elks still stands, but the authorities are no nearer a solution of the crime than they were at first.

Prosecutor Applegate, of Monmouth county, will have to show some evidence on which to fasten the crime on Williams, or will have to submit to the release of the prisoner by Justice Voorhees.

J. H. Mortimer's Funeral.

The funeral of John H. Mortimer, who died in the New York hospital on Tuesday night, will take place here tomorrow. Services will be held at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. W. G. Anderson, of Franklin place, at 11 o'clock. Mr. Mortimer was fifty-seven years of age and is survived by two children, Francis Mortimer and Miss Marian Mortimer. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John H. Mortimer. Death was due to cancer.

Miss Conover, of Asbury Park, is the guest of Mrs. John D. Runyon, of Park avenue.

SUN A MIGHTY MAGICIAN

Declares Rev. W. B. Wallace in Lecture at Park Avenue Baptist Church.

A REAL SUNSHINE MAN.

Brooklyn Divine Dimmed Radiance of Electric Lights—"Look on the Bright Side," He Says.

There was no need to wonder what caused the radiance which dimmed the electric lights inside and out of the Park Avenue Baptist church, last night. The cause was inside. Rev. W. B. Wallace, pastor of the Baptist Temple in Brooklyn had just finished his lecture on the "Sunshine Man" and it was the reflected brilliance of Dr. Wallace's talk shining in the faces of his audience which caught up the beams of light and radiated them all about. Nobody could have listened to the lecture and left the building with anything else in his heart than gladness because of having been able to absorb some of the diffused sunshine.

Dr. Wallace began by saying that the sun was a mighty magician making winter hide and bringing joy and gladness in the place of gloom and sadness. His influence on the world is like the influence wielded by some men's lives, all for the good. He said that there were three distinct attributes to the sunshine man—first, charity in not criticising others; second, looking always on the bright side of life, and third, brightening life for others. He contrasted the sunshine man with the fellow who is never happy unless criticising his neighbor; the man who is always dissatisfied with what he has; the fellow who imagines himself happy while separating a Damon from a Pythias or a David from his Jonathan. He declared that the "Critic Brewer" causes more heartaches, headaches and misery than the whiskey distiller or the saloon keeper.

Dr. Wallace suggested the reading of 1 Corinthians, Chapter 13, as a remedy for the ills of the pessimist and all others who are enshrouded in the gloom that wont come off. "The sunshine man," he said, "has a habit of putting himself in the other man's shoes and always remembers that he might have done worse under similar circumstances than the other fellow did if as well. The sunshine man does not criticise his fellows. He takes the beam out of his own eye before he attempts to take the mote out of his brother's eye, and he realizes that kindness and love accomplish more than kicks. He looks on the bright side of life and keeps silent about his own sorrows. He understands the law of compensation and demonstrates how it is that worry never accomplishes anything. He has the philosophy which forces a smile instead of a frown and he is the man the world loves.

"The sunshine man seeks to gladden the hearts of others. He takes as his motto, "Look up, not down; forward, not backward; out, not in; and lend a helping hand.' Gladstone, Abraham Lincoln and Miss Helen Gould are included in the category of sunshine people."

The lecturer gave several concrete instances in anecdote of the workings of sunshine and repeated poetry of classic authors to further impress the thoughts upon his audience. This is one of the brief couplets:

"If I knew the box where the smiles were kept,
No matter how large the key and strong the bolt,
I would try so hard 'twould open to me.
Then over the land and sea broadcast,
I'd scatter the smiles to play,
That the faces of children would hold them fast
For many and many a day.

"If I knew a box that was large enough
To hold all the frowns I meet,
I would go to work and gather them in
From nursery, school and street,
Then, holding and folding I'd pack them in
So they never would get free
And I'd hire a giant to drop the box
To the depths of the deep, deep sea."

Rev. St. John Fitch was introduced as chairman of the evening by Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, the pastor. The lecturer and Mr. Fitch were schoolmates in Canada and during the interval between Dr. Wallace's arrival and the lecture both spent some happy reminiscent moments together. A large audience listened to the lecture, and frequently interrupted the speaker with applause at some telling point.

BOY CAUSE OF STRIFE TO MR. AND MRS. KLINE

The long deferred hearing in the action brought by Mrs. Rose Kline against her husband, Edward Kline, for the support of their eleven-year-old son, William, was brought before Judge William N. Runyon this morning in the city court. Mrs. Kline was represented by Winfield S. Angleman while Judge-elect William G. DeMeza looked after Mr. Kline's interests.

The trouble between the couple has been of long standing and the Charity Organization Society has had Miss Maybelle Phillips investigate the circumstances relative to the boy, who it was alleged could not attend school for lack of suitable clothing. The boy, who is the bone of contention, appeared to have been well fed and clothed despite the allegation of the mother to the contrary. Judge Runyon ordered a temporaary lull in the strife between the aged couple and left the case to be settled through the intervention of the society, the father and the mother. Mrs. Kline demanded money for the support of the boy which it appears her husband is unable to furnish from his income derived from an occasional day's work with contractor Keeler.

Mr. Kline is seventy years old while his wife confesses to being about fifty.

NETHERWOOD PASTOR WED

Rev. Royal Arthur Stout Marries Miss Ellen Peterson, of Vineland.

TO TOUR THROUGH THE SOUTH.

Reception to Be Held on Completion of Newly Built Parsonage—Home for Christmas.

Before a large number of members of the church of which he is pastor and many invited friends and guests, Rev. Royal Arthur Stout, pastor of the Netherwood Reformed church, married last evening Miss Ellen Surran Peterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Peterson, of Vineland. The ceremony was performed by Rev. P. T. Pockman, D. D., of New Brunswick, in the Netherwood Reformed church, at 7:30 o'clock.

The bridesmaids were two cousins of the bride, the Misses Ida and Bertha Davis, of Vineland. The best man was George Walter Stout, a brother of the groom. The matron of honor was Mrs. A. A. Cozzens, of New Brunswick, a sister of Mr. Stout. The ushers were A. A. Cozzens, of New Brunswick, and Rev. Leonard Appeldoorn, of Kalamazoo, Mich., Donald McKinney, of Rutgers College, presided at the organ, playing Mendelssohn's wedding march as the bridal couple approached the altar and the wedding march from Lohengrin which was beautifully sung by Mrs. Cozzens.

There was no reception after the ceremony this function being deferred until the completion of the new parsonage. Mr. and Mrs. Stout departed for a trip through the southland and will return in time for the Christmas festivities.

The bride was attired in white lace over Brussels net empire with train, and carried a shower bouquet of lillies of the valley and bride roses. The matron of honor wore a blue silk princess gown and carried a bouquet of huge pink chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids wore empire gowns of pink satin with chiffon sashes and tulle vests and carried white chrysanthemums.

The groom presented the ushers with stick pins and to the bride a pearl necklace. The bride's gift to the matron of honor was a silver mesh bag while to her briesmaids she presented gold crescent pins with pearl settings. A handsome gift to the couple came from the bride's father. It was the skin of a deer shot by him this fall and specially prepared for the occasion. The couple received numerous other beautiful and useful gifts from members of the congregation and relatives which will be shown at the reception after the completion of the parsonage.

Rev. Mr. Stout was ordained and installed pastor of the Netherwood Reformed church on Friday, May 27, last after his graduation from Rutgers Theological Seminary, the installation being conducted by the Newark classis and Rev. Dr. Pockman delivering the sermon.

Under Mr. Stout's careful guidance the new church has prospered and grown in membership and the indications are that prosperity will continue to follow the effects of its young minister.

Preceding the wedding the bridal party were entertained at dinner at The Plainfield, by Mrs. Berrien.

PLAINFIELDERS WIN HIGH HONORS IN FRUIT RAISING.

Henry Baldwin Drake and Walter Rittenhouse, formerly of this city, who are engaged in fruit raising in Colorado, have won further honors in an exhibit of some apples at the National Horticulture Congress at Council Bluffs, Iowa. They received first and second premium and a cash prize on a plate exhibit of the Stayman Winesap.

This means a great deal for the young men as Stark Brothers' Nursery, originators of the variety and all the growers in America, including the northwest, tried for the prize, but Messrs. Drake and Rittenhouse carried off the highest honors. The ribbons and the apples are now on exhibition at Armstrong's drug store.

Frank Hale's Funeral Tonight.

The funeral of Frank E. Hale, who died suddenly Monday night, will be held at his late home on Grove street at 7 o'clock this evening. The service will be in charge of Rev. J. O. McKelvey. The interment will take place tomorrow at New London, Conn. Members of the local Spanish-American War Veterans Camp will attend the service in a body.

G. A. R. to Elect Officers.

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will meet Tuesday night, December 13, for the annual election of officers. A full attendance is desired.

"GOD'S CATHEDRAL" PLAN MAY BE FRAUDULENT

What the "contributors" to "God's Cathedral' may think of "Bishop"' Theodore Homer Geisel, of Basking Ridge, may develope later, but it is inferred that there will be a wild scramble for the dollars sent to a man by that name as soon as the scheme by which the money has been secured is given the publicity it deserves. The self-styled bishop, it would seem, has been collecting not only names, but dollars for the founding of a huge cathedral to which he has given the name mentioned above, and it is alleged that his brother who is the real rector of a real church in Basking Ridge, is highly indignant at his relative for entering into a scheme which on its face appears fraudulent.

The project for the new cathedral, Mr. Meisel is alleged to have said, is to erect the edifice which will be non-sectarian with seats all free and to be built at Washington. There in a huge volume will be inscribed the names of "angles" who have contributed money in memory of deceased relatives. Mr. Geisel proposed to raise $1,800,000 in this way, but it is doubtful now whether the scheme will succeed owing to the publicity given to it.

HOSPITAL SUNDAY DATE IS CHANGED

The question of changing "Hospital Sunday in the Churches," from the last Sunday in December to a Sunday in February, was discussed at a meeting of the Plainfield Ministers' Association, at the home of Rev. C. L. Goodrich, on West Seventh street, yesterday afternoon. The matter was brought before the ministers by George P. Mellick, chairman of the finance committee of the hospital board. He explained that during December the people are busily engaged in preparations for the holidays and are not so ready and willing to contribute to the needs of the hospital, as at other times in the year.

It was further explained by Mr. Mellick that about $6,000 more than is received is needed each year for the work of the hospital and it is believed that if a Sunday in some other month is designated as the time for receiving the offering, a larger sum will be realized. The matter was thoroughly discussed and it was decided by the ministers to recommend to their churches that a Sunday in February be designated for the purpose. At all events the annual offering will not be received on the last Sunday of this month. There were several ministers absent yesterday and they will be acquainted with the action of the association.

After the business session there was a social hour during which refreshments were served. The association will hold its next meeting on Thursday, February 9, at the home of Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie. The program will be announced later.

ALLEGED MURDERER; ELECTION REPEATER?

Thomas Williams, the negro from Asbury Park, who has been a prisoner in the Freehold jail, incarcerated under suspicious of being the murderer of Marie Smith, the little school girl at Asbury Park, on November 13, was held in $2,000 bail, today by Judge Willard P. Voorhees in New Brunswick. This followed the statement by Prosecutor Applegate that the man had been guilty of felony in that he voted twice at an election under the name of Thomas E. Morris.

W. Lester Glenney and C. Ames Brooks, of this city, representing a society, which has taken interest in Williams, sought to secure his release on the charge of murder, claiming that it had not been showed that he had anything to do with the murder. Edward Cashion, warden of the Freehold jail, appeared at the hearing and testified to the fact that Williams had been found guilty of felony. It is doubtful whether Wiliams will get bail.

Oh, You, Joseph.

The current issue of the Billboard, the theatrical weekly, has the following to say in its corrrespondence notes of a well known Plainfielder: "Joseph Lane, advance man for 'Silver Treads,' was in town today arranging for the appearance of the production at the Lyric next week. Joe is looking fat and sassy and had the usual cheerful smile for his old friends."

Miss Clyde Burnet will lead the meeting at the Plainfield Rescue Mission tonight at 8 o'clock.

REVOLTS AMONG NATIONS

Germany, England and The United States Affected by Crises.

SAYS MISS J. E. NICHOLS.

In Lecture Before Large Audience At Hartridge Auditorium—President's Dilemma.

Miss Janet E. Nichols, of Washington, D. C. gave the second talk in her series of nine on current history yesterday afternoon in the Hartridge auditorium before a large and appreciative audience. She took as the topic the reasons for the revolt, unrest and changes along progressive lines in the three great Saxon countries, the United States, Great Britian and Germany. In each of these three great and progressive countries there is revolt of the common people against special privilege in one form or another.

Dwelling first on conditions in Germany Miss Richards said that the Reichstag's hysterical outburst on its reassembly in Berlin last week and the revolt of the press and the entire German nation against the Kaiser's Konisberg speech of August 26, in which he claimed for himself Divine right to rule, gave rise to two interesting points. First that any modern day ruler could be found to describe himself as the Kaiser had done in the foliowing words: "Considering myself as the instrument of the Master regardless of passing views and opinions I go on my way." And, second, in view of all that the Kaiser has done and is doing to promote the welfare of his empire, that the German people should have been so incensed at his assumption of Divine right. Eight years ago such words would have passed unnoticed thereby proving the immense step towards democracy made by present day Germans.

"Turning to the revolt in England we find the common People pitted against special privileges in the form of social position as unduly exercised by the House of Lords. The parliamentary elections now in progress in England hinge on the question of restricting the power of the House of Lords to veto liberal measures and money appropriations. Should the Liberals be returned to power Mr. Asquith, the prime minister, proposes to curb this power by passing into law any liberal measure which after three times obtaining the endorsing vote of the House of Commons is for the third time rejected by the House of Lords.

"One of the most dangerous situations which has ever confronted the English people is the question of Irish home rule. Ireland split into the two factions of Protestant North of Ireland and Catholic Southern Ireland, is at war with herself on this question. Feeling runs very high and should Catholic Ireland as she hopes, obtain home rule or Protestant Ireland get her wish in preventing home rule there are sure to be stirring times and our sympathies certainly go out to England in her present crisis.

In the United States the struggle is one between the people and special privilege in the form of trusts, financial corporations and the great monied interests. At the present moment the contest wages hot over the nominations by the President to the Supreme Court, the most influential body in the United States and President Taft whose nominees must be satisfactory not only to the Progressives of his own party, but also to the Democrats, is in an unenviable position. The Progressives standing for the people in opposition to capital are at present in a position to swing the vote when need be by siding either with the Republicans or the Democrats as the fight against the monied interests requires. In the opinion of many, President Taft himself would have been the ideal nominee for the office of Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, but as the nation has already forestalled his usefulness along that line by making him President other names must be submitted to Congress. No name meets with greater approval than that of Governor Hughes, who although never a judge in actual position, is at this time specially fitted to hold the office of Chief Justice in that he has never, through years of experience as judge, obtained that bias towards the monied interests which would make any nominee for that office unacceptable to the people.

"As an example of the power of the Supreme Court the case of the New York Bakeries improvement bill to better the sanitary conditions in bakeries which was reversed by the Supreme Court after passing Congress and obtaining the President's signature was cited. This was the decision which Mr. Rooseevlt criticized in his Osswatimie speech and

ONE HUNDRED M. E'S INSPECT POND PLANT

One hundred members of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, in which City Clerk James T. MacMurray is prominent,, were in town this afternoon. They are holding their annual convention in New York and on Mr. MacMurray's invitation they suspended business for the day to visit the Pond Machine Company's big plant here, of which the city clerk is general manager.

Arriving in special cars attached to the flyer stopping here at noon, the engineers were conveyed to the works in automobiles. They were received by Mr. MacMurray and Col. R. C. McKinney, president of the company. After an exchange of pleasantries, luncheon was served, W. W. Warnock being the caterer.

George Westinghouse, of Pittsburg, Pa., as president of the society, congratulated Mr. MacMurray for his executive ability in bringing the plant up to its excellent state of efficiency. Former Congressman W. W. Wiley, of Newark, the society's treasurer, and Prof. F. R. Hutton, the secretary, also had some kind words for the manager, after the shops had been thoroughly inspected. The engineers returned to New York in special cars attached to the 2 o'clock train.

VISIONS OF GRAND CANYON AT LECTURE

The beauty and wonders of the Grand Conyon of Colorado were portrayed through words and pictures by Nat M. Brigham at the Washington School auditorium, last night, before a large audience. The lecture was the first of a series under the auspices of the Board of Education, and proved a great success. Mr. Brigham displayed 150 views, a majority of them being among the finest yet seen here. They gave a faithful representation of the indescribable beauty and wonderful formations to be found in this world-famous centre of America.

Mr. Brigham is a delightful speaker and his descriptive powers are such that he holds the close attention of his audience. His description of the Grand Canyon itself, giving figures as to its depth, length, as well as that of the main trail leading through it, gave all a clearer idea of this wonderful place never to be forgotten.

There were many present who have visited the Grand Canyon and there was double pleasure for them in a review of the whole scene so familiar to them. It is the intention of the board to give a series of such entertainments during the winter and last night's attendance should prove encouraging. A noticeable fact in connection with the lecture, was that the presentation of a picture of Roosevelt, failed to bring forth applause from even a single person. The audience sat perfectly silent while the picture of the former President was on the screen.

Yesterday afternoon, Mr. Brigham gave a short illustrated lecture on the "Indians," before the children of the Washington School, and it proved enjoyable to everyone present.

WHITES DEFEAT REDS IN MEMBERSHIP CONTEST.

Winning members for the Probasco Bible class has been the most strenuous work done by the old members for some time and resulted in a victory for the "White" brigade, who defeated the "Reds" handily. As a result the Reds will entertain their opponents at dinner some time in January at which the guests will be joined by the new members.

The Bible class held its monthly meeting last night in the Y. M. C. A. parlors with thirty-six members present. After the business routine had been disposed of the young men enjoyed games, music and a general good time, including a roaring fire in the big old fashioned fire place. Dr. Norman H. Probasco is the teacher of the class.

William F. Day, chef of the City Club, and a veteran of the Civil War, was thanked by the members of the club last night, at their meeting, for the manner in which he has conducted the culinary operations during the past months. The club presented Mr. Day with a handsome watch fob, bearing the emblem of the G. A. R. on the reverse side and suitably engraved on the obverse. The meeting and banquet were held at Blimm's Hotel in North Plainfield.

WILSON FOR J. E. MARTINE

Governor-Elect in Letter to Public Says His Administration Must Keep Faith With the People and They Don't Want Smith.

Woodrow Wilson, governor-elect of New Jersey, gave out last night a signed statement, in which he declared himself in positive terms in favor of the election of James E. Martine, Democrat, of Union county, to the United States Senate to succeed John Kean, Jr.

Doctor Wilson in equally positive terms declared himself opposed to the election of former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., who, although he has made no formal announcement of his candidacy, is anxious for the honor. For some time the governor-elect has been holding conferences with Democratic members of the legislature and urging upon them the wisdom of electing Martine.

Doctor Wilson refrained from making any public statement until the present time, hoping that Mr. Smith would announce his retirement from the field. Doctor Wilson called upon Mr. Smith at his home in Newark on Tuesday night and personally urged him to retire. It is understood that Mr. Smith declined to do so. His lieutenants in Newark today announced that Smith must be regarded as a candidate.

The statement in full reads:

"The question of who should be chosen by the incoming Legislature of this State to occupy the seat in the Senate of the United States which will presently be made vacant by the expiration of the term of Mr. Kean is of such vital importance to the people of the State, both as a question of political good faith and as a question of genuine representation in the Senate, that I feel constrained to express my own opinion with regard to it in terms which cannot be misunderstood. I had hoped that it would not be necessary for me to sepak, but it is.

"I realize the delicacy of taking any part in the discussion of the matter. As Governor of New Jersey I shall have no part in the choice of a Senator. Legally speaking, it is not my duty even to give advice with regard to the choice, but there are other duties besides legal duties. The recent campaign has put me in an unusual position I offered, if elected, to be the political spokesman and adviser of the people. I even asked those who did not care to make their choice of Governor upon that understanding not to vote for me. I believe that the choice was made upon that understanding, and I cannot escape the responsibility involved. I have no desire to escape it. It is my duty to say, with a full sense of the peculiar responsibility of my position, what I deem it to be the obligation of the Legislature to do in this gravely important matter.

"I know that the people of New Jersey do not desire Mr. James Smith, Jr., to be sent to the Senate. If he should be he will not go as their representative. The only means I have of knowing whom they do desire to represent them is the vote at the recent primaries, where 48,000 Democratic voters, a majority of the whole number who voted at the primaries, declared their preference for Mr. Martine, of Union county. For me that vote is conclusive. I think it should be for every member of the Legislature. Absolute good faith in dealing with the people, an unhesitating fidelity to every principle avowed, is the highest law of political morality under a constitutional government. The Democratic party has been given a majority in the Legislature, the Democratic voters of the State have expressed their preference under a law advocated and supported by the opinion, of their party declared alike in platform as in enacted law.

"It is clearly the duty of every Democratic legislator who would keep faith with the laws of the State and with the avowed principles of his party to vote for Mr. Martine. It is my duty to advocate his election, to urge it by every honorable means at my command."

WESTFIELD.

The Westfield Board of Education has called a special school election to be held Thursday, December 22, to vote appropriations to purchase a school site and erect a new schoolhouse, the total to amount to $65,000. This meeting was necessary for the reason that at the last special election directions how to vote were printed on the ballot. This the attorney-general ruled invalidated the ballots and made a new election necessary. It is not likely that there will be any change in the vote on the subject.

Funeral services of Mrs. Catherine Alpers, mother of Mayor Augustus L. Alpers, were held at the late home, Dudley avenue, yesterday afternoon at 4:45. Mrs. Alpers was in her eighty-second year, and is survived by five children. She had been a resident of Westfield since 1876.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The musical and literary entertainment given by the Epworth League in the Methodist church, last night, was a most enjoyable affair but was very poorly attended. The committee was greatly disappointed as the program was made up of first class talent. Those appearing were A. Story, of Lincoln; violin selections, Fred Tallamy, of Dunellen, tenor soloist; Miss Rodenbaugh, contralto, and Miss Carrie Dawes, soprano, of Westfield; J. Matley Gangloff, of Dunellen, impersonations; Miss Mabel Ising, of Dunellen, soprano, and Mrs. Edward Krinic and Miss Lillian Kennedy, piano duets. All the numbers were well received. Mrs. Edward Krinic was chairman of the committee of arrangements and is entitled to much credit for the artistic success of the entertainment.

H. Nickolaysen, of the borough, started yesterday on the Scandinavian steamship "Hillegalow" for his former home in Germany. He will be away about six or eight weeks. A delegation of friends saw him off at the Hoboken pier.

Dr. Peter W. Brakeley was able to be out yesterday for the first time since Election Day, having been confined to the house by illness.

Henry Vogel, of Dewey Park, is confined to his home with an injured ankle, received by falling beneath his delivery wagon.

Former Mayor William A. Wyckoff is now considerably improved from his recent severe illness.

The Y. M. E. C. will meet next Tuesday night with Miss Ruth Day, of Dunellen avenue.

The annual meeting of the Dunellen Board of Trade will be held next Friday night.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The annual election of officers of Fireside Council, No. 715, of Westfield, was held last night at the semi-monthly meeting of the Council. A number of the local members were present.

The body of William H. Clark, who died at his home at Newark, Sunday morning, will be interred in the family plot in the Baptist cemetery here.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The presence of surveyors on the line of the West Jersey Railroad has revived a rumor that the road is to be double tracked from Newfield to Millville.

Caught in machinery, William Perkinson, thirty-two years old, of Fifth and Walnut streets, Camden, had his left arm badly torn Wednesday afternoon, and was cared for at the Homeopathic Hospital.

Isaac Sheppard, of Greenwich, has been stricken with paralysis and cannot survive. He was found unconscious on the kitchen floor of his home, where he lived alone. He is seventy-four years old and for many years was keeper of Cohansey Lighthouse.

The cadets of the Wenonah Military Academy, Major John R. Jones commanding, assisted Battery B, Field Artillery, Captain S. G. Barnard commanding, in the annual sham battle and dance at the Third Regiment Armory, Camden, last evening.

Robbers who entered the home of William D. Brown, a manufacturer of skirts and suits at Fifth and Pine streets, Camden, early Wednesday morning, walked into the room where the manufacturer was sleeping and carried away a pair of trousers containing about $50.

Bad teeth among the poor of Camden are to be looked after at the Homeopathic Hospital every Wednesday and Friday mornings, beginning today, under the direction of the Southern Dental Society. The work is in line with a general movement all over the United States.

The Burlington Council has passed ordinances providing for two bond issues, one for $35,000, to cover the remodeling of the city hall, take up maturing bonds and to pay for water main extensions and improvements to city wharves; the other, of $16,000, for educational improvements.

Announcement is made that Rev. Harvey W. Chollar, pastor of the Baptist church at Oak Lake, Pa. has decided to accept the call to Grace Baptist church, Trenton, succeeding Rev. Dr. J. C. Killian, who, with his wife, is now engaged in mission car work in the West.

Seamen expect to make some Christmas cash out of the wreck of the three-masted schooner Wishard, near Atlantic City, which went to pieces Tuesday and scattered in the sea 5,000 oak railroad ties, which, it is said, are worth $1 each. They are being piled up at various points on the beach.

In observance of the forty-eighth anniversary of the battle of Fredericksburg, December 13, 1862, about two hundred of the survivors will hold a reunion at Atlantic City Tuesday next. The Twenty-fifth New Jersey Volunteers, a regiment recruited chiefly from that section of the State, will be represented.

Mrs. John Gardner, wife of Representative Gardner, of Atlantic City; Miss Elizabeth Thompson and Miss Sarah Doughty have arranged for the erection of the Chestnut Neck battle monument, for which the State appropriated $5,000, and have given the contract to a Pleasantville firm.

A suspender buckle saved the life of Thomas Dawan, a milkman, at Hackensack, when he was mistaken for a burglar and shot over the heart by George Glatz, a young college student, who is at home for the Christmas holidays. The bullet struck the buckle, flattened and dropped to the ground.

William Jackson, of 970 Broadway, Bayonne, was before Recorder Mara, of that city, Wednesday, charged by his landlady, Mrs. Lizzie Roberts, with failing to pay any board for six years. Jackson said he had been adopted by Mrs. Roberts and worked for her. The hearing will be resumed later.

The deadlock in the Cape May Council over the election of a member to fill the vacancy caused by the recent resignation of James J. Doak, who was slated to be appointed Mayor to succeed F. J. Melvin, elected sheriff, was broken Tuesday evening, after six ballots, by the election of W. S. Shaw, Republican, over Pilot Samuel Bailey, Democrat.

WELL DONE, WOODROW WILSON

Some few days ago, the Philadelphia North American, probably the most fearless and persistent foe of political bossism, drew attention to the fact that the New Jersey senatorial situation put Governor-elect Woodrow Wilson to his first real test in public life. The whole country, attracted by the unusual personality injected into New Jersey's government by the election of a distinguished scholar to the Governor's chair, has been watching and waiting to see how the problem would be handled and disposed of by this untried man. It was conceded that there was no way posssible for him to dodge the issue. The campaign pledges of the party and the candidate compelled him to face his duty squarely.

That the Governor-elect has measured up to his obligations to the people is most gratifying not alone to his personal admirers but to the people generally. His statement, issued yesterday, is clear, concise, unequivocal and convincing, when he says, "I know that the people of New Jersey do not desire James Smith, Jr., to be sent to the Senate," he not only tells the exact truth but he throws down the gauntlet to the boss of his party. He has kept his promise. During the struggle for election he placed himself on record in a debate carried on by letter by declaring that he would not be influenced or dictated to by Smith or any other self-asserted leader, but that he, and he alone, would be the leader and that the people would be his masters.

Mr. Smith refuses to withdraw. He must now be forced out by the Legislature as a candidate and by the Democratic party as a dictator. So far as the Governor is concerned, this fate awaits him. The handwriting is on the wall, placed there by the Governor-elect and the Democratic members of the Legislature, cannot, dare not, let it remain unheeded. "Absolute good faith in dealing with the people, an unhesitating fidelity to every principle avowed, is the highest law of political morality under a constitutional government." These are the words of Dr. Wilson and the expression constitutes his guide in public life. The will of the voters as expressed at the party primaries will be carried out. A new era has dawned in New Jersey's politics. Thank God for Woodrow Wilson!

READ THE WATER REPORT!

Copies of the report of the expert on the water problem may be had tomorrow at the city clerk's office. It contains 163 octavo pages, interspersed with several maps, topographical grade lines and tables of figures. On the average there are about 400 words to a page, which means that Mr. Fuertes has told his story in about 65,000 words. The President of the United States has told his within the last few days in about half as many.

The report is full of information of various kinds and the expert has earned his money. As we said the other day, the document should be read carefully by the taxpayers generally. And we also repeat that the first impression one gets from reading it is rather disappointing. But, perhaps, a full discussion, may change the view the average citizen will take of it.

We say now as we did then that the report is disappointing because it offers a choice of two plans, both of which would leave the water company in possession of the supply beneath the surface of the city, and would compel the city to go to Berkeley Heights, North Branch or Hacklebarney for a surface supply of water requiring filtration and perhaps chemical treatment to sterilize pollution, or else to drive wells in the rock under the city and engage in a contest or race with the water company for that source of supply, the company having the advantage of being in possession not only of the underground water supply in the gravel and rock, but also having its mains connected with every important building in the city.

The first question to be decided is whether that outcome of the agitation of the water situation is either satisfactory or acceptable to the city, or even possible? Certainly it is not the solution hoped for when the agitation was begun. No one, heretofore, has proposed to abandon the supply of pure and wholesome water in our own soil and bring an inferior quality of water from a long distance, at a cost of a million dollars or more for the plant, and an expense of approximately one hundred thousand dollars a year for operation.

If it should be decided to adopt one of the plans proposed, although not distinctly recommended by the expert, other questions, depending, of course, on the plan that may be adopted, would arise for consideration. As the subject is one of vital interest to the community, we propose from time to time, as we have done, to state the questions that must be met if an effort should be made by the city to carry out either plan suggested in the report. The water question here is peculiar. In considering it, what we need is light, not heat.

A Homemade Present.

A row of hand embroidered scallops to trim a corset cover is not an unacceptable gift for a friend. Just enough to apply to neck and armholes (but enough without a doubt) is a reasonable amount to make. Get handkerchief linen and stamp upon it tiny scallops with eyelet in each or in every alternate scallop, if simplicity is the point you strive for. This bit of hand work, perfectly padded, buttonholed, eyeleted and then cut out, presed and mounted upon colored tissue paper, will not be scorned by the friend in need of the woman who never embroiders. It is entirely applicable to the next corset cover and easily done at that.

Automobile Lunches.

A man who detests what he calls picnic food, otherwise the cold food usually eaten at lunch time when motoring, has hit upon a plan by which it is possible to have hot lunches when stranded far from home.

Glass jars are filled with hot soup, coffee, chocolate or any desired beverage, another contains hot chicken terrapin, lobster newburg, creamed crabs, dried beef or any dish that can be prepared ahead of a meal.

The jars are then put in by the engine of the motor, and when wanted are found to be hot and delicious as when packed.

Took Even Their Carefare.

Guest—Was your bazar the other evening much of a success?

Hostess—Well, I should say so; every man present had to walk home.

POPULATION IS 2,537,167

State's Big Increase Since Last Census When Total Was 1,883,669

UNION COUNTY'S IS 140,197.

In Somerset County 38,820; In Middlesex County 114,426—Somerset's Gain Is a Trifle Over 5,000 In Ten Years.

Union county has a population of 140,197, according to announcement made by the census bureau at Washington, D. C., yesterday. This is a gain of 41,044 since the twelfth census taken ten years ago. Then the total number of inhabitants was 99,-353. In 1890, there were but 72,467 inhabitants.

The entire population of the State, according to the thirteenth census, given out yesterday, is 2,537,167, as against 1,883,669 a decade ago. This is a gain of 653,498 since 1900. The census taken in 1890 showed that New Jersey had 1,444,933 inhabitants.

Middlesex county's population, according to the new census, is 114,-426. The twelfth census gave it 79,762 and the eleventh census showed that there were 61,754 people in the county.

Somerset county has 38,820 inhabitants, having gained 5,872 in population in ten long years. Then its population aggregated 32,948. The eleventh census gave it 28,311.

A Simple Program.

Nothin' to do but listen,
Nothin' to do but wait,
And patiently hear with attractive ear
What the statesmen have to state.
Nothin' to do but watch 'em
As they gather in strength once more,
To lead the way and to have their say
As they've done so often before.

Nothin' to do but cheer 'em,
Nothin' to do but smile,
As they set the sail to each passin' gale
And steer the ship in style—
Nothin' to do but shake 'em
When Fortune is not so fair,
For gratitude never was the mood
Of republics anywhere.
—Washington Evening Star.

To Remove Mildew.

If kid gloves have become spotted with mildew they should be placed in a bottle with a lump of ammonia about the size of a walnut, cork the bottle tightly and leave them for a short time, when the mildew spots will quite disappear. If left too long, however, the ammonia will rot the stitches; so they must be watched. An air-tight box will do equally as well as a bottle.

Young Folks on Straw Ride.

The Misses Anna Warnock, of Craig place, and Lucille Ewart, of Fairview avenue, gave a delightful straw ride party for eighteen friends last night. The trip was to Springfield and back with a stop at Westfield on the return for refreshments. Mrs. Margaret Wilson, of Grove street, accompanied the young folks as chaperone.

A Washing Hint.

It is not generally known that a slice of lemon put into the copper when boiling clothes will make them beautifully white, and take all the stains out of pocket handerchiefs and children's dresses. Cut the lemon with the rind into slices, and let it remain in the boiler till the clothes are ready to come out.

Gave a Banquet and Dance.

The Nonpareil Social Club, colored, held its annual banquet and entertainment at the Plainfield Dancing Academy, last night. The affair was largely attended and proved to be enjoyable. After the excellent dinner was served there was dancing and an informal entertainment.

Kidney Beans in Brown Sauce.

Set the beans to soak over night. In the morning rinse and cook till a little tender. Put on in hot water. Make a thickening sauce with the water from the beans, a tablespoonful of butter and one of flour to a cup of liquid. Brown the flour, then add the butter, creaming the two. Add to the water and thicken. Pour in the beans. Serve with croutons of toast bread in small squares as a luncheon dish, or as a vegetable with meat.

—Among the specials at Neuman Bros. for tomorrow will be a large assortment of apples, Florida oranges and choice grape fruit. The prices are right.

PASTOR'S AID SOCIETY HANDKERCHIEF SALE

One of the most beautiful displays of Japanese embroidery, cloisonne and satsuma seen in this city in many a day was that exhibited at the sale of cake, handkerchiefs, etc., held in the parlors of the First Presbyterian church yesterday afternoon by the Pastor's Aid Society. Beautiful examples of the flimsiest kinds of silk doilies, exquisitely embroidered in flower designs; silk kimonas, and other objects of art all of which were sent from Japan especially for this sale by a missionary of this church. The booth was in charge of Miss M. B. Abbott and was largely patronized.

The occasion was the annual Christmas sale and the total receipts were gratifying to the committees. The cake table committee reported the sale of every bit of their wares and the results at the handkerchief table were almost as good. Fifty dollars was realized. Those in charge were: Cake, Mrs. W. W. Dunn, chairman; Mrs. H. A. Pope, Mrs. A. E. Hoagland, Mrs. Charles Hummer, Mrs. George Ballantine, Mrs. David Boice, Mrs. Anna Diman and Mrs. A. V. Searing, Jr. Mrs. L. A. Hummer, chairman of the handkerchief table, was assisted by Mrs. C. McKillop, Miss Dorothy Bull, Mrs. J. L. Brower, Miss A. L. Cadmus and Mrs. Fred Lounsbury.

Tea was poured by Mrs. D. K. Young, assisted by Mrs. Percy Dayton, Mrs. H. A. Schafuss, Mrs. John Johnston and Mrs. John Martin.

A Reunion.

The third annual reunion of the students' society of Drake's Business College of this city was held last night in Excelsior Hall, Scotch Plains, the affair being attended by about one hundred pupils and their friends. The evening program opened with an address by C. W. Fogarty, principal of the school, after which two laughable sketches were presented, entitled, "The Simple Life," and "The Parson and the Tramp." Dancing was then enjoyed until 1 o'clock in the morning, there being an intermission at midnight for supper. The committee in charge of the affair comprised H. J. Armstrong, C. W. Fogarty, W. G. Yaeger, I. A. Henry and Miss L. McInerney.

Robison—McBride.

Miss Delia McBride, of Martinsville, and Alvah Clark Robison, of Whitehouse, were married yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Abram Munger, 201 Watchung avenue, by Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church. Howard Robison, a brother of the groom was best man and Miss Mary Crater, of Martinsville, was bridesmaid. The couple will reside at Whitehouse.

Will Serve Light Meals.

The Young Women's Christian Association will serve soup, tea, coffee, sandwiches, etc., also a simple supper for the young women remaining down-town during the evening. This will give them a home-like place to get a reasonable supper. The dining-room will be open from 5 to 7 o'clock, beginning Thursday, December 15, to December 24, and any young women are invited to take advantage of this opportunity.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

Fiske O'Hara, the favorite Irish singing comedian, who comes to the Plainfield theatre, tomorrow afternoon and night, has for a vehicle this season Theodore Burt Sayre's great play of a hundred years ago, "The Wearing of the Green." In this play Mr. Sayre has seen fit to change his locale to Dublin during the dark days following the execution of Robert Emmett, and taken for his central figures those unknown patriots who died but of whom we never hear. The story of the play tells of one O'Reagan, a singer, who following a quarrel with the manager of a concert hall, refuses to appear, and to fill the vacancy the manager seeks Phil Fitzgerald, an unknown. Phil grasps the opportunity to appear in public, but his efforts, owing to lack of experience, fails to please the listeners, and his hours as a public singer are filled with viccissitudes the likes of which no singer of the present day is likely to encounter. At the time in which the play was written, in Dublin, it was high treason to sing "The Wearing of the Green" and the familiar song was fast dying out, when, like a shot from a clear sky, bold Phil Fitzgerald, with no thought of the consequence, surprises his listeners by singing the contraband song and from the moment becomes the popular hero. The play abounds in thrilling situations and interesting episodes. During the action of the play Mr. O'Hara will render the following songs: "The Wearing of the Green," "Nora McNamara," "An Irishman's Toast," "Eyes of Irish Blue" and "My Queen Is a Colleen."

The desire to see "Three Twins," the musical comedy that had New York city talking for fourteen months, is so great that it is a foregone conclusion that all of the seats for the engagement will rapidly leave the box office once they are placed on sale. "Three Twins" will be the attraction at the Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night, and will introduce Clifton Crawford and the original New York cast who have helped to make this musical comedy one of the biggest successes of the past twenty years. It has given unalloyed pleasure to audiences as large as the theatres could hold in every city in which it has been presented.

Miss Lillian T. Smith, of Mahwah, has been visiting her sister, Miss Caroline M. Smith, of Watchung.

Elmer V. Ackor, a student at the Polytechnical Institute, Troy, N. Y., has been visiting relatives here for a time.

Nephew—Aren't you afraid of shooting the dog when you go hunting, uncle?

Uncle—No, he's in no danger so long as he keeps close to the rabbits.

EAT AND GET THIN.

This is turning an old phrase face about but modern methods of reducing fat have made this revision possible.

If you are overfat and also averse to physical exertion and likewise fond of the table and still want to reduce your excess flesh several pounds, do this: Go to your druggist (or write the Marmola Co., 988 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich.) and give him (or send them) 75 cents. For this modest amount of money the druggist will put you in the way of satisfying your ambition for a nice, trim, slim figure. He will hand you a large case of Marmola Prescription Tablets (compounded in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription), one of which you must take after each meal and at bedtime until you begin to lose your fat at the rate of 12 to 16 ounces a day. That is all. Just go on eating what you like, leave exercising to the athletes, but take your little tablet faithfully and without a doubt that flabby flesh will quickly take unto itself wings, leaving behind it your natural self, neatly clothed in firm flesh and trim muscles.

News and Notes

BASEBALL.

Whispers from the Pacific Coast have it that the Cubs are to be torn bodily apart by Frank L. Chance, the "Peerless Leader," and the rusty castings of the once great machine are to be replaced by bright new steel work. In other words, Chance is to make a wholesale shift in the present line-up of the Cubs. Naturally, Chance is going to play first base, notwithstanding that he is slowing up like all the other veterans of the club. Evers will be back on his job at second and Tinker will move over to third and shove Steinfeldt out of a job. Heiney Zimmerman will probably be given a chance to see what he can do at shortstop, while the only job in the outfield that is now sure is said to be in centre, where Solly Hoffman is king peg.

This means that Sheckard and Schulte will probably be turned adrift with Steinfeldt, the three S's of the machine being due to figure in trades providing any club is willing to give live players for them. The boxmen, too, are to get a shaking up. "Old King" Cole, McIntire and Brown are said to be the only slabmen sure of their jobs. Overall, Richie, Pfeister, Weaver and Foxen are on the market if any club will hand over anything in the pitcher line for the aforementioned Cubs.

There will hardly be any change in the catching department notwithstanding rumors to the contrary. Archer is to be the first catcher of the band, with the once great Johnny Kling acting as the understudy, with Needham the third man of the corps.

Two more Phillies sent in their signed contracts Tuesday. Fred J. Wilhelm, the southpaw secured from Canton, O., said to be a second Rube Waddell, both as a pitcher and an eccentric individual, sent the following with his contract: "I received both your letter and contract today and I thank you. I will show you my appreciation in the spring and during the season of 1911."

Charles Steve Girard, secured from York, and in whom Manager Dooin has great confidence, wrote: "I received your letter and contract and return the latter herewith signed. Am pleased with the inducements you offer me and will certainly work hard to earn them. I know you have a good team for next season and I want to be a great help to your team."

According to Garry Herrmann, the official scorers for the National League next year will be selected from Detroit, Cleveland, Washington and a smaller city, while the American League staff will be picked from Pittsburg, Brooklyn, Cincinnati and a city not in either league. The scorers will be paid $2,500 and there will be some lively hustling to get these jobs. Of course, the scheme has not yet been adopted and they may hesitate awhile before paying out $20,000 a year for scoring.

in so doing laid himself open to the charge of high treason. After the recent elections he re-affirmed all his statements 'and especially those in the Ossawatimie speech," thereby throwing himself on the side of good ethics as opposed to the capitalists who had brought the case before the Supreme Court.

"In the matter of the Dallinger-Pinchot controversy according to the findings of the commission which has just ended, Ballinger is right in his attitude, but his policy is wrong, and threfore decisions of the Alaskan coal claims are to be taken from the Secretary of the Interior and handed over directly to Congress. This finding being popularly known as white-washing Ballinger."

At the close of the talk Miss Richards was most warmly applauded.

Appointments Not Confirmed.
December 8, 1910.

Editor, The Daily Press:

I wish to correct a mistake which crept into your columns a night or two ago in regard to the appointment of two policemen. The two men in question although only special officers, have been acting as regular policemen for a long time and there is no apparent reason why they should not be appointed upon the regular force as their appointment will not add to the number of the force, in view of the existing vacancies.

As a matter of fact, however, their nomination by the mayor was not confirmed but was referred to the police committee which I think was the proper thing to do under the circumstances, and the matter of their appointment will come up in regular course in that committee.

Yours truly,
FRANK L. HOLT.

(It was stated in these columns on Wednesday that the appointments were not confirmed but were referred to the police committee.—Editor.)

How I Got Mixed In a Love Affair

May heaven keep me from getting mixed in other people's affairs, especially love affairs! Ever since I brought Len Richmond down on a visit and introduced him to my cousin, Myra Ducher, I have regretted having done so. Len is an excellent fellow, rather inclined to look upon every incident or episode seriously and in a matter of fact light. I would as soon think of cracking a joke to an owl. Myra is a good girl, but nature did not endow her with average beauty. Indeed, she is homely.

I lost my parents early and was brought up by my aunt, Eliza Ducher, being beholden to her and her family for everything I had till I came of age. Therefore when I brought Richmond home and saw what were at least to me unmistakable signs that Myra had fallen in love with him and that he was not likely to return her devotion I felt as if I had committed a crime. True, there was nothing against her but her homeliness, for she was a fine character and had a winning way with her. Len, too, was not handsome. He was a lean, red headed, freckled chap, with a long neck and sloping shoulders. But nobody looks for beauty in a man.

He was conscientious as a mule. One day he came to me with a long face and said he wished to consult me about a very important matter. We were sitting on the porch, the doors and windows all open, and he spoke in a low tone. He told me that he had reason to suspect, what I considered a foregone conclusion, that he had unintentionally won Myra's heart and that he could not possibly return that love for the sole reason of her homeliness.

What was I to do? The only course for me was to convince him that his reason was no reason at all. Then if his inclination moved him toward the girl all would come out right.

"Len," I said, "I have heard that the best marriages follow from diversities between the man and the woman. A quick tempered woman should have a long suffering husband, an impulsive man a woman of self control, a homely wife"— I paused. Dare I utter the thought I had in mind? Then I blurted, "A good looking husband."

Len said nothing for several minutes. Nor did I. I was waiting to see if he would swallow the dose.

"You mean," he said modestly, "that I should not marry a beautiful woman."

"That's exactly what I mean."

Then he cut me to the quick. "I have always felt perfect confidence," he said, "that anything coming from you is absolute truth. No other being could make me believe that I am anything more as to looks than an average man."

I winced, but the happiness of two people was at stake.

"Average!" I said. "Average by no means expresses it." I took conscious comfort in the fact that his appearance was far below the average.

Len intimated to me that my cousin's homeliness should not stand in his way if he felt inclined to make her his wife. He did not speak to her, however, at the time, and I fancied he was waiting for the spirit to move him. He came down again in a month and made his proposal. He came to me immediately after having done so and surprised me by telling me that he had been refused.

"And what do you suppose," he added, "is her reason?"

"I can't conceive," I replied.

"She says that I have every requirement to please her fancy save one. I begged her to tell me what that one deficiency is, and she at last said that she had always fancied homely men. I wouldn't do."

"You don't mean it!" I exclaimed, aghast.

"Yes, and she added: 'Now, there's my cousin. For looks he'd suit me exactly.'"

The hot blood rushed into my cheeks, then suddenly rushed out again. Then I wanted to laugh. It didn't take me long to discover a reason for this singular apparent coincidence. While Len and I had been talking on the porch the minx had been listening at an upper window.

Richmond stood looking at me ruefully, giving no evidence whatever that he had even the faintest glimpse of the truth.

"Len," I said, "if I were you I'd go home and think no more about it. After all, it would be rather hard for you to pass your life with a homely woman. Besides, everybody nowadays says that marriage is a failure. It doubles our sorrows and halves our joys."

I didn't succeed in getting any comfort into him, but he went home all the same, and I turned my attention to Myra.

I am one of the fellows who marched up San Juan hill in Cuba, but it was nothing to going to my cousin to try to undo what I had done. For every word I spoke she sent back an answer like a Mauser bullet. At last, losing my temper, I said:

"You'd better take me. You say I'm homely enough to suit you."

What did she do but turn her head away from me and stare at the floor.

Great heavens! Had I been barking up the wrong tree? Had she been using Richmond for a foil? Anyway, here was a beautiful broad road out of the dilemma. I brought up a regiment of Cupids and poured a rattling volley of love pellets at her that broke her down entirely.

And, now I am engaged, I wonder what the dickens I'm to say to my friend Richmond. And what about marriage doubling our sorrows and halving our joys?

S. HUNTER HALSEY.

The Riverman

By STEWART EDWARD WHITE

Copyright, 1908, by the McClure Company Copyright, 1907, 1908, by Stewart Edward White

"Our association, of course, comes to an end. There remain the terms of settlement. I could fire you out of this without a cent, and you'd have to git. But that wouldn't be fair. I don't give a hang for you, but it wouldn't be fair to me. Now, as for the northern peninsula timber, you have had seventy-five thousand out of that and have lent me the same amount. Call that quits. I will take up your note when it comes due and destroy the one given to Heinzman. For all your holdings in our common business I will give you my note without interest and without time for $100,000. That is not its face value nor anything like it, but you have caused me directly and indirectly considerable loss. I don't know how soon I can pay this note, but it will be paid."

"All right," agreed Newmark.

"Does that satisfy you?"

"I suppose it's got to."

"Very well. I have the papers here all made out. They need simply to be signed and witnessed. Timbull is the nearest notary. Come," said he.

In silence the two walked the block and a half to the notary's house. Finally the papers were executed. In the street Newmark paused significantly, but Orde did not take the hint.

"Are you coming with me?" asked Newmark.

"I am," replied Orde. "There is one thing more."

In silence once more they returned to the shadowy low library. Newmark threw himself into the armchair. He was once again the coldly calculating, cynical observer. Orde turned to face him.

"You have five days to leave town," he said crisply. "Don't ever show up here again. Let me have your address for the payment of this note."

He took two steps forward.

"You're a dirty, low lived skunk. If you think you're going to get off scot free you're mightily mistaken."

Newmark half arose.

"What do you mean?" he asked in some alarm.

"I mean that I'm going to give you about the worst licking you ever heard tell of," replied Orde, buttoning his coat.

* * * * * * *

Five minutes later Orde emerged from Newmark's house, softly rubbing the palm of one hand over the knuckles of the other.

"What do you mean?" he asked.

He turned out of the side street. His own house lay before him. He stopped, then stole forward softly until he stood looking in through the doorway.

Carroll sat leaning against the golden harp, her shining head with the soft shadows bent until it almost touched the strings. Her hands were straying idly over accustomed chords and rich modulations, the plaintive half music of reverie.

Orde crept to her unheard. Gently he clasped her. She sank back against his breast with a happy little sigh.

"Kind of fun being married, isn't it, sweetheart?" he said.

"Kind of," she replied, and raised her face to his.

THE END.

Tennyson's Love For Birds.

Alfred Tennyson was all his life a great lover of the woods and fields. Trees, birds and flowers were his everyday companions, and he faithfully studied the habits of Dame Nature's English nurslings. The lark, the nightingale, the owl and the linnet were his favorite birds. He was also greatly interested in the sea birds, the peregrine falcons, the cormorants, seagulls, etc., and in the long legged sea birds, the visitors to marshes and pools. He thought the curlew, of which he has written in "Locksley Hall," a very noble bird and loved its wild call over the marshes. There are many references to birds native to England in his poems, and all of them show a thorough acquaintance with the individual characteristics of the different species.

At Farringford the poet's garden was the home of the wild birds of the hedgerows. The blackbird and robin and the smaller birds flocked there in great numbers, and it was considered far more important that they should feel welcome there than that the fruit should be permitted to ripen undisturbed or the garden be kept in proper order.

Domesticated birds also Tennyson numbered among his friends. Brilliant peacocks and more sober doves and pigeons, he loved them all.

How She looked.

Bessie—How did Maude look in her new gown?

Jessie—She looked as if she thought everybody was looking.

Plainfield in .... The Olden Days.

Re-printed from The Weekly Constitutionalist

July 24, 1873.

Mr. Frank C. Green, one of Plainfield's rising young men, has recently been admitted as partner into the firm of D. C. Green & Son, dealers in Gent's Furnishings Goods, Hats, Caps, Valises, etc., 156 Broad street, Elizabeth, N. J., where he will at all times be pleased to see his many friends and acquaintances.

On Tuesday afternoon last William Harding, aged about fifteen years, son of Mr. John Harding, employed at the depot in this city, took a train for Dunellen, the train not stopping at the station, William took a leap from the platform of the car and striking on his head was severely injured. It was thought at first that he could not live, but we learn that he is slowly recovering.

We learn that it is the intention of L. L. Compton to immediately commence the construction of a brick barn on the site of his old one recently burned, also to erect commodious workshops adjoining the same. It is also rumored that he will have the grounds in the rear of his handsome store, laid out in artistic style as an ice cream garden.

"Cannot something be done to prevent young ladies from being insulted on our streets at night?" asked a Cincinnati paper. There can. Just have the girls' mother tuck her into her little bed about 8 o'clock in the evening and lock the door on her.

A large and select party of citizens of this city proceeded to Chimney Rock, situated near Bound Brook, on Thursday last, and there "picnicked to their hearts content. The day was pleasant, the music, under the direction of Frazee, excellent, and nothing occurred to mar the festivities of the occasion. The party returned at an early hour, arriving in time to escape a severe shower which soon after passed over this city.

Street Commissioner Wilson did a good thing when he cleared Cherry street and the macadamized portion of Front street which goes to show that he wishes the public to be in perfect health.

July 17, 1873.

On Wednesday forenoon last two little boys each about five years of age, one a son of Chas. Wilcox, and the other Bertie, a grandson of Samuel C. Peck, were in a boat in the Wepowaing river, below the dam, the former trying to scull, when he lost his balance and fell in, the water being about four feet deep. His companion was greatly frightened, but had sufficient presence of mind to catch him and hold him until assistance arrived. It was a gallant act for the heroic little fellow. The brave little fellow above mentioned is a son of S. C. Peck, Jr., of this city.

A decided improvement is being made around the grounds known as "Lover's Dell," in North Plainfield. A stone wall five feet high has been built along the water front for a distance of some 200 feet and the high bank terraced and neatly sodded. The work is under supervision of S. O. Horton.

A Youthful Incendiary.

On Monday last, a young lad, aged 11 years, nephew of a gentleman residing on Fourth street, attempted to fire the barn of his uncle five different times during the day. A close watch being kept upon him after the first attempt, his efforts were frustarted. He gave as his reason for his attempts at incendiarism that his uncle had scolded him and he wanted to get even with him.

J. S. Cutter will commence immediately to remove the old stone building now used by him on Front street and erect in its stead a handsome brick edifice, three stories in height. The lower floor will be divided into two stores, one large one for his own use, and a smaller one to be rented. While his new store is being erected, Mr. Cutter may be found under Pope Bros., Dry Goods Store, on Somerset street.

TO CLEANSE TATTING.

Tatting cannot be properly washed to look as good as new, for it is almost impossible to restore the picots to their natural shape. Soak the pieces in gasoline and while wet dust them with cornstarch. Wrap them in a clean towel and leave them for several hours. Beat the towel lightly, lift out the lace and shake it free of starch. Press the picots into shape and iron lightly on the wrong side.

No Time for It.

Singleton—Do you believe in the old adage about marrying in haste and repenting at leisure?

Wedderly—No, I don't. After a man marries he has no leisure.—Smart Set.

The Old Market Wagon

figured in an interesting incident recently, when the discovery of the "Missing Will" in the wagon cover was made just in time to halt an administrator's sale and prevent the eviction of two aged legatees.

Very dramatic—but expensive for the estate and most inconvenient for all concerned. It would have been better to have left the Will in a Safe Deposit Box in the first place.

SCHOOL DAYS AT TRINITY

"Blueberry Corners" Knowledge Dispensary Displays Much Fine Talent.

THE TEACHERS' EXAMINATION.

Mirth Provoking Replies to Questions—Pupils Play Horse—Sale Follows Entertainment.

"School Days at Blueberry Corners," was the title of an amusing entertainment given at Trinity Reformed church, last night, under the auspices of the Young Women's Mission Band for the benefit of the treasury of the band. The affair proved to be a great success, the lecture room being crowded to overflowing with members and friends of the church, who thoroughly enjoyed themselves for a couple hours.

Both young and old returned to the pleasures of school days and not only enjoyed themselves, but kept everyone in continual laughter by their pranks so familiar to all. The first part of the entertainment was devoted to an examination by the school board, Messrs. Cutter, Rittenhouse and Trembath, of applicants for the position of school teacher. There were four appleants, "Miss Dashaway," Mrs. Corra Ryno; "Miss Belinda Sharp," Mrs. F. S. Cutter; "Mrs. Simple," Mrs. Charles M. Dolliver, and "Hezekiah Pendergrass," Charles L. Lewis. The questions and answers in the examination were extremely funny.

"Hezekiah Pendergrass' was finally chosen for the position, his qualifications meeting with the approval of the board. The next scene showed a school room with the children in session and the school master in charge.

There was much amusement when the teacher took down the names and ages of the pupils, the answers provoking hearty laughter. There were recitations in arithmetic, geography, history and language and all the pupils displayed a great lack of training as was shown by the ridiculous answers given. Miss Helen Woolley, as "Mehitable Jones," was the teacher's pet, and she gained much favor from him, as well as displeasure from her classmates by her actions.

A feature was the appearance of "Sally Brown," Miss Raybert, accompanied by her little brother, "Luther Brown," Lawrence French and the two afforded no end of fun for the spectators. Then there was more fun during recess when all the pupils enjoyed their lunch and "played horse," about the school room.

Then came the closing day of the school term, when the pupils recited and sang to the delight of the teacher, the school board and the visitors to the school. Everyone in the class had to do something from singing a song to reciting a piece and all received applause for their efforts.

The whole affair reflects not only credit on all the pupils, but especially on Miss Etta Raybert and Charles L. Lewis, who planned and arranged the entertainment. Mr. Lewis was just as funny as ever in the part, while Miss Raybert dressed as a school girl kept eevrybody laughing by her actions. Those who took the various parts were as follows:

"Hezekiah Pendergrass," the school master, Charles L. Lewis; school trustees, "Smith," F. S. Cutter; "Perkins," Clarence Rittenhouse; "Billiker," William Trembath. Visitors to the school on closing day, "Mrs. Dipsy," Mrs. Harry Cooke; "Miss Miranda Dipsy," Miss Edna Burd. Applicants for the position of school teacher, "Miss Dashaway," Mrs. Corra Ryno; "Miss Belinda Sharp," Mrs. F. S. Cutter; "Miss Simple," Mrs. Charles M. Dolliver; "Hezekiah Pendergrass," Charles L. Lewis.

Pupils—"Jeremiah Jenkins," Russel Doeringer; "Samuel Snooks," Chauncey F. Colthar; "Matilda Billings," Miss Edith Richards; "Stephen Tucker," E. D. Young; "Bobby O'Lee;" Lester Renninger; "Ruth Ketchum," Mrs. A. B. Cole; "David Snobbs," Elmer Gayle; "Glorinda Geyser," Miss Madaline Strader; "Faithful Snooks," Miss Helen Smith; "Dorcas Doolittle," Miss Edna Cole; "Sim Dipsy," Edward Honeyman; "Mehitable Jones," Miss Helen Woolley; "Obadiah Buzzard," Herbert Reninnger; "Sally Brown," Miss Etta Raybert; "Susan Crowfoot," Mrs. William Trembath; "Jerusha Dickson," Miss Gertrude Schleif; "Samantha Piper," Miss Edna Dilts; "Billy Crowfoot," A. B. Cole; "Luther Brown," Lawrence French.

After the entertainment there was a sale of fancy articles aprons, etc., in charge of Mrs. F. S. Cutter, Miss Lillian A. Force, and Mrs. George Mantz, and a sale of cakes by Mrs. H. C. VanEmburgh and Mrs. Will F. Williams, while ice cream and cake were sold. Mrs. Leonard Smith,

MRS. ELIZABETH A. VARS AGED SEVENTY-SIX, DEAD

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Vars, aged 76 years, wife of the late Nathan Vars died yesterday at the home of her son, Alexander W. Vars, 814 Webster place, where she had been making her home for the past seven years. Her death, which was sudden, was due to valvular heart trouble. She was taken ill at breakfast time and passed away soon afterward.

Mrs. Vars was born at Scotch Plains, her maiden name being Elizabeth Wilson. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Wilson, of that place. After her marriage she removed to Dunellen, where she resided since 1869, coming to Plainfield seven years ago to make her home with her son. Mrs. Vars was a devout Christian woman and admired for her many excellent qualities. She was a member of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, New Market, where she attended regularly for many years. Beside a son, she leaves three sisters, Mrs. W. W. Thompson, of Westchester, Pa.; Miss Charlotte M. Wilson, of Newark, and Miss Matilda Wilson, of Middletown, N. J.

The funeral service will be held at the late home, Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. H. N. Jordan, of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, New Market, will officiate and the burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

DR F. C. ARD GIVES EYE TALK AT Y. W. C. A.

The members of the Young Women's Christian Association enjoyed a most interesting and instructive talk on the eyes at the association building last night. It was given by Dr. Frank C. Ard, Plainfield's well known specialist, and was illustrated by valuable stereopticon views prepared for the occasion.

Dr. Ard's address embraced explanations of the common diseases and troubles of the eyes the best method of prevention and their treatment. He also showed the proper way of abstracting foreign particles from the optics. A matter that frequently leads to serious complications if undertaken by inexperienced hands. In speaking of the care of the sight he emphasized the importance of proper light for reading or sewing and warned his hearers against strain at any time.

Taking up the most prevalent diseases of the eye, Dr. Ard detailed the causes of trachoma, iritis and similar complaints, and how to detect them. He also gave a thorough explanation of cataracts, a common cause of blindness, picturing their origin in the hardening of the lens, their slow development and the forms of removal. Throughout his address, Dr. Ard avoided a surplus of technical terms, with the result that he was easily followed in all his intricate details. The talk was one of the best yet given under the association auspices.

Following the lecture the members of the evening dressmaking classes remained for a social hour, during which they held a "speed" contest. In this clothes-pins were used as models for making dresses in the least possible time, producing a lot of wholesome fun.

John LaMatty, superintendent, will conduct the meeting a tthe Plainfield Rescue Mission, tomorow night and Mrs. John Manley will sing.

EQUAL FRANCHISE CLAIMS

Arrangement of Facts in Criticism on Miss Elizabeth Jordan's Lecture.

MRS. F. H. HALL'S ARGUMENT.

Suffrage Not a "Mess of Pottage," Declares Honorary President, "But Highest Degree of Freedom."

The lecture give by Miss. Elizabeth Joradn, at the Hartridge auditorium last night has stirred some, if not all of the suffragists of the city to take exception to the arguments set forth by the eminent Professor of Smith College and the following from Mrs. Florence Howe Hall reflects the opinions of at least one woman member of the Equal Suffrage League.

Editor, The Daily Press:—

"It is a saying among suffragists that the anti-suffragists help our cause wherever they speak. I think many converts must have been made by the address of Miss Elizabeth Jordan, Professor at Smith College, at the Hartridge auditorium on Monday. Professor Jordan is a clever woman, but the academic shades in which she has long lived have affected her thoughts to such a degree that she does not express herself in the clear, straightforward manner in which we are accustomed to hear practical, concrete problems dealt with at the presen' day. This ambiguous and veiled style of utterance is characteristic of the anti-suffragists, who are extremely averse to arguments, for obvious reasons. Professor Jordan did, however, permit herself to make two clear statements, one being that if women had the suffrage it would only double the vote; the other, that if we had the ballot we should be obliged to give up freedom of discussion, and that therefore the ballot would be to us a mess of pottage.

"This claim, that giving the franchise to women would merely increase the number of votes appears to be founded on the idea that we are all asleep and would simply follow the lead of our husbands and brothers. The argument has often been refuted, but never more neatly than by Everett Colby. In a recent speech he told of his experience with a real estate broker to whom he had put the question, 'Do you believe in Woman Suffrage?' 'Oh, no! Not at all. It would not make any difference, they would vote as their husbands did. They have privileges enough already. Why, you wouldn't believe the troubles we have in getting them to sign away their rights of dower in their husband's property!' This was asserted in one breath, that woman would vote just as their husbands wanted if they had the franchise, and in the next he complained of the constant opposition of these very women to the husband's wish to deprive them of their property. Possibly those who have more independence of character without the rights of citizenship, might retain it after acquiring those rights.

"Our friends, the anti-suffragists seem to imagine party lines are of cast iron and that Republicans and Democrats are divided off like the sheep and the goats. According to Profesor Jordan, those who have the suffrage become party slaves, silent and uncommunicative, save in the presence of their fellow Republicans and Democrats. Evidently the echoes of the recent election have failed to reach Smith College. The existence of the Independent voters was pretty clearly demonstrated last month and the independent voters certainly can both discuss, debate and listen to arguments. Even the regular line party men appear to the ordinary observer, to discuss politics, even with vehemence at times.

"As for the ballot being a mess of pottage, that depends on one's point of view. Mr. Chauncey Depew and some others, doubtless think it so just now. Professor Jordan spoke of this instrument of popular sovereignty as the successor to the sword and the thumbscrew. In a word, she depreciated it as much as possible, but did not say what she would like to substitute for it. When asked by one of her audience whether she believed in philosophical anarchy, she made no reply.

"That popular government is without faults, none of us believe. But we do believe it is the best form of government yet devised, and as intelligent, patriotic citizens, we women desire to have our share in the burdens and the privileges entailed by the possession of the ballot. We do not imagine that the ballot is a cure-all to all evils, but we do believe it is a forceful weapon. Doubtless it would lay more burdens and responsibilities upon us; doubtless we should in some way be bound by it. When we become members of a church; when we take the vows of matrimony, we also bind ourselves. No human being can hope to be perfectly free; even the gentlemen of leisure, the tramps, are liable to be

MAKE SABBATH A DELIGHT

Mothers of Boys Learn the Secret From Rev. F. K. Mathiews.

SUBSTITUTE "DO" FOR "DON'T"

Comparisons of Hours Shows Lack of Religious Instruction—Child the Same On Saturday As Sunday.

"How to Make the Sabbath a Delight for Children" was the subject of the last lecture in the series that have been given by Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association in the association auditorium for the last ten weeks.

These lectures have been very well received by the mothers of Plainfield who have availed themselves of the opportunity of attending. They are looked upon by the association authorities as the finest piece of religious work that the association has ever undertaken. Much regret was expressed by the many mothers because this was the last lecture. After January first it is intended to present another series of talks and exhibits that will be especially interesting and helpful to adults and mothers who are dealing with the training of the young.

The speaker made a startling comparison in the number of hours that are given to the child's secular education and its religious education. Five hours a day for five days each week made up the secular part of the child's work while only one hour a week is given to religious instruction. Parents insist on the child's studying his day school lessons but the work of the Sabbath school is a hit or miss proposition.

The home is the natural place for religious education and the work of the church and the Sabbath school is to be supplemented by the parent in directing and encouraging the reading of the child along proper lines. Moulton's "Old and New Testament Stories," "Bible Stories For Children," by William D. Murray; "Ethics for Children," by Jean Cabot, are three of the books that were especially recommended for mothers.

The child on the Sabbath is the same child that romped and played on Saturday and that attended school five days out of the week. The play instinct is as strong on the Sabbath day as it was on a week day. Froebel recognized this and revolutionized the education of the child. There are a great many games, card games, guessing games, pictures, puzzles, etc., that are exceedingly attractive and encourage the child to go to the Bible to solve and learn the catch points of the games.

The parent's objection would be that it takes too much time. Answering this, Mr. Mathiews said, we took time to prepare for other things on Sunday, for instance, the Sunday dinner. The child in the home is of more importance than anything else and we should give him the chief place by preparing a program that will deliver him from constantly hearing "don't."

In conclusion, Mr. Mathiews appealed to the mothers to accept this as their opportunity to influence the child. A little later the "gang" spirit develops and the child seeks other companions than the parent. "If we learn to live for our children now, our children will learn to live for us, and that will be our reward," said the lecturer in closing.

OPINIONS AS TO MERGER

A.V.D. Honeyman Says Proposal Should First be Submitted to People.

BORO COUNCILMEN'S VIEWS.

What the Members of North Plainfield's Governing Body Have to Say On Consolidation and Annexation.

Probably the most prominent and active opponent to annexation when the campaign was on some eight years ago to make North Plainfield a part of Union county was A. V. D. Honeyman. Mr. Honeyman was the leader of a vigorous body of borough taxpayers who fought a winning fight against the secession of that municipality from Somerset county.

The Daily Press has asked Mr. Honeyman, who is now a resident of Plainfield, to give his views on the propositions to consolidate North Plainfield with Plainfield and to have that territory embraced within Union county's line.

Mr. Honeyman's veiws are herewith presented:

"Editor, The Daily Press:—

"You ask for my views, at present, respecting 'Consolidation and Annexation' of North Plainfield borough to the City of Plainfield. Not now being a resident of North Plainfield I do not feel that I have any right to say what its citizens should or should not do in the matter.

"When the question was up before, not for consolidation but for annexation to Union county, I joined with many others in opposing the scheme; for it was, then, purely a political scheme, intended to bring about the annexation of territory to Union, and with no real desire on the part of the leaders of the proposal to consolidate with Plainfield, as I happened to know. Were I living in the borough now I should again oppose any annexation to Union county, because it is wholly unnecessary in order to effectuate a union with the city of Plainfield, supposing that to be desirable.

"Your ex-Mayor, Mr. Randolph, well says that in many respects the borough and city should be under one government. If the people of the borough desire it and so express themselves by vote, I see no objection to it. I think it might be to the advantage of both, considering the many expensive problems that confront both municipalities, and the economy that might result. But the plan of Mayor Smalley to have the Legislature act without a referendum to both North Plainfield and Plainfield is contrary to modern precedents and to sound democracy. No such proposal should become law until accepted by a majority of the voters voting at a special election.

"If New York City can exist as the 'Borough of Manhattan' and yet includewithin its municipal limits cities and boroughs of several counties, surely a greater city of Plainfield could exist and include territory in two counties. It is only a question of properly drafting a Legislative act to accomplish the purpose.

A. V. D. HONEYMAN."

Members of the North Plainfield Council today expressed their views.

Morris C. VanArsdale stated that while he favors the annexation of North Plainfield to Union county, still he believes that the borough has a more important problem to solve just now. This concerns a sanitary system of sewage disposal. When this matter is disposed of he believes that then it will be time to talk about consolidation and annexation.

Julius J. Stahl declined to make any comment at this time, saying that he had not read the correspondence between former Mayor Randolph, of the city, and Mayor Smalley, of the borough.

Alexander Milne, who will succeed George T. Rogers as a councilman on January 1, expressed himself as in favor of both consolidation and annexation. He believes that the community should be one in law as it is now in every other respect.

William L. Smalley, Jr., said that he heartily favors annexation and consoliadtion. He does not share the view of his brother, Mayor N. B. Smalley, that the change should be made by the Legislature without first obtaining the desires of the taxpayers of the city and the borough. He favors a referendum.

Brazilla Waldron is at Califon for the day and his opinion could not be obtained.

Lemuel B. Woolston endorsed the ideas expressed by Mayor Smalley in his letter to Mr. Randolph. He said that the mayor had voiced the sentiments for which he has been working favorably for the last fifteen years. According to him, both the sewage disposal and the water problems can be better solved by first effecting a merger of the city and borough and the annexation of the borough's territory to Union county.

ST. JOSEPH'S SODALITY HOLD XMAS SALE

The Sodality of St. Joseph's church conducted a successful bazaar and sale in the chapel that opened Thursday afternoon and closed last night. The results were even beyond the expectations of the young workers and a neat sum will be added to the church fund. The afternoons were set aside for children while the older folks visited at night. The attendance last night was very large.

The various tables and booths were arranged about the room and were presided over as follows: Fancy table, Miss Stella Maag, assisted by Miss Charlotte Sutton and Helen McDonough; ice cream booth, Miss Justina Smith and Miss Mary Jacot; ice cream cone booth, Miss Elizabeth Kellegher; refreshment table, Miss Virginia LaPorte, Miss Catherine Hanlon, Miss Bessie Smith and Miss Catherine Kellegher.

The young people were assisted in the arrangements by the Misses Mary Jacot, Justina Smith, Kate Egany, Elizabeth Rieley and Stella Maag and Mrs. P. Kellegher.

MISS MILLER IS HEARD IN CHARACTER SKETCHES

The auditorium at the High School was not crowded last evening when Miss Juanita Miller and Mm. Kitty Berger made their initial bow to a Plainfield audience, but there were enough people there to encourage them to give a good performance. However, they did not warm up to the offerings of Miss Miller who had been heralded as a wonderfully clever young woman. The program included four character sketches in costume by Miss Miller and several zither selections by Mme. Berger, and the latter seemed to please the audience more.

Miss Miller was best in her recitation of one of her father's poems "Columbus," which she recited with considerable dramatic ability, and in her song "Koon Kinks," written by herself, betrayed some ability as an impersonator.

The zither solos were warmly received and on two occasions Mm. Berger received encores for her careful and sympathetic playing, especially in her interpretation of moods in her own compositions. Her best number was the aria, "La Belle Helene," by Offenbach.

7TH DAY C. E. SOCIETY OBSERVES ANNIVERSARY

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church observed its nineteenth anniversary this morning, when a special program was followed at the hour of the regular church service under the direction of Miss Ethel O. Rogers, president of the society, as follows:

Organ voluntary, doxology, invocation, anthem, Young People's choir; responsive reading, led by Miss Ethel Rogers; Scripture reading, by the president of the society; prayer, Frank A. Langworthy; offertory and selection by male quartet; paper, "What the Society has been doing," Miss Nettie G. Stillman, secretary; paper, "What the Society is planning to do," Raymond C. Burdick; anthem, Young People's choir; paper, "What the Society ought to do," Charles F. Nagle; paper, "What the Society ought not to do," Miss Ruth P. Maxson; a word by the pastor, Rev. Edwin Shaw; hymn, benediction, organ postlude.

The Endeavor meeting this afternoon will be an honorary members' meeting. All persons who have ever been members of the society in the nineteen years of its history are invited to attend. Miss Nancy F. Randolph, an honorary member, will be the leader. At the anniversary service this morning there was a special offering for the work of the society and the money will be given to Rev. and Mrs. H. E. Davis, missionaries at Lieu-oo, China. Mrs. Davis was a member of the society and is now a member of the church, known to the members as Miss Mary Ross.

The pastor, Mr. Shaw, will speak at the meting of the Junior C. E. society at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The society packed a large box of Christmas presents this week and sent it to the children of a church at Cosmos, Oklahoma, a place forty-five miles from the railroad.

Miss Grace Stillman, of West Fourth street, who has been ill at the hospital with tyhpoid fever and not scarlet fever, as reported, is doing nicely.

FREEHOLDERS BUY SITE

White Plague Camp to be Located at the Fullerton Farm.

WAS PURCHASED FOR $15,000.00

Architect Engaged and Work Will Be Begun in the Spring—Tract Covers Sixty-Five Acres.

The Union County Board of Freeholders at a special meeting held at the Courthouse, Elizabeth, yesterday, purchased the Henry S. Fullerton farm near Scotch Plains for $13,000, upon which it is proposed to establish a county tuberculosis camp. The farm adjoins the Duyckinck farm, the one originally suggested as the desirable location, the latter tract being offered for $20,000.

The above action was not taken until considerable opposition was offered by many who attended a hearing given by the board. These arguments against the desirability of the purchased site, were ably answered by Dr. W. H. Murray, of this city, as well as William S. Tyler.

Following the hearing, Freeholder J. Hervey Doane, chairman of the special committee, presented his report recommending the purchase of the Fullerton farm and it was adopted and the tract subsequently purchased. Jesse Ooakley, the Elizabeth architect has been engaged to draft plans for suitable buildings, which must first be subject to the approval of the State Board of Health. He will also consult Dr. Carrington, of New York, a specialist in tuberculosis work, and will be guided largely by his views in making his plans.

The Fullerton farm comprises sixty-five acres, being considerably smaller than the Duyckinck farm, but the up-to-date improvements more than make up for the size. There is on the tract a modern house of twelve rooms, finished in hardwood. There are also on the farm a lake, ice-houses, stables a windmill, a gas engine for pumping water and is up-to-date in every detail. Its distance from the trolley or railroad is about the same as from the Duyckinck farm.

The Duyckinck farm was owned by Mrs. Dickson, sister of City Clerk J. T. MacMurry and while the announced price was $20,000, it is understood that it could have been purchased for $15,000.

Freeholder Doane in making his report explained what had been done by the committee, telling of its investigation and the assistance and advice from tuberculosis societies, as well as physicians. It wil not be possible to do anything in the way of building until spring. In the meantime preparations will be made for the reception of tuberculosis patients.

A Benefit Recital.

Mrs. Frederick Martin, of New York, will be the soprano soloist, and Theo. White Jacobi, violinist. L. H. Jacobi, Jr., in additional to solo work will do all the accompanying on a Hallet and Davis Player-Piano. The program will be a fine one and persons desiring to lend their support to the Children's Home should patronize the recital.

Funeral of J. H. Mortimer.

The funeral of John H. Mortimer, who died in New York Hospital, Tuesday night, was held at 11 o'clock yesterday morning from the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. W. G. Anderson, of Franklin place. Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, officiated and the burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. John Driscoll, 735 West Third street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "The public statement I gave several years ago concerning my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills was correct and still holds good. I suffered from a dul pain across my back which clung to me incessantly. Hard work increased my misery and at times I also had headaches and dizzy spells. I tried plasters and remedies of various kinds but without relief. Doan's Kidney Pills, which I finally procured at Randolph's Pharmacy relieved me and for that reason I heartily recommend them."

BASEBALL.

Pat Powers will not make a fight for re-election to the presidency of the Eastern League at the annual meeting of that body in New York city on Monday. At least that is the latest rumor. Mr. Powers has been president and the moving spirit of the Eastern League for so long, even in the face of some opposition, that many baseball men will refuse to believe in his retirement until his successor is elected. A business venture in Ireland—a mining venture, to be exact—is behind the determination of Mr. Powers to retire from active participation in baseball.

Edward Barrow, of Toronto, who long has cast envious eyes on the job, is said to be the leading candidate for the place. He managed the Detroit club, of the American League, one year, but recently has handled the Montreal club, of the Eastern League.

The baseball game between Harvard and the University of Pennsylvania on June 7 next, sanction for which was formally given by officials of the latter university yesterday, will be the first dual meeting between teams representing the two universities in any sport since 1905. A baseball game in that year was the last meeting between Harvard and Pennsylvania. There was much agitation at Cambridge against Harvard playing the game, as in the fall of 1904 it was said that a protest by the Crimson football team, of which Daniel Heurley was captain, against a player on the Pennsylvania eleven was ignored by the Pennsylvania officials. Since that time athletic relations between the two universities have been discontinued, except on the occasion of general intercollegiate athletic games.

It is thought probable in Boston that the baseball game may pave the way to a resumption of football contests between the two universities.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

One of the really dramatic events of the season is the visit of Fiske O'Hara in his latest comedy success "The Wearing of the Green." Mr. O'Hara is booked to appear at the Plainfield theatre, this afternoon and evening. Mr. O'Hara comes this year with a repertoire of new songs, and his newest play is said to be the best he has ever had. Theodore Burt Sayre is the author of "The Wearing of the Green," and this alone, were he not the author of many of our best known Irish dramas, would recommend him as truly remarkable dramatic constructionist. "The Wearing of the Green," tells the story of Phil Fitzgerald, a patriotic Irishman, who struggles to gain recognition in the land of song. He tries in vain to secure a public hearing. Suddenly, through the refusal of a well-known singer to appear, Phil gets his opportunity. At the time he is called upon to fill the vacancy, it was contrary to the laws to sing, "The Wearing of the Green," but Phil, in his boyish enthusiasm and undying patriotism sings the song publicly and becomes the hero of the hour. Love, hatred, romance and adventure make up the body of the play, while Mr. O'Hara introduces into the action of the piece many new Irish songs, among which are "The Wearing of the Green," "An Irishman's Toast," "Nora McNamara," "Eyes of Irish Blue," "My Queen is a Colleen" and others.

SHOT AT EMPLOYER, MAY BE MURDERER.

Charged with shooting at his former employer and the latter's daughter, and also suspected of the murder of John Haywood, a negro farmhand, Frank Bodner, is in the county jail at New Brunswick. Haywood's body was found near the canal at Blackwell's Mills a week ago. Haywood was hired after Bodner had been discharged by Julius Bartha. Bartha's farm is near here, but in Somerset county. Bodner was enamored of Bartha's daughter Mary, who was annoyed by his attentions.

After his discharge Bodner, it is said, camped on the farm of a New Yorker, near the Bartha place. The farm was occupied only during the summer. Bodner continued to annoy the Barthas, and it is charged, fired four shots at the girl and five at her father. None of them took effect. Bodner, it is said, admits firing at the Barthas, but asserts that he did it simply to scare them.

Bodner has been turned over to the Somerset county authorities.

The killing of Haywood may be cleared by Bodner's arrest.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Flynn, of this city, have returned from a visit with relatives at Raritan.

Mr. and Mrs. John Reynolds, of this city, who have been visiting relatives at Raritan, have returned.

Miss Ella May Walsh of this city, and Ira Vail, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Vail, of Elmwood place, will be married at the Holy Cross church, Wednesday night, January 4.

"IT IS TO LAUGH."

A statement given out last night by Governor-elect Wodrow Wilson at Princeton, on the question of the next United States Senatorship was foreshadowed by some recent newspaper articles more or less sensational.—Smith's Morning Star.

If there is anything more sensational as a joke in newspaperdom than the Stars of James Smith, Jr., you will have to show us. SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

William Reed, eighteen years old, of Paulsboro, broke his left arm Tuesday, when he fell on a slippery pavement.

Francis B. Lee, lawyer and historian of Trenton, has been notified that the drgeee of bachelor of science is to be conferred upon him by the University of Pennsylvania on the evening of December 16.

While opening his store, George Franklin, of Bridgeton, was bitten by a dog that wandered into the place Thursday. His hand was badly lacerated. Investigation showed that the animal had been bitten a week ago by a mad dog.

The Woodbury Board of Trade,two years old Thursday night, celebrated the event with a banquet at Newton's Hotel. Former Governor Edward C. Stokes was one of the speakers, and dwelt upon the value of such organizations as boards of trade of cities of this State.

While trying to escape the many coasters who were using the West Commerce street hill, Mrs. Charles D. Ingersoll, of North Pearl street, Bridgeton, was struck by a sled while at Atlantic and Commerce streets Thursday afternoon and thrown with great force against a telephone post, rendering her unconscious. Physicians who were called pronounced her suffering with concussion of the brain.

His leg caught in a revolving belt at the lumber mill of C. B. Coles & Sons Co., Front and Chestnut streets, Camden, Samuel Rodgers, twenty-eight years old, of Gloucester City, was whirled around and then thrown to the floor Thursday afternoon. He was rushed to the Homeopathic Hospital, where it was found the limb had been wrenched, badly lacerated and fractured. Rodgers' recovery is anticipated.

Struck by a trolley car at Eighteenth street and River avenue, Camden, Thursday, Mrs. Margaret Kuhnel, twenty years old, of 2826 Concord avenue, was internally hurt and severely cut about the legs. Walking on the tracks, she stepped from the outbound rails to the northbound rails, directly in front of a car. She was thrown, unconscious, into a snow bank. At Cooper Hospital, it is stated that her injuries are not serious.

George Schroder, night watchman at the I. P. Thomas Phosphate Works at Paulsboro, was attacked by two thugs Wednesday night as he was making his rounds at 12 o'clock. After a hard fight, he managed to break from the men, and reaching his revolver, shot one of the ruffians in the wrist. Schroader then telephoned to Superintendent Stine, who soon had the police on the trail. The men were captured, but the authorities refused to make their names public.

Survivors of the Twenty-fourth and Twenty-eighth regiments, New Jersey Volunteers, have started a move for the erection of a monument at Fredericksburg, Va., in memory of their comrades who lost their lives in the charge against Mary's Heights December 13, 1862, by General Kimball's brigade, to which those two regiments were attached. Two hundred of the volunteers of the Twenty-fourth went from Bridgeton, 200 were from Salem, and 100 from Pennsgrove and vicinity. At the meeting of the Twenty-fourth Regiment survivors in Millville next Tuesday, the question will probably be finally decided upon.

N. Y AMUSEMENTS.

What New York thinks of Douglas Fairbanks, in 'The Cub," Thompson Buchanan's laugh-creating satire on the Kentucky feudists, is indicated by these extracts from the Metropolitan press:

"'The Cub' is amusing and also novel."—Allan Dale in the American.

"Success. * * *Witty and brilliant."—Arthur Warren, Tribune.

"An uproarious piece of foolery."—World.

"One of the wittiest of plays."—Adolph Klauber, Times.

"Out of the ordinary."—Press.

"A mirth-provoker."—Herald.

"It is a masterpiece."—Sun.

"Entirely new and always interesting."—Journal of Commerce.

"Lots of fun and go—a breezy evening's entertainment." — Acton Davies, Evening Sun.

"The laughs surely spelled Success,"—Evening Journal.

"A triple triumph for play, playwright and star."—Evening Telegram.

"Wildly hilarious." — Evening Mail.

"'The Cub' gives Fairbanks his fling."—Carles Darnton, Evening World.

The great dramatic event of the entire season thus far, is "The Concert," which David Belasco produces in all its brilliant perfection at the Belasco Theatre. Belasco first-night audiences are always fashionable and distinguished, and the one which assembled to receive Mr. Belasco's first new offering of the season was particularly so, inasmuch as it numbered almost every notable pianist in America, each on the quivive to discover if possible what particular one of their fascinating and temperamental fraternity had been used as the model for Gabor Arany, the hero of the comedy, a world-famous virtuoso, and one of the most erratic and captivating geniuses that ever tore a piano to tatters. The tumultuous ovation at the end of the second act and the demonstrations which greeted David Belasco's appearance after a score of curtain calls, has established "The Concert" as one of the greatest of the many artistic triumphs that may be credited to the genius of this distinguished draamtist-manager.

COURT RULES MRS. MARTIN IS SANE ENOUGH.

Declaring Mrs. Caroline B. Martin sane, "within the meaning of the statute," Judge Jay Ten Eyck, yesterday morning ordered her held for trial on the charge of murdering her daughter, Mrs. Ocey W. M. Snead, in East Orange, a little more than a year ago.

The trial is on the calendar for January 9 next, this date having been set during the course of the hearing as to Mrs. Martin's sanity. Jointly indicted with her is Mrs. Mary W. Snead, her sister, and mother-in-law as well as aunt of the dead Ocey Snead.

"I find Mrs. Martin," declared the judge in announcing his decision, "to be competent to advise counsel and assist in the preparation of a defense."

Because of the length of time consumed in considering the testimony and because of the extent of his reasons, Judge Ten Eyck put his conclusions in writing, which he ordered to be filed with the county clerk.

SMASHES HIGH FLIGHT RECORD IN FRANCE.

Pau, France, Dec. 10.—Ascending from the aviation field here yesterday, M. Legagneux broke the world's altitude record rising to a height of 10,499 feet. The Frenchman landed half frozen after a remarkable plane downward. He used a Bleriot monoplane.

The previous official height record was made by Ralph Johnstone, who during the recent meet at Belmont Park soared 9,714 feet in the air. Later Johnstone was killed at Denver At Philadelphia on November 23 J. Armstrong Drexel made a remarkably high flight and claimed a world's record. When this was disputed Drexel requested the officials of the weather bureau to examine his barograph. They did so and credited him with an altitude of 9,-970 feet. These figures, however, have not been officially accepted by the Aero Club of America.

WATERWAYS BILL.

Carries $31,000,000 Appropriation, Some for New Jersey.

Washington, Dec. 10.—The river and harbor bill, carrying authorized expenditures of more than $31,000,-000, was reported to the house yesterday. It will be taken up for consideration and probably passed today Although there have been reports from time to time that the measure would be vetoed by President Taft, members of the House express no doubt that it will be approved. New Jersey projects are provided for as follows:

Raritan Bay, $20,000; Passiac River, $5,000; Woodbridge Creek, $3,-000; Keyport Harbor and connecting waters, $30,500; Shrewsbury River, $10,000; Cooper Creek, $5,000; Mantua Creek, $6,000; Raccoon Creek, $5,000; Salem River, $10,000; Alloway Creek, $5,000; Tuckerton Creek, $23,000.

The sum of $5,500,000 was made available for the improvement of the Mississippi River. More than $5,-000,000 is authorized for improvements along the Ohio River.

TWO 1804 DOLLARS FOUND.

Two missing 1804 silver dollars have been located in the possession of Miss Mabel Smith, executrix of the estate of John C. Comfort, for many years a leading patent attorney, who died two weeks ago at his home south of Shiremanstown, Pa. Both are declared to be genuine.

There were only four others of these coins known to be in existence, for although they were part of a large mintage, all the available ones were sent abroad in payment of a foreign claim, and the ship that bore them was wrecked and sunk at sea. The four authenticated remaining dollars of that coinage, prior to this discovery of two, have commanded fabulous prices.

These two rare treasures were brought to Carlisle Thursday by Caleb S. Brinton, a prominent Carlisle attorney, and locked in the vaults of a local bank.

The philadelphia mint officials will be conferred with, and because of the preservation of the much-sought-for dollars it is certain that no difficulty will be experienced in establishing their authenticity.

Real Generosity.

Old Gent—Have you a vanishing ink that disappears quickly.

Clerk—Yes, sir. Going to make sure of no breach of promise suit?

Old Gent—Oh, no, going to give my daughter a check for $100,000 as a wedding prsent.—Boston Transcript.

Japs Not so Many.

Mother—The Japanese are a wonderful people, Willie; the dentists can pull out their teeth with their fingers.

Willie—That's nothing. I've seen grandma pull out hers with her fingers lots of times.

ATTRACTIVE APRON DESIGN.

This Very Appropriate Present For a Bride May Be Worked Out In Many Different Stitches.

A most appropriate gift, into which a great amount of personality may be worked, is the pretty heart shaped apron here illustrated.

One-half of the work is also shown in order to illustrate more clearly for the needlewoman who wishes to copy this pattern. The pocket is on one side only, although you can give double the room if you wish by repeating it on the other side.

It is advisable to use fine handkerchief linen for the gift. It cannot be too good in quality, and as the material comes double width there is very little required for the apron pockets and strings.

You will do well to use a soft mercerized cotton for working the flowers. Hemstitch for the stem, and, even though the leaves are not suggested for this work, half solid and half seed stitch—which, you know, is fine backstitching in parallel lines—is effective.

On fine linen the roses can be worked in outline on the plain petals, the turned over edges being solid and giving a solid effect that is lovely on the linen. Work the oval centers solid and use French knots at the end of the stamens.

A padding of a chain stitch before you buttonhole each scallop will give a fine, durable edge. Then you will work the pocket separately and, when finished, buttonhole on with fine stitches.

The strings can be of fine mull about three inches wide, or you might attach swiss beading through which white ribbon can be run, allowing enough at each end for ties.

Don't you think that your fortunate friend will appreciate the whole thing? For sewing or for chafing dish parties or just for the pretty afternoon apron this pattern is most attractive.

Laundering Frills.

Before putting in the laundry the one side plaited frills and frilled collars, which are so pretty and popular and yet so hard to "do up," run a row of basting stitches about an inch from the outer edge. That will hold the plaits in position while washing and will save time and trouble later in froning. This is especially true if you are not the proud possessor of a patent plaiting iron.

These frills, by the way, should when possible be made saparate from the blouse and buttoned, hooked or pinned on, so that they do not have to go so often to the tub. They really do not get dirty so quickly as the more exposed parts of the blouse, and they are a great nuisance usually to wash and iron, even with the precaution mentioned. If you buy a ready made blouse with frills stitched on it is an easy matter to rip them off and supply buttons and buttonholes.

TRIMMED WITH WIDE BRAID.

Braid trimmings are exceptionally wide, for eight inches across the front of a garment is not an unusual measurement. Of course these wide braids are expensive, ranging from $4 to $5 for a single yard.

This smart velvet suit is effectively trimmed with wide braid in panel style. Uncut velvet in a pepper and salt effect is combined with plain black panne velvet with extremely smart result. Cord ornaments and deep fringe complete the richness of this clever little costume.

BARTER AND EXCHANGE

By JANE LEE

[Copyrighted, 1908, by F. C. Eastment.]

The evening paper contained very little news. Evening papers were getting stupid and dry—at least so thought Ethel Yorke as she turned over one page after the other in hopes of finding an item of some interest.

Aimlessly her glance wandered from one sheet to another, and her attention was finally attracted to the "exchange" column. Only one ad. seemed to interest her. She read it to the end, mused to herself, "I wonder," then read it again aloud to herself to see if it sounded the least bit plausible.

"Will exchange a first class typewriter in A1 condition for genuine antiques. Fakirs need not apply. J. B. G., Box 411."

"Antiques!" commented Ethel to herself. "Well, we're strong on antiques—have everything from the human to still life, from dear old Aunt Cornelia to the pen used in signing the Declaration of Independence. Then, again, Aunt Cornelia is worth more than a secondhand typewriter, and the pen is probably not worth the bell on the old machine. Let me think."

Aunt Cornelia appeared at the doorway as if in answer to the suggestion.

"Whom are you talking to, Ethel?" she asked as she glanced around the apparently empty room. "It seems to be a very one sided conversation, for I hear only your own voice," she added.

"Auntie, dear, I am conversing with a very bright young person of my acquaintance—none other than yours truly, Ethel Yorke," said Ethel, with a sweeping bow. "Auntie, I want a typewriter, and"—

"I know you do, dearie, but talking to yourself won't get one."

"Auntie, I'm not fooling. I want a typewriter, and I'm going to get one. Behold!" said Ethel as she presented Aunt Cornelia with the ad. to read. The old lady read it carefully, glanced at Ethel, then said:

"Well, dearie, there is the old melodeon. That is a true antique. Your Grandfather Parker gave that to your grandmother for a wedding present. It is all carved by hand and inlaid with teakwood."

Aunt Cornelia sighed as she went on. "I suppose if you want to learn to be a stenographer and go out in the workaday world you must have a typewriter on which to learn, and I guess you had better offer the dear old melodeon in exchange."

The ad. was duly answered, and within forty-eight hours a prompt reply was received saying that the owner of the typewriter would call that evening to inspect the so called antique.

Ethel answered the doorbell of the little apartment that evening, for the household boasted of no maid since the loss of their little fortune. A tall, smartly dressed man entered and was ushered into the sitting room, followed by Ethel.

"Are you the young lady who wants a typewriter?" he asked as he took in the graceful lines of her well rounded figure, her mass of red brown hair and the even contour of her beautiful face.

"Yes," she replied as she offered him a chair. "I want to become an expert typist, and I was attracted by your ad. Here is the melodeon, if you want to look it over," and she walked across the room and lighted another gas jet to exhibit her heirloom to better advantage. The man followed in silence.

"It's a really, truly antique," said Ethel. "I'm not a fakir such as you suggest in your ad."

The young man walked up to the beautiful old melodeon, a priceless treasure to one who knew its value. For the moment he seemed lost in his admiration of the delicate workmanship, the beautifully tinted woods, and he sat down before it, dreaming. The girl looked at the man as if upon the figure in a picture. The lights fell upon him as he sat before the instrument, and she wondered why he did not speak. Maybe, after all, the old thing was worth nothing.

Howard Philips, man of leisure and collector of antiques, turned to his companion, hardly knowing which he admired most, the inanimate wooden treasure or the beautiful girl.

"If acceptable to you, Miss Yorke, I will take the melodeon, giving you in exchange the typewriter and a bonus of $50," he finally said. "The instrument is a beauty and a very rare specimen," he added.

The final arrangements were completed, and the next day found Ethel in possession of a typewriter and Philips with the melodeon. Philips went on with his search for antiques, but somehow he felt that the greatest treasure on which his eyes had rested in months—aye, even years—was the girl whose face seemed to haunt his dreams.

A terrific snow and hail storm kept him indoors some weeks after the purchase, and Philips sat down before the instrument to see what sort of music it would produce. His fingers ran over the keys, but no sound came forth. He peddled with greater force, yet silence was his only reward.

Something was wrong within, and his deft fingers went to work in the mechanism, and after several minutes' search he was rewarded by finding a package pressed against the keys.

The package was apparently a wad of old papers; but, with the true instinct of the collector, Philips began to undo the yards and yards of twine about the long bundle. He was speechless. Before him lay a pile of bills, money that was not his by any other right than possession. The girl's money!

He counted it carefully twice—$1,300. He must find the girl and return it. Here was the longed for excuse to see her again.

The storm had somewhat abated, and in a few minutes he started to the little apartment in search of the girl. He was informed that the Yorkes had moved out three weeks ago. Where? Nobody knew! The janitor thought they had moved to a smaller flat in Harlem.

Now that he could not find the girl Philips realized the folly of not having kept track of her. Perhaps it had been love at first sight. Indeed, as he thought about it seriously he knew that he was very much in love. But how could he tell her so if he could not find her?

A visit to the postoffice left him none the wiser. They furnished no addresses. He drifted home to his open fire and the evening paper. He sat in the twilight gazing in the embers, and it seemed that every flame carried with it a shadow of the girl.

He read the advertisements from force of habit and was about to throw the paper down and refill his pipe when his eye caught this ad.:

"Young lady will give French lessons in exchange for lessons on the typewriter. Apply after 6. E. T. Y., 2 Broadway."

Philips sat up a bit straighter in his armchair. Could it be she? At least it was worth finding out.

At 8 o'clock that evening Philips rang the bell of the Harlem flat, to be admitted and made welcome by Ethel.

"You see, Miss Yorke, I am here again," he said as he turned to the girl. She seemed more lovely than ever. "I have been trying to find you for a long time, but you had run away from your old home, and I only traced you by the exchange column. The fact is—well—er—how would you consider me as a teacher?"

Ethel's eyes danced. "You see, Mr. Philips, I tried so hard to pick it up, but could not, so I thought of your idea of exchange and put that ad. in the paper," she explained. "I did not dream you taught typing."

"To be honest, I do not. But I have something here—something I found in the old melodeon that will buy hundreds of lessons." And he handed her the precious roll of bills.

A cry of joy brought Aunt Cornelia to the room, and a careful inspection of the money revived memories of a queer maiden aunt who did not believe in savings banks.

Of course Philips had to remain and discuss the wonderful find, and this made him one of the tiny circle, so that the next ad. inserted by either appeared under the column headed "Marriages."

The Diamond.

Writing on "The Romance of the Diamond" in the North American Review," Sir William Crookes refers to the theory advanced by some scientists that the diamond is a gift from heaven conveyed to earth in meteoric showers, and he confesses that the theory is not without support. His description of the Kimberley diamond mines is interesting. The writer says:

"Many circumstances point to the conclusion that the diamond of the chemist and the diamond of the mine are strangely akin as to origin. It is evident that the diamond has not been formed in situ in the blue ground where it is found. The genesis must have taken place at vast depths under enormous pressure. The explosion of large diamonds on coming to the surface shows extreme tension. More diamonds are found in fragments and splinters than in perfect crystals, and it is noteworthy that, although these splinters and fragments must be derived from the breaking up of a large crystal, yet in only one instance have pieces been found which could be fitted together, and these occurred at different levels. Does not this fact point to the conclusion that the blue ground is not their true matrix? Nature does not make fragments of crystals. As the edges of the crystals are still sharp and unabraded, the locus of formation cannot have been very distant from the present sites. There were probably many sites of crystallization differing in place and time or we should not see such distinctive characters in the gems from different mines nor indeed in diamonds from different parts of the same mine."

Inappropriate Songs.

"Our Sunday school superintendent once gave a lecture on inappropriate songs," says a musical director of an uptown church, "in which he told of visiting the primary room to find the infants lustily singing:

"My latest sun is sinking fast.
My race is nearly run.

"And our presiding elder used to tell, with great glee, of a bishop who at a general conference retired with his committee to the anteroom to finish an important report, a song service to fill the gap. As the returning clergymen filed down the main aisle, headed by the bishop, the chorus came out on:

"See the mighty hosts advancing.
Satan leading on.

"But the most amusing incident that really came under my own observation was while assisting in a revival service in a small western town. The evangelist seemed to find in a very successful doctor of that place a subject for special and unusual effort. One evening, while he was earnestly exhorting with the medical gentleman to come to the altar, an enthusiastic sister began singing:

"The great physician now is near.

"A smile ran through the audience, the doctor's eyes twinkled, and the divine himself with difficulty maintained a straight face. It is needless to add that there was no conversion that night."—Buffalo Times.

Her Birthday Violets

By NELL SPEED

[Copyrighted, 1908, by Jessie Morgan.]

Naturally the new boarder had been seated beside the landlady's favorite, Miss Imogene Goldberg. Mrs. De Lancey firmly believed that Miss Goldberg's high blond pompadour and rhinestone dog collar lent eclat to her establishment.

But, oddly enough, Jane Williams, whose hair was parted demurely in the middle and who wore her grandmother's old fashioned locket under her plain pongee shirt waist, realized that the fine gray eyes of the new boarder were looking her way frequently and intently.

She tried to analyze her feelings with the salad, and when the coffee—such thick yet spiritless coffee—was served she decided that it was embarrassment and not a memory which stirred her whenever the gray eyes glanced her way.

Still at the conclusion of the meal she climbed three uncompromising flights of poorly carpeted stairs to her hall room and drew from her trunk her small but treasured box of photographs.

There they were; the father who had died the year of her graduation, the mother who had left her alone to fight the world only twelve months before, a couple of aunts who had forgotten her in the needs and pleasures of their own children, several teachers and three girls in her class at the high school.

But there was no picture with masculine eyes that could possibly have resembled the gray ones which had watched her gravely across the table in the dingy dining room.

"I am getting moody," she said to herself as she prepared for bed. "I must turn over a new leaf. Tomorrow is my birthday. I can't afford to turn sour and old maidish at twenty-one. When I go back to the office on Monday morning I'll be more pleasant and make friends with the other girls. I've been living too much in dreams of the past."

Yet when she fell asleep it was the dream again of the past. It was her birthday, the first party in celebration of that day which she could remember with any sort of distinctness.

She was dressed in pink tulle all spattered with paper stars, and there were pink candles on the birthday cake. No one knew why an ordinarily well behaved and unmischievous child should do such a thing, but she suddenly decided to steal into the dining room and light the birthday cake before the "party came in."

The match sputtered and jumped. She tried to climb quickly from the chair, but the tiny flame was quicker still. In a flash the pretty pink tarlatan blazed up far above the candles, and then she forgot everything in her fright until she felt some one rolling her over and over on the carpet and battering her with his coat, and that had been Willie, the cavalier of her wee girlhood.

She remembered how her mother kissed Willie and cried over him, and he had "poohpoohed" with very red face and shuffling feet. Their adventure was handed down as one of the traditions of the town, but when she was twelve Willie went away to live with his Grandfather Grey in the far west.

Later they had gone to Mexico, and Jane had lost track of them, although never forgetting in her own hard struggle for a livelihood.

And Willie had big gray eyes, just like those of the new boarder. She woke with a start. Now she knew why this man had attracted her attention. Of course the world was full of men with gray eyes. There were not colors enough to go around. Some must be duplicated, and it was very silly of her to think about Willie any more. Doubtless he was married even now to some dusky senorita whose father owned valuable silver mines.

So she turned over and fell asleep again, not to awaken until some one tapped at her door and the maid, with new respect in her bearing, entered, carrying a huge purple box.

"This here package's for you, Miss Williams," she said, but holding it as if loath to yield it to its rightful owner. "An' bein' as it's Sunday mornin' an' Miss De Lancey gone to church, I'll bring you a cup of coffee an' some toast up here."

For all the world loves a lover. And are not violets and lovers synonymous?

Jane sat up in bed and reached for the box.

"Never mind about the coffee. I've overslept, but I'll be down in a few minutes."

She was undoing the box with trembling fingers, and the maid, all unnoticed, lingered curiously. Out came a great bunch of California violets done up in the most approved fashion—purple foil, cord, tassel and all.

"For me? Impossible! And there is no card."

She turned to the lid of the box.

"Gabrielle."

The florist around the corner!

Oh, it had been a cruel mistake. No one in the great city knew it was her birthday, and none would care if they knew.

"Now, Jane Williams," she said as sternly as was possible with a mouth half full of hairpins, "right after breakfast you'll take that box back. It belongs to some other Miss Williams."

And it went back, the excited girl rushing right past the new boarder in her haste—and, yes, in her tiny heart an ache that the flowers were not meant for her.

"Gabrielle" spoke a most impossible dialect, and he did his little worst to make Jane understand that there had been no mistake. But Jane firmly refused to carry the flowers back with her, and, just to convince herself that she was satisfied with what she had done, she walked half an hour in the park, returning to find the box standing on her shabby bureau. Again she opened it, and this time an engraved card met her gaze. "Mr. Frederick W. Grey," and beneath was the pencilled legend: "Birthday wishes, and may I see you soon? I am waiting in the parlor now if you care to come down."

"Frederick W. Grey?"

That must be the red headed assistant bookkeeper who was "Freddy" to every one in the office save herself. She had never heard his last name. Of course she would see him and thank him, though she could not imagine how he had known about her birthday.

Tucking the lovely flowers into her belt and giving a few deft touches to tie and hair, she tripped down to the parlor.

But only the new boarder, he of the fine gray eyes, was there to greet her, and he certainly stood at attention as if waiting for her.

She held the card in her hand and looked about inquiringly.

"Jane—little Jane Williams—don't you know me?" demanded the new boarder.

Then suddenly something new and strange pulled at Jane's heartstrings and at memories long dead. Something new and wonderful bounded through her veins.

"Willie—little Willie," she almost sobbed. "Oh, if you'd tied the flowers with pink tarlatan I would have remembered!"

It took him so long to tell her all about it—of his wandering with his eccentric old grandfather from mining camp to mining camp, from Mexico to Peru and Chile, of fortune made and lost and found again and of how the grandfather, growing more and more bitter against the recreant husband of his only daughter, had insisted that the grandson have his name changed by the law from that of his father's family to his mother's.

Then followed the story of how he had gone back to the old town directly his grandfather had departed on the last long journey; how no one seemed to know where she had gone, and how he had finally traced her to Mrs. De Lancey's and had come there unannounced to make sure that he would be welcome—that she had not changed—and had not found some one else.

"Oh, Willie!" she sighed contentedly from a comfortable resting place on his shoulder. "Just as if there had ever been any one else since I lit the birthday candles!"

They had pre-empted the tawdry cozy corner, and by that time Mrs. De Lancey had come back from church, donned her pink silk negligee and was staring at them accusingly from the center of the ugly red and green parlor.

But when you have fine gray eyes you generally have the courage to announce your intentions, and Frederick William Grey did it so effectively that Mrs. De Lancey wiped her tears on the flowing sleeve of her pink negligee and shook hands with them both; then, turning her back on the cozy corner, for once put to its legitimate use, she departed, murmuring: "Well, you never can tell what sort of girl will land a man. And her hair so plain and her face so pale too!"

When One Spends Money.

One would think that money would be saved in prosperous times when there is plenty of it about. But no; that is not the time when it is saved. It is then that it is spent. Everybody spends it—governments, railroads, corporations, capitalists, housekeepers, house builders, collectors. People expand their wants in such times and satisfy some of them, and then is when it is most of all impossible to live on anything a year. But after all the money has been spent a few times over and has come to be scarce and borrowing has come to be a serious matter and folks have much less to spend and no expectations then everybody groans and begins to save, not only trying desperately to squeeze back inside of the bounds of income, but to pay back what was spent in expectation of a time when saving would have become convenient. To most of us that time never comes. And yet there are things for which we spend more than we can afford, that really do justify our expenditures, so that after the money has been spent and we are pinched for the lack of it we would still rather have what it bought than have the money back.—Appleton's.

Napoleon at Dinner.

Napoleon was no epicure. He usually drank nothing but diluted chambertin and was no judge of wine. He liked plain dinners—boiled or roast chicken, mutton chops, grilled neck of mutton, haricot beans or lentils. His table manners were not very refined. He would use his finger in lieu of fork or spoon and would dip his bread in the sauce, the dish being then passed around to guests, who had to dispense with squeamishness. The bread had to be particularly good. He ate fast, quitting the table in twelve minutes and leaving Josephine and the company to take their time. When he dined alone he commonly took only eight or ten minutes. Indigestion was the natural consequence of this speed, and he had sometimes to stretch himself at full length on the carpet till the pain abated. He detested physic and professed to disbelieve in it, a subject of playful discussion with his doctors. Constant never knew him to be obliged to keep his bed a whole day. He was very sensitive to cold and had fires and warm beds all the year.

WILSON WON'T REPLY TO SMITH'S ATTACK

The statement of Governor-elect Woodrow Wilson that he is against James Smith, Jr., for United States Senator from New Jersey because the Newark editor is "not the people's choice," and that it is the duty of every Democratic legislator to vote for James E. Martine, who was indorsed at the primaries, has started a political fight that promises to split the Democratic party in the State. While Martine's friends credit him with twenty-four pledged votes of the fifty held by the Democrats in joint Assembly, Smith claims forty-seven.

How deeply ex-Senator Smith feels the Governor-elect's thrust was revealed yesterday when he issued a reply calling Dr. Wilson's statement "an unwarranted attempt to coerce the Legislature" and a "striking evidence of his aptitude in the art of foul play." James R. Nugent, Democratic State Chairman, declared Dr. Wilson' act ill-advised, and said that it "threatens the sacrifice of many important party reforms." And City Collector Robert Davis, Democratic leader of Hudson county, came out openly for Smith, asserting that he will "win easily."

When Governor-elect Wilson was asked at his home in Princeton last night if he had anything to say regarding the statement made by Mr. Smith he said:

"I have read Mr. Smith's statement. No comment is unnecessary."

MRS. PHILLIP TUNISON FOUND DEAD AT MILLSTONE.

Mrs. Phillip Tunison, aged about 80 years, who has a number of relatives in this vicinity, was found dead in her room at the home of Mrs. Sarah T. McDonald, at Millstone, yesterday morning. Mrs. Tunison did not come down to breakfast at the usual hour and Mrs. McDonald investigated, with the result that the woman was found dead.

Heart trouble was the cause. Mrs. Tunison was Catherine Wortman, being the daughter of William Wortman, who was a well known miller at Burnt Mills, Somerset county, for many years. The funeral will be held at the late home, Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

WILLIAMS DISCHARGED AS WITNESS; HELD FOR FELONY

Although Thomas Williams, the negro arrested after the finding of the murdered body of little Marie Smith at Asbury Park on November 13 last, was ordered discharged on his own recognizance by Justice Willard P. Voorhees at New Brunswick, yesterday, on the commitment holding him as a witness, he was held on two charges for illegal voting, which were sprung by Prosecutor J. S. Applegate, Jr., of Monmouth county, and bail fixed at $2,000 for him.

W. Lester Glenney and C. Ames Brooks, of this city, who represent the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, which has taken up the Williams case, were successful in their efforts in having the prisoner discharged on the original commitment and they will now attempt to secure him his freedom.

RACING MECHANIC MUST HAVE NERVE

When an Accident Occurs He Generally Gets the Worst of It.

The essential nature of the work performed by the mechanics of the various racing cars was remarkably emphasized during the grand prize meeting at Savannah. Several cars failed to finish and one was ruled off the course because of inefficient work of the mechanics. Those drivers who succeeded invariably insisted on sharing the credit with the men who rode with them.

A mechanic in a road race is a busy man, even though his name appears more often in the list of casualties than in headlines announcing the prize winners. His first duty is to keep a sharp lookout in the rear, warning his driver regarding the approach of faster cars. He is also supposed to keep track of the condition of three of the tires. He watches the lubrication system and regulates the flow of oil through the pump which he operates. He keeps track of the speedometer and renders a report whenever needed, on the speed attained on various portions of the course. In addition, he hangs to the car—in itself a feat which would require the entire attention of a novice. In an accident, the driver has always a flash of warning. The mechanic usually has none, and for this reason is almost always the worst hurt of the two when something goes to smash.

Once in a while one of them decides that the clip is a bit too fast. An instance occurred at Savannah on the occasion of the E-M-F "30" car's final practice spin. Francis Lundgreen, of Atlanta, who has always ridden with Witt, descended after a lap at faster than a mile a minute clip, including the three slow-down turns, and offered a candid resignation.

"Frank," said he to Witt, "you're a nice fellow and a good driver. I'd as soon go over the bank with you as anybody I know. Your car is a bird; I don't blame you for thinking a lot of her. But, Frank, I don't want to ride with you in that race. You're going too fast. Down Ferguson avenue just now your speedometer for six miles stuck right between 80 and 82. You took all those S turns back there at 65 or faster. When you passed that 40-horsepower car back there I sprained my wrist hanging one. I'm through."

It is a cardinal principle of all racing never to urge a man who is reluctant to compete, and Francis' resignation was duly accepted. So, in the Tiedeman Trophy event, in which the E-M-F "30" led all its American rivals home at a speed of 55.28 for the 190.3 miles, a substitute rode in Francis' place, while Francis cheered valiantly from the E-M-F pit and stood ready with a gasoline can, which was never needed.

GOD BLESS THEM, SAYS CLERGYMAN

Rev. Geogre A. Warner is With the Good Fellows Heart and Soul.

Now it might be considered highly disrespectful to refer to a man of the cloth as the 'candy kid,' but Good Fellow says he just can't help it. Rev. George A. Warner is 'all to the mustard,' in his opinion, when it comes to a big heart placed in the right place. When Good Fellow's letter was first published last year, he was the first to respond. That was no surprise; neither was it a surprise to find in Good Fellow's mail this morning the following letter which we ask the writer's pardom for making public without permission:

Holy Cross Rectory,
"Plainfield, N. J.,
Plainfield, N. J., Dec. 13, 1910

Editor, The Daily Press:—

I was glad when I opened my mail last night to see that Good Fellow is in evidence again this Christmas. There is much ground that the churches cannot cover and that children would fare but poorly or not at all in the Christmas feast were it not for Good Fellow and his corps of other red blooded, and enthusiastic helpers. It was my good pleasure to visit some houses last year where Good Fellow had been. The joy and good cheer which he had brought was still in evidence, so that I said then and do now—God bless Good Fellow and all of his kind in the work they do in blessing the little ones so beautifully on the Christ child's birthday."

"G. A. Warner."

In the same mail was an application from another who joins the ranks of the Good Fellow by promising to make twenty-five poor little tots happy on Christmas morning. One good little girl promises to take care of a less fortunate little girl. And so it goes. Last Christmas, the Good Fellows made more than 500 poor little ones joyous on Christmas day. What are they going to do this year? Watch this paper each day and you'll see!

MRS. JOS. KAMPMAN'S FUNERAL TOMORROW

The funeral service of Mrs. Annie K. Kampman, widow of Joseph Kampman, who died at her home on Madison avenue, Sunday, will be held at the late home tomorrow and will be private. Rev. John Sheridan Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, of which Mrs. Kampman was a member, will officiate and the burial will be in the family plot at a Bethlehem, Pa., cemetery.

Mrs. Kampman was born at Waterloo, N. Y., and after her marriage removed to Boston, where Mr. Kampman had offices at treasurer of several of the Gould railroads. After Mr. Kampman's death about twenty years ago, Mrs. Kampman removed to this city.

Mrs. Kampman was a woman of exceptional sweetness of character and was beloved by all who enjoyed her acquaintance. Mrs. Kampman is survived by two daughters, Miss Carol Kampman, of this city, Mrs Harold Marshall Pitman, of Chicago; also a sister, Mrs. George L. Yost, of California and a brother, Harry B. Salkeld, of this city.

Detcetive-Sergeant and Mrs. John J. Flynn, of Wets Front street, are the parents of a young son, born to them Sunday night.

TO THE "GOOD FELLOWS" OF PLAINFIELD

TO THE GOOD FELLOWS OF PLAINFIELD:

Just about this time last year I told you my story. You listened to it—you did more—you followed its spirit out in a bang-up style. I'm not claiming any credit for my story; I'm claiming credit for knowing that there are many Good Fellows in this fine old town of ours—royal chaps who don't do much preaching but when it comes to doing a good turn, well, they're there with the goods. This is no sermon that I'm handing you, it's a heart-to-heart talk with men with red blood in their veins, and here it is off last year's reel:

Last Christmas and New Year's eve you and I went out for a good time and spent from $10 to $200. Last Christmas morning hundreds of children awoke to an empty stocking—the bitter pain of disappointment that Santa Claus had forgotten them. Perhaps it wasn't our fault. We had provided for our own; we had also reflected in a passing way on those less fortunate than our own, but they seemed far off and we didn't know where to find them. Perhaps in the hundred and one things we had to do some of us didn't think of that heart sorrow of the child over the empty stocking.

Now, old man, here's a chance. I have tried for the last five years and ask you to consider it. Just send your name and address to The Daily Press—address Santa Claus—state about how many children you are willing to protect against grief over that empty stocking, inclose a two-cent stamp and you will be furnished with the names, addresses, sex, and age of that many children. It is then up to you, you do the rest. Select your won present, spend 50 cents or $50, and send or take your gifts to those children on Christmas eve. You pay not a cent more than you want to pay—every cent goes just where you want it to go. You gain neither notoriety nor advertising; you deal with no organization; no record will be kept; your letter will be returned to you with its answer. The whole plan is just as anonymous as old Santa Claus himself.

This is not a newspaper scheme. The Daily Press was asked to aid in reaching the good fellow by publishing this suggestion and to receive your communication in order that you may be assured of good faith and to preserve the anonymous character of this work. The identity of the writer of this appeal will not be disclosed. He assumes the responsibility of finding the children and sending you their names and guarantees that whatever you bestow will be deserved.

Neither you nor I get anything out of this, except the feeling that you have saved some child from sorrow on Christmas morning. If that is not enough for you then you have wasted time in reading this—it is not intended for you, but for the good fellows of Plainfield.

Perhaps a twenty-five cent doll or a ten cent tin toy wouldn't mean much to the children you know, but to the child who would find them in the otherwise empty stocking they mean much—the difference between utter disappointment and the joy that Santa Claus did not forget them. Here is where you and I get in. The charitable organizations attend to the bread and meat; the clothes; the necessaries; you and the rest of the good fellows furnish the toys, the nuts, the candies; the child's real Christmas.

GOOD FELLOW.

The Daily Press, one year ago, investigated the "good fellow" who wrote the above, looked him in the eye and put its O. K. on the plan. The cold blooded, blase representative who saw him wrote: "He made me feel, personally, that it would be really worth while in satisfaction to carry a little happiness to some children who otherwise wouldn't get any on Christmas eve." "Good Fellow" is not a professional philanthropist, he takes a drink, and even goes out at night with the boys for a mild good time—but he has taken care of from fifteen to twenty children a year in Plainfield. He said that a year ago last Christmas day he wished he had curtailed his holiday joy-making with the good fellows even more than he did, so that he might have had more money to gladden childish hearts.

The Worthy Grand Master of the lodge of Good Fellows has laid his plans for securing names through the Charity Organization Society.

This is how you can join the lodge of Good Fellows. Write a letter to "Santa Claus," care of The Daily Press, something like this:

I live at No.———— Street. I will be Santa Claus to 6 children.
John Jones.

The letter will go to Santa Claus. He will indorse on your letter the names and addresses of six children. That letter will be remailed to you. Then you get busy. That's all. Come on in, good fellows.

SATAN ON THE MARCH

A Personality Who Knows no Mercy, a Monarch Without Soul.

HE STARTS ON THE WIND.

Invades the Home, the Factory, Store and Church—Sleepless, Never Tires—Luther's Vision.

In his sermon on Sunday evening Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, took for his text Job. 1-7, "And the Lord said unto Satan, 'Whence comest thou.'" Pastor Maguire drew a picture of God upon His throne listening to the reports of his angels whom he had sent to the ends of space to note the progress of the worlds of the firmament, and among those to report last was Satan who answered saying: "From going to and fro in the earth and from walking up and down in it."

"This report of the devil was characteristic of him then as it would be today,' said Mr. Maguire. "He is jumping from place to place, from home to home, from factory to factory and from store to store as well as from church to church seeking out those whom he thinks will fall for his sophistries. He is a monarch who rules somewhere, notwithstanding the belief of those who say there is no such thing as a devil. If there is no such a personality how is his work carried on?

"He goes on his march, as St. Paul says, on the wind of which he is the prince. He works his way in the conditions of the atmosphere. He breathes on the winds and they become the whirlwinds of death and destruction. There would be no need of cemeteries if it were not for Satan. There would have been no death. He contaminates everything. The church is locked six days in the week and the saloon is doing a good business for the devil.

"Perhaps he is most insidious in the domestic circle—setting the husband against his wife and the wife against the husband until he has them seeking the divorce courts. He tempts the man by showing him a butterfly of a woman and drawing invidious comparisons between his wife and the butterfly. To get the wife started against her husband the devil tells her that the husband is neglecting her and that he thinks more of his own comforts than of hers. Oh, he is subtle and quick to take advantage of the weak. I tell you that one of the greatest causes for divorces today is that we are raising an army of girls who neither know how to cook or sew. A man's heart is readily reached through his stomach. But the woman too often lets the devil stir the soup, while she is gadding about at her club or playing cards. Dr. Lanham, the world's greatest student of economics affecting the home says this and I believe he is right.

"The young man is led away by the devil whispering to him that he ought not to be tied to his mother's apron strings. But let me tell you, young man, that you are never more noble looking than when you are standing beside your mother, wiping the dinner dishes. It is better that you be thus tied than to be coiled in the devil's whip. Here is another way the devil works. In the factory he goes to the proprietor and whispers: 'You are not getting enough out of your capital; you are the owner, your money is invested, why don't you get more for it? Reduce the men's wages, that's the way to do it!' Then he makes his way into the shop where the men are working for a mere nothing and tells them they are not getting enough money for their work. 'Strike,' he says. Then follows terrible times. The factory is put to the torch, families are rendered homeless and destitute and the evil looks on laughs in glee at what he has wrought.

"In the mercantile establishments it is the same. The clerk behind the counter is tempted to pocket his employer's money. He falls and Satan adds another victim. The young woman, envious of the dress and automobile and other possessions of her sister, asks how it is done and learning, adds to the devil's total another destroyed soul who later seeks shelter at one of the Salvation Army homes for herself and child. O, the pity of it. Listen, the time is coming when the rule of gold will give way to the golden rule, but Satan will reap his quota of lost souls until that time comes. Give heed to the voice of the Master as it whispers to you in the solemn watches of the night. Remember that Satan's only mission is to destroy souls, and to create disputations and envelope the world in misery. He has millions of agents who are tireless and never sleep. He works even in church while I am talking to you, but don't let him get Committees to Suggest Seal and Motto—Arrange for Some Good Addresses in the Near Future.

It was decided at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce's directors last night to lease rooms in the Frost building at a monthly rental of $50 and to expend $300 in furnishing them. D. J. Carney, Herbert Schuldenfrei and B. F. Coriell were appointed a committee for the purpose.

Former Judge John Ulrich was elected secretary, his compensation to be fixed by the incoming board. President Babcock, secretary Ulrich and treasurer Laing were named as a committee to submit a design for a corporation seal for the organization and the secretary and Mr. Carney were selected as a committee to suggest a motto.

The secretary and treasurer were instructed to file bonds in $1,000 each and the secretary was ordered to obtain stationary.

After a discussion of annexation and consolidation, reported in another column, former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, a vice-president, was invited to address the chamber on "The New York Clearing House; What It Is and What It Does." He is chairman of that institution. Mr. Saunders, the other vice-president, was asked at the same meeting to speak on "Panama," a subject he has made a study.

CHARITY ORGANIZATION SOCIETY TO MOVE

The Charity Organization Society which has grown to proportions of work necessitating better facilities for its handling, has engaged an office in the Babcock building, from December 15 and will in the future conduct its affairs from that office. The officers will not move into the new office until after Christmas as the holidays are an especially busy time and moving would interfere with projected plans. The old office and building on West Front street which has been the home of the society for so long has been sold to B. F. Tallamy, who will take possession later.

"It has been decided," said Miss Holly this morning, "that a woodyard is not a necessity now and that if it should become necessary in an emergency one could be provided by arrangement with one of the local dealers. It is not generally known, perhaps, that the society is now doing the work which in larger cities is conducted by the Children's Aid and S. P. C. C. societies. The enforcement of the attendance law in the schools and the periodical medical examination of pupils, the application of the probation system and the developement of the playground movement hae increased the opportunities for usefulness of the society. society.

"The Society appears to have established itself in the confidence of the people as an agency which is competent and ready to assist them and the work has developed along lines which demand a centrally located office which will enable us to keep in closer touch with the city officials. Co-operation with the hospital, tuberculosis camp and the health department makes the work more thorough and comprehensive. Over 5,000 visits were made last year by the executive secretaries and friendly visitors, double the number of the preceeding year. But the usefulness of the society must be measured by its resources."

Engagement Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Porter, of West Front street, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marion Porter, to George L. Bartour of New York. The wedding ceremony will take place at the Hotel Astor, New York, on Wednesday evening, December 28, and will be witnessed only by members of the two families. Mr. Barbour is a silk importer. Miss Porter has many acquaintances throughout the city but for several years past has been living in New York.

A New Year's Dance.

Invitations have ben sent out by Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fleming and their daughter, Miss Barbara Fleming, of Park avenue, for a dance to be given on Monday evening, the second of January, at nine o'clock, at the Park Club.

Friendship Council Jr. O. A.M. of New Market Celebrates Twentieth Birthday.

ENTERTAINMENT AND DANCE.

Organizations Home Filled to Capacity with Members and Friends —Has Had a Splendid Growth.

In celebration of the twentieth anniversary of its organization, Friendship Council, No. 81, Jr. O. U. A. M., of New Market, conducted appropriation ceremonies and an entertainment in its hall, last night. The affair was attended by more than 250 members and friends and proved to be one of the most successful observances of the kind ever held in the village. The gathering included several State officials of the order among them State Councilor William B. LaRue, of Bound Brook.

The hall was lavishly but tastefully decorated with flags and bunting. There was also a large electric display bearing the numerals "1890-1910." The decorations were arranged by W. T. Piddington and D. W. Moody and were the cause of much admiring comment.

The council first assembled in regular session at 7 o'clock for the transaction of business after which the anniversary was commenced. The fore part was devoted to an entertainment during which addresses were made by Councilor R. P. F. Von Mindon who was in charge of the ceremonies. State Councilor LaRue, State Councilor's secretary William Miers, of Trenton, William L. Corlell, Friendship's first councilor and several others. About thirty members were presented with past councilor badges by Mr. LaRue. The addresses were interspersed with selections by Naylor's orchestra, of six pieces. Feature numbers in the entertainment were provided by the Elks quartet, of Plainfield, composed of William Tallamy, Harry Blimm, Jack Todd and William Smith. There were also monologues, songs and stories contributed by Tom Muir, of Plainfield, assisted by William H. Pope. All the numbers were well received. At the close of the entertainment refreshments were served and the floor was cleared for dancing. It was kept up until an early hour this morning.

The observance was arranged and in charge of a committee composed of William Van Nuise, chairman, O. E. Meeker, David C. Ward, W. T. Piddington, Jr., J. E. Pipe, and Foster Sofield.

Friendship Council was organized on December 12, 1890, with twenty-seven charter members, of whom twenty are still living, since then it has enjoyed a steady growth, the membership now numbering 158. The council owns Friendship Hall, free and clear and has a very satisfactory financial balance.

The past councilors who received badges were as following:

NORTH PLAINFIED IMP. SOCIETY MEETING

W. DeLa Anderson, president of the North Plainfield Township Improvement Society in a speech before the members last night advocated the direct primaries and said that now that the people had accepted the fact he believed it only right that the society should go on record as favoring it and also that they are opposed to having the result of the last election set aside. Mr. Anderson said that the Improvement Society Company had been formed and first payment on the Texier's Mill property made.

He urged the cutting of extravagance in the county and State management and the building up of the woodland acreage, saying that he for one would gladly furnish land and cottages to desirable people on terms that would enable many desirable people to take advantage of them. He also asked for contributions for a Christmas tree for the children of Wilson Memorial chapel.

Sheriff Mobus reported that it was feasible to have any number of deputies appointed to act as policemen. George Schmidt reported that the request of the society for publication of tax duplicates had been granted and steps had been taken for the establishment of the township lines. Charles Sebring asked for two lights near his mill where an automobile accident had occurred. A resolution relating to Mr. Anderson's suggestion regarding primaries was ordered drawn up for transmission to the Governor, Senators and Assemblymen. The question of taxation will be taken up at the next meeting.

COMMERCE CHAMBER FOR CONSOLIDATION

Directors Applaud Speech of Mr. Saunders and Will Start Campaign.

That the consolidation of Plainfield and North Plainfield should be effected without delay was the argument made by former Mayor William L. Saunders at a meeting of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, last night. The fulfillment of this obligation by the people of the two municipalities for their mutual interests, should be followed, he declared, by action on the part of the Legislature making the borough's territory a part of Union county.

So favorably was his speech received that the directors planned at once to give the chamber's support to the proposition. That there be no further procrastination, it was decided to start the campaign at the next meeting of the body. Mayor Saunders and former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph, whose expressions were published in these columns some days ago, have been invited to speak on the subject at that time.

Mr. Saunders' speech follows:

Eight years ago the problems which confronted us were not as pressing as at present. Political conditions are different, there is more indepedence of thought and a greater disposition to sacrifice personal interest to the public welfare.

I shall not rake up past history, except call attention to the fact that except to call attention to the fact that after the consolidation battle was over and a period of 5 years had elapsed a joint committee, representing the Council of Plainfield and the Council of North Plainfield, passed a resolution recommending the appointment of a commission by the governing bodies, said commission to consist of two citizens of Plainfield and two of North Plainfield, who should have the power to select a fifth member, who should be a citizen of Plainfield. This commission was appointed and instructed to examine into the advantages and disadvantages of consolidation. On May the 6th, 1907, a report was made and signed by every member of the commission, namely, Alexander Gilbert, Floyd T. Woodhull, Mason W. Tyler, Charles W. McCutchen, Elston M. French. The following is the recommendation of this commission:

"The recommendation of the Commission therefore is that your honorable bodies cause to be prepared a bill for shall provide for both consolidation and annexation, to take effect only afte. a majority of the legally authorized voters of both municipaities shall have voted in favor of the same at a regular or special election held for that purpose."

Action was not taken upon this recommenadtion because the time was not opportune from a political point of view. By this I do not mean that it was because the legislature was Republican but because the leader of the majority, Senator Freilinghuysen, was a power in the legislature and had shown a strong disposition to oppose any act which might lead to annexation.

There is now on the statute books of the State a bill known as Assembly Bill No. 155 of the Laws of 1902. The title of this bill is as follows:

"An act to unite and consolidate the municipal corporations known as inhabitants of the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union, and Mayor and Council of the Borough of North Plainfield."

This is a referendum bill, namely, it becomes effective only on approval by the people of both municipalities at a special election.

The bill upon which the election was held in 1902 was known as the annexation bill, namely to provide for a change in county lines only, and after the negative vote cast at that time this annexation bill was repealed.

The condition we are in at present therefore is that in order to provide the proper machinery a new annexation bill should be presented to the legislature.

It has been claimed that a mistake was made eight years ago in voting on the annexation referendum first. Perhaps this criticism is well taken. In any case, my view would be that any future action by the people should be taken first upon the question of consolidation; that is, municipal union, and that the question of change of county line should be acted upon only after the people had decided whether or not they wished to unite these two governments.

It seems reasonable—it is certainly in line with precedent, that a people as closely related as the people of this city and borough, and

At the afternoon session there was a general discussion of various school matters. Dr. W. A. Ackerman, supervising principal of the Somerville schools, spoke for more science in the High School curriculum. He hoped the time would come when the boys and girls coming from the rural districts to Somerville would be taught the science of agriculture, so that they would be better fitted to stay on the farm. Former Prosecutor John F. Reger, a member of the Bridgewater Board of Education, expressed the hope that the school curriculum would not be confined to practical subjects only. County Superintendent H. C. Krebs addressed the meeting on various school topics.

NEWS OF THE WORLD FOR THE BUSY MAN

Stocks closed weak.

The Brooklyn Edison Company announced a plan to share its profits with its employes.

Because of hard times, Wall street brokers will not give the usual Christmas bonuses to clerks and employes.

John Hays Hammond arrived in St. Petersburg to investigate the possibilities of the investment of American capital in Russia.

The mutiny of the marines on the island of Cobras, Rio Janeiro Harbor, ended in the surrender of the mutineers to a force of loyal troops.

All the passengers on the steamship Olympia, which went on the rocks at Bligh Island, Alaska, were taken off and landed at Valdez and Ellemar.

Governor W. R. Stubbs, of Kansas, in a speech in Chicago, assailed judges who fined guilty corporations and free the officers who profit by the lawbreaking.

The returns from the British election up to last night showed a net gain of one seat for the Liberal-Labor coalition; 518 seats have been filled out of 670.

Chief Croker saved Tammany Hall from flames which threatened it, preserving the pictures and records, although the building and the Olympic Theatre were damaged.

Adjutant General Verbeck will be retained in office by Governor Dix, who has asked C. E. Treman to serve as Commissioner of Public Works, and W. C. Osborn to serve as his personal counsel.

On the initiative of the State Department in Washington an international conference for the suppression of the opium, morphine and cocaine traffic will be held at The Hague, in May.

President Taft sent to the Senate the nomination of Edward D. White, of Louisiana, associate justice of the Supreme Court, to be Chief Justice; the nomination was immediately confirmed; a number of other nominations were sent.

The report to the State Department of Thomas C. Dawson, American Minister to Panama, who has been investigating conditions in Nicaragua, will probably result in the recognition of the Estrada government in that country.

The sub-committee of the United States Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections, which investigated charges against Senator Lorimer, voted unanimously to report to the full committee that the charges had not been proved.

Congress.—Senate: The omnibus claims bill, carrying more than $2,000,000, was reported and taken up, but without final action. House: A bill imposing a graduated inheritance tax in the District of Columbia was passed; the pension appropriation measure was reported.

Announcement that conspiracy under the Sherman anti-trust law is a continuing offence, the Supreme Court of the United States held good the indictment in New York in 1909 of Gustave E. Kissel and Thomas B. Harned under this law, as far as the statute of limitation was concerned.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

Miss Della Niven, in Jo. M. Gaites' magnificent production of "Three Twins," has some wonderful "hobble skirt" gowns which she wears during the action of the play She also has some beautiful street "Hobbles." She was met coming out of a theatre the other day, and she caused a general turning of heads. She says there are two varieties of the new "hobble walk," one having a trifle shorter step than the other, the length of the step depending upon whether the skirt of the gown is of the scant or plain variety. If scant or plain the step is more or less mincing. If less scant the step is short, but less mincing. Her shoulder action in particular caused general attention; this, in fact, being always the most noticeable feature of the new walk. What is more this action is not easy to acquire. Miss Niven says: "To be exact, when the right foot goes out, up goes the left shoulder with a circular twist, just a little one. When the left foot is advanced the right shoulder with a circular twist, just a little one. When the left foot is advanced the right shoulder goes up. And there is scarcely any movement of the hips The walk must be sprightly—no tired dragging movement in this. "It is worth while to watch Miss Niven and take lessons from her. In the ordinary strides of our athletic American women the "hobble" gowns look ridiculous. So if you want to look chic instead of absurd in your new "hobble" gown practice diligently the directions for the "hobble" walk as given by Della Niven, and forget all about the kangaroo walk, the Grecian bend, the long gliding step and the athletic slide. "Three Twins" will be the attraction at The Plainfield theatre tonight.

Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. & A. M., will elect officers at the regular communication to be held Tuesday night, December 20.

you napping. His power is limited, God's power being greater, but even so you must get the vision that Luther had and thus make your assurance doubly sure.

"Luther saw in his vision Satan approaching him and trembled at the sight. 'Look,' said the arch fiend, 'here is a book showing your sins. Everyone you have committed in your life. The page is black. How can you hope to square this account? Give up the struggle and follow me.' Then later there appeared to Luther the angel of the Lord who also showed him the book with the account of his sins, but across the page was the legend 'They were all atoned for at Calvary.' Luther was convinced and saved.

"So, I tell you, especially you young people, if you listen to the voice of Satan and follow his advice you are lost. But if you will accept the bread of life with the promises of God, that through His son your souls shall be saved to the uttermost, you will live to bless the day you made the right choice and spend an eternity with your heavenly Father."

voting by a majorrity to become united in one government, should be entitled to go to the legislature and demand that the county lines be changed so as to accommodate these changed conditions. What stronger appeal can be made to a legislature than to ask aid in removing obstacles which affect the health, happiness and prosperity of a people whose interests are at stake? Political expediency should never be allowed to raise barriers against home rule. A county line is a political expedient, an imaginary line only, drawn for the purpose of separating and grouping the people of the State whose interests are mutual. The history of every State shows county line changes. Originally New Jersey was divided into three or four counties only, and there would appear to be no serious reason why the line which is a barrier between Plainfield and North Plainfield should not be changed in the interests of the people who are on the spot.

Why should there be a referendum vote on this question of change of county line? This vote to be reasonable should include everyone in the county from which a section is to be taken. This, of course, would make it out of the question to change a county line. The people of Raritan and Somerville are not likely to give up anything which they onw have because it is going to help somebody in North Plainfield. But why should the people of Raritan and Somerville stand in the way of what affects our local conditions? There is really no reason except selfishness and political expediency. If the people of Plainfield and North Plainfield vote yes on municipal consolidation why should they be expected to pass judgment upon the question of county line change? This is really the function of the legislature.

My suggestion would therefore be that a bill be prepared providing for a change in the county line, taking North Plainfield from Somerset county and putting it into Union, this bill to take effect only after the people affected, namely, Plainfield and North Plainfield, had voted affirmatively on the question of consolidation.

There are several live statutes providing the machinery for joining these two places as for instance.

"An act concerning consolidatated cities and annexed municipalities and townships and portions thereof," page 152 of the Laws of the Session of 1900.

Also Revised Statutes of New Jersey, Volume II, page 2245, where there is an act as to the assumption of collections, etc., of annexed territories to cities. If these laws do not provide sufficient machinery others should be passed. There is nothing difficult about this—the main question being whether the people really want to consolidate or not. If they do let us have complete consolidation.

I should like to hear some reasons against this proposition. It seems useless to spend time and money on an argument in a case so apparent. Plainfield and North Plainfield are not like New York and Brooklyn, they are not like Orange and East Orange and South Orange. The mountains on the north and the railroad on the south confine the borough of North Plainfield to a growth following the railroad and hugging Plainfield as a saddle hugs the back of a horse. The main artery of the city, Front street, is within a stone's throw of the dividing line. The back yards of the Front street properties reach to the brook which separates us. We of North Plainfield cannot patronize North Plainfield shops because many of us are too far away and must follow lines of least resistance. Front street is nearer. We are contributing daily to the prosperity of Plainfield without receiving any return. The shopping district of Plainfield is concentrated and the income to the city treasury is increased because six thousand alien people patronize city industries.

The position of North Plainfield geographically makes our future hopeless for growth and prosperity without consolidation. Some of the finest residential land in New Jersey has lain dormant for almost a generation. It cannot be claimed that this is because we have no sewers. Plainfield property showed substantial growth before the sewers were installed.

In all this matter of sewers, water works, lighting, etc., how much easier it would be, and how much more practical it is for us to act together and not separately. As ex-Mayor Randolph has said, "We should get married first and then put our house in order."

Yours truly,
W. L. SAUNDERS.

Deserted in the Cold.

Deserted at 8 o'clock in the morning, shivering with the cold and partly intoxicated Mary Deremus, of Paterson, was found screaming by Roundsman Higgins and brought to police headquarters for safekeeping. The young woman was at the top of a pair of stairs over the Eastern Bottling Company and was raising such a row that the neighborhood was disturbed. Judge Runyon this morning took a lenient view of the matter believing that Mary had been punished sufficiently and allowed her to go advising her to behave better in the future.

A Soloon Row.

A charge of disorderly conduct, fighting and assault was made in the city court this morning by Christian Glockler against Charles Rau, of New York. The row took place yesterday afternoon in Gloekler's saloon and it is likely that counter charges of assault and battery will be preferred by Rau. The case was put off for a wek by Judge Runyon at the request of counsel for both parties. William G. DeMeza represents Rau and Walter Hetfield is looking after Gloekler's interests.

The recital was given under the direction of the entertainment committee of the Park Club.

AN ORDINANCE to Establish Street Numbers for Parcels of Real Estate in the City of Plainfield.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the several parcels of real estate fronting on the streets, avenues, roads, lanes and alleys of the City of Plainfield shall be numbered and each of said parcels shall be known and designatee by the number or numbers indicated on the official tax maps of said City adopted by resolution of the Common Council February seventh, nineteen hundred and ten, on file with the Collector of Taxes, and entitled as follows: "Block Assessment Maps of the City of Plainfield, Union County, New Jersey, First Ward, 1909," "Block Assessment Maps of the City of Plainfield, Union County, New Jersey, Second Ward, 1909," "Block Assessment Maps of the City of Plainfield, Union County, New Jersey, Third Ward, 1909," "Block Assessment Maps of the City of Plainfield, Union County, New Jersey, Fourth Ward, 1909," all made by F. J. Hubbard, Civil Engineer, and said maps are hereby adopted as the official maps of the City of Plainfield for the purpose of establishing street numbers, and the numbers shown on said maps are hereby established as the proper numbers of said parcels of real estate respectively.

Sec. 2. That the owner or owners of each and every dwelling house or store which now fronts upon any of the public streets, avenues, roads, lanes or alleys of said city on which the proper number is not now placed as hereinafter specified, shall within sixty days after this ordinance goes into effect, cause the proper number of such dwelling house or store to be placed in figures in some substantial manner in some conspicuous place on the front part of such dwelling house or store, so as to be plainly visible from the sidewalk, and in default of compliance herewith, shall be liable to a penalty of five dollars for each and every offense.

Sec. 3. That the owner or owners of every dwelling house or store that may hereafter be erected within the limits of said City, shall, within thirty days after the completion thereof, cause the proper numbers of such dwelling house or store to be placed in figures in some substantial manner in some conspicuous place on the front part of such dwelling house or store so as to be plainly visible from the sidewalk, and in default of compliance herewith, shall be liable to a penalty of five dollars for each and every offense.

Sec. 4. That to enable the owner or owners of any parcel of real estate fronting on any of the streets, avenues, roads, lanes or alleys of said City to ascertain the correct number thereof, it shall be the duty of the Collector of Taxes, upon application made to him, to allow such applicant to inspect said official maps and said official maps shall also at all proper times be open to the inspection of the public at the office of the Collector of Taxes.

Sec. 5. That in case the owner of any lot or lots shall at any time desire the renumbering thereof he shall be at liberty to apply to the Common Council by petition, which petition shall be accompanied by a properly prepared map showing the changes desired, and clearly showing how the numbers for the entire block would stand in case such renumbering is ordered. The applicant shall present with his said petition, proof by affidavit that a copy of said petition together with notice of his intention to apply to the Common Council has been served upon all of the owners of property fronting on the said block or published in all the official papers of said City at least ten days prior to date of presentation of such petition, and thereupon the Common Council may in its discretion by resolution order said block to be renumbered in the manner specified in such application or in such other manner as they may deem best. In case the Common Council order any change in the numbering of said block, a map duly authenticated shall be filed with the Collector of Taxes showing the changes as made, and upon said map being so filed, the numbers designated thereon shall, as to the block in question, supersede those on the original maps referred to in this ordinance.

Sec. 6. That the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to Provide a New System of Street Numbers," approved March 22, 1892, and all other ordinances or parts of ordinances, so far as they are inconsistent herewith, be and the same are hereby repealed.

Adopted by the Common Council December 5, 1910; approved by the Mayor December 5, 1910.

CHAS. J. FISK, Mayor.

Attest: J. T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.

THINK GALLAGHER MAY BE MENTALLY UNSOUND

The third and probably the last examination by alienists for the State of James J. Gallagher, who shot Mayor Gaynor, took place Sunday afternoon at the Hudson County jail. The physicians subjected the prisoner to mental and physical tests for over two hours. The alienists were Dr. William J. Arlitz, of Hoboken; Dr. John D. McGill, of Jersey City; Dr. George H. Sexsmith, of Bayonne, and Dr. Frank Cotton, of Trenton. In addition to the State's alienists there were present Dr. John J. Reilly, of 59 West Forty-fourth street, New York, and expert for the defense Alexander Simpson, of Jersey City, Gallagher's counsel, and Prosecutor of Pleas Pierre P. Garven. It is the opinion of the alienists that Gallagher is not sane.

The doctors took turns in asking Gallagher questions, and Dr. Reilly, at the request of the State's alienists, also participated in the quizzing.

"If a man stole your watch would it be right to kill him?" asked Dr. McGill of the prisoner.

"That depends on what kind of a watch it was," replied Gallagher. "If it was a cheap one, no; if it was a good watch, yes."

The doctors asked the man several questions for the purpose of learning from him his idea of his own importance and this is one reply they received: "Daniel O'Connell wasn't any more to Ireland than I was to the New York Dock Department."

Gallagher told the doctors that he considered himself quite a politician, having turned two campaigns in New York by his speeches.

The prisoner failed in several memory tests and gave several indications that his brain was weak. On Thursday last there was taken from Gallagher's spine a sample of serum which is being subjected to test by Dr. Cotton with the idea of ascertaining the condition of his brain.

After the examination Doctors Arlitz, McGill, Sexsmith and Cotton had a talk with Dr. Reilly, who expressed the belief that Gallagher was not sane. The State's alienists will file a report of their conclusions with Prosecutor Garven. If they certify that Gallagher is crazy an application will be made to Justice Swayze for the appointment of a lunacy commission to determine officially of his sanity. If they inform the prosecutor that Gallagher is sane he will be tried on December 20 before a struck jury.

ANGRY AT CENTRAL RAILROAD.

Breach of contract was charged against the Central Railroad of New Jersey at a meeting of the United Singers in the Kruger Auditorium, Newark, Sunday.

A party numbering 104 members of the Newark singing societies made the trip to Washington last Wednesday on a special train chartered by the United Singers on the occasion of the Steuben monument dedicatory ceremonies. When it came time to return it was found that instead of leaving Washington by special train at 11:30 Wednesday night, as per schedule, cars set apart for the Newark singers were attached to a regular train scheduled to leave Washington at 12:10.

Protests against this change in the arrangements proved unavailing, and the Newarkers reached Newark at 7:55 Thursday morning. Members of the excursion party, who lost a half day's work in consequence, were directed at Sunday's meeting to place any claims for reimbursement in the hands of Secretary John J. Plemenik.

WANTED RED CROSS SEALS BEFORE SHE DIED.

A man walked up to a Red Cross Christmas Seal booth in New York a few days ago, and after fumbling around till he found a dollar in his pocket, asked for a hundred seals. He seemed to want to say something, and the chance being given, he told how these greetings were to be put on some letters, cards, and little packages his wife was to send out this Christmas.

"She told me to be sure to get them," he said, "and so I came here before going to the shop, for it's the last Christmas she'll have a chance to remember those she loves. The doctor says she may hold out till after New Year's but her cough's so bad now I don't much think she will."

Then he turned quickly and hurried away.

The Women's Home Missionary Society of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church will hold its annual meeting this afternoon.

The Sunday-school of the Park Avenue Baptist church met last night to begin the rehearsals for the Christmas entertainment, which will be elaborate, as usual.

S. S. Swackhamer has been invited to make an address before the Men's Club of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, at its next meeting the latter part of the month.

"Ineffective Service and the Power that Changes It," will be the subject of the prayer-meeting at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, tomorrow night. The new hymn books, "Hymns of Worship and Service," will be used for the first time at this meeting.

STATE MARRIAGE LAWS

Discussed by Rev. Elizabeth Padgham, of Rutherford.

AT EQUAL SUFFRAGE LEAGUE.

Early History's Apparent Laxity Explained—Why Women Insist on Equal Rights.

"Marriage Laws in New Jersey" was the subject of a lecture before the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield on Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Champlain L. Riley, in the borough. The speaker Rev. Elizabeth Padgham, gave an interesting discourse. At the business meeting the enrollment committee reported the addition of four names to the membership roll and Mrs. E. F. Feickert was appointed a member of the Society for Moral and Social Prophylaxis. This appointment entitles the local league to receive the literature of that society.

Mrs. Padgham has for several years been a minister of the Unitarian church in Rutherford. Before getting down to her subject she said it was a pleasure to speak to a group of Suffrage women, for in her own town there are not enough women interested in the subject to form an organization. The last time she had spoken on Suffrage was at the regular meeting of the Ministers' club, where her hearers were all men who all applauded her sentiments and favored equal suffrage.

Miss Padgham gave a comprehensive history of New Jersey's attitude toward the marriage contract as disclosed in the laws from the earliest colonial times to date. "In our early history," she said, "conditions revealed what at first glance would seem a lax state of affairs, but that is explained thus; the natural relaxation from the extreme ecclesiastical authority in the countries whence the new settlers had come and the predominating influence of the Society of Friends whose adherents were here in large numbers and whose peculiar faith was respected by the law of the land."

Following an outline of the various laws passed by the State Legislature from 1852 until 1910, when the license law went into effect, Miss Padgham carried her audience through the various enactments calculated to give greater protection to women's property rights. But she declared that outside of special laws the State discriminates against all women citizens and it is for this reason that New Jersey women, married and single, are insistent upon their rights of citizenship being restored.

Miss Padgham received a vote of thanks for her address.

REV. DR. ZELIE TELLS OF THE PASSION PLAY

Under the auspices of the Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue church, the Rev. Dr. John S. Zelie gave a lecture in the church chapel last night, on the Passion Play of Oberammergau. The women of the congregation had been given a cordial invitation to attend and as a result there was a large audience.

Dr. Zelie took occasion to witness the presentation of the play while abroad last summer, and his address was based on the personal impression gained from viewing the wonderful spectacle. He presented numerous phases new to his hearers while entering into details of the preparation and presentation of the play.

The lectue was illustrated with about 100 splendid stereopticon views secured by Dr. Zelie while in Oberammergau.

CHRISTMAS SOCIAL HELD BY TRINITY'S C. E. SOCIETY

The Christian Endeavor Society of Trinty Reformed church held a Christmas social at the church, last night, the affair being largely attended by members of the society and friends. There were many enjoyable features which helped to pass an enjoyable evening, among them a large Christmas tree, elaborately decorated. There were placed on the tree a large number of presents, amusing and otherwise. They were numbered with tags and then the duplicates distributed among those present.

In this way everyone received a gift and the distribution caused no end of fun, as some of the gifts were exceedingly funny. The distribution was made by "Santa Claus," in the person of Alfred W. Dunavan, who made an excellent Santa.

Another amusing feature was a "postoffice game." The boys deposited hand-painted envelopes at the postoffice, and duplicate tags were distributed among the young women. They called at the office received their mail and in this way secured their partners for refreshments. When the "postoffice" was opened, it looked just like the "5:20 mail" at the postoffice, so great was the demand for letters. During an intermission refreshments were served, consisting of cake and pineapple sundaes. Afterwards the young people enjoyed playing other games. A pleasing feature was a fine program by Guest's orchestra, which enlivened the occasion The rooms were decorated in green and white.

The committee in charge of the affair comprised Emer Gayle, chairman; the Miss May Randolph Elsie Dunavan, Myra Dunavan, Marie Hahn, Mrs. Alfred W. Dunavan, Roy Layton, Arthur Gsakill, Alfred W. Dunavan and Russell Doeringer.

"Three Twins" Pleases Big Audience

The performance of the "Three Twins," with Clifton Crawford as "Tom Stanhope," and the original company, delighted a capacity audience at The Plainfield theatre, last night. Although the musical comedy had been seen here three times before, it proved a strong attraction. Clifton Crawford was the big hit, while the various musical numbers, together with the dancing and singing of the principals and the chorus, were well received. Marie Fanchionette was just as clever as ever in the "Yama-Yama" and other dances, while Daisy Leon won favor with her singing.

GOLFERS OF THE FUTURE

Leighton Calkins Wants Some Incentive for the Youthful Golfer.

ADDRESS THE "MET." ASS'N.

Resolution Offered by President of the P. C. C. is Adopted at Annual Meeting at Sherry's.

Officers were elected and various matters discussed at the annual meeting of the Metropolitan Golf Association held at Sherry's, New York, last night, when President Leighton Calkins and Julius E. Erickson were present to represent the Plainfield Country Club. These officers were elected: President, Frederick S. Wheeler; vice-president, Jas. L. Taylor; secretary, Wynant D. Vanderpool; treasurer, Mortimer N. Buckner; for executive committee, the above officers and Findlay S. Douglas, Harry V. Keep, John Reid, Jr., Joseph P. Knapp and John M. Ward.

Five clubs made bids for the annual amateur championship of the association, but no action was taken. No offer for the open championship was received, whereupon the committee was asked to think it over for a while. Leighton Calkins, former secretary of the association, made a strong plea for a rising generation of golfers in a resolution in which he urged the organization to conduct an annual junior tournament. His resolution which was well received, was referred to the executive committee with power to act, the Fox Hill Golf Club offering its course, in case a tournament is raranged.

Mr. Calkins said:

"In government, in able officials, in ancestry and general loyalty to the best traditions of the game in this country, we are in no sense wanting. In one respect, however, we are behind the times. We are not producing a younger generation of tip-top players capable of holding their own with the young men in the game from other sections of the country. Without any desire to reflect on the last Lesley cup team, it is only right to point out that the Metropolitan Golf Association has still to rely on the "old guard"—all honors to it for holding its own for so many years against the encroachments of youth—as its mainstay in these yearly matches. We have lost our leg at last, after five successive victories, and the time has come when we must help out our grand old guard. They are overworked, becoming a bit winded. We need younger men to help carry on the work . The old guard will soon be septuagenarians and later octogenarians. Time will show its revenge, and the ranks must be recruited .

"Take also our national amateur championships of recent years. The East still relies on the men who brought honors to us a decade ago. As against this we have to do battle against a veritable arm of young and enthusiastic warriors who sweep Western plains, and all but wrest our laurels from us .

"Seriously, gentlemen, the situation is acute. They are giving birth to golfers in the West ,while we content ourselves in these parts with obsequies and wreaths. The "grand old man" himself can hardly last forever. We must be up and doing.

"I suggest, therefore, the great desirability of doing something to stimulate interest in golf on the part of our boys. We ought to look into the future. We must raise up warriors to carry on the fight and maintain the prestige of our district when our honor champions of the past shall have earned their retirement from active competition.

"I offer this resolution: Resolved, That it is the sense of this meeting that a junior tournament—in addition to the amateur and open tournaments—be held during the coming season, open to the young men and boys connected with the clubs belonging to this association; all questions to date, conditions of tournament, age of competitors, prizes to be offered, and other details, to be referred to the executive committee of the association with power."

Proctor's Fine Show.

Proctor's show this week is a fine one. "The Minister's Wife," a rural sketch presented by Frances Stevens & Co., is a delightful comedy; The Drapers in "That Coon from Mobile," are clever; Pauline Moran, singing comedienne, is especially good; Ted and Kate Gibson, in "The Mysterious Mr. Raffles," tells an unusually good story .

Making Americans.

"Making Americans" will be the title of a talk at the First Presbyterian church tonight at the regular meeting of the Home Missionary Society. Stereopticon views showing the mode of arrival and examination an various incidents connected with the missionary work will be shown.

$400 FIRE CAUSED BY HENSEY'S THAWING OUT

An unoccupied house on Laramie road, belonging to Mrs. Bridget McCullough, was badly damaged by fire at about noon today. Flames had spread from the first floor to the attic when the firemen arrived and they had about an hour's fight. The loss is placed at $400, covered by insurance.

John Hensey, a painter has been at work on the house and this morning started a fire in the kitchen sink to get warm. He became so absorbed in imbibing heat that he failed to notice the blaze working its way into the wall. He was still enjoying the warmth when somebody noticed the flames on the outside and telephoned fire headquarters.

Chief Doane started for the scene in his auto but it's speed kept getting less and less as he went out Park avenue, so that finally a small boy running along the sidewalk kept pace with the machine. Fortunately Alexander Milne appeared with a regular automobile and the chief got to the fire. He saw at once that it was a dangerous blaze and returned to box 76 at Park avenue and Arlington place to turn in an alarm. Even then he reached the fire before the apparatus that had answered the telephone call.

It is not reported officially, but rumor says Hensey secured enough heat before leaving the place to last him the rest of the winter.

ONLY A TEN CENT TOY

What an Inexpensive Gift Will Mean to Some Poor Little Tot.

THE GOOD FELLOWS ENLIST.

Here's a Chance for the Red Blooded Ones to do Some Real Good —Read the Letter Today.

In telling what toys mean to the little ones, in this and in all ages, the Trenton True American said yesterday:

"In every teeming city of this Republic, in the deep forests of the far north ,among the orange groves of the south, in the farm homes of the middle west, out on the bleak plains of the prairie states, beyond the peaks of the Rockies, 'where rolls the Oregon, in California's 'clime of perpetual roses,' there are toys, treasured up against The Children's Days of Days.

"And, thanks to the spread of the gospel of Him who said, 'Suffer the little children to come unto me,' the merriment of this season is not confined to this Republic. In all the Americas, in all the continents beyond the seas and in all the islands of the seas, wherever there is home and wherever the Story of the Child in the Manger at Bethlehem has been told, the children now are singing by day and dreaming by night of the coming of Christmas—and their toys."

The sublime happiness of the child when it finds a toy in its stocking over the fireplace on Christmas morning "is more nearly angelic than anything to be seen this side of heaven itself."

But indescribable must be the pain suffered by the poor little one that has climbed upon a chair and put its chubby little hand into the stocking only to find that it is empty. To it Christmas is a sad, sad day. There are hundreds of just such little ones in Plainfield. That is why the Good Fellow is appealing to those of his kind. Last year he found more than 500 little boys and girls who would not have known the joys of the Christ Child's day had it not been for the Good Fellow.

Good Fellow's letter reprinted on another page again today, has already resulted in many recruits, but several hundred are needed to accomplish the purpose—bringing real joy to all the poor little tots in Plainfield.

Here is a sample letter received by mail:

"I am a little boy of ten years My papa says I am big enough to be a Good Fellow, and please Mister Good Fellow, I have a nice toy that Santa Claus brought me last Christmas. I will send it to you to give to a little boy of my age."

Bless his little heart, this little man has overlooked the real spirit of the idea. No toys, nor money, is to be sent to Good Fellow—the gifts must be made directly by the Good Fellows themselves to the poor little ones—therein lies the beauty of the scheme.

JAMES M. SMITH, OF THIS CITY, DEAD AT MONTCLAIR.

James M. Smith, a resident of this city for a great many years, died yesterday at Montclair where he had been living for several months. No particulars concerning Mr. Smith's illness have been received as yet. His home in this city was on Elmwood place, where he resided with his son, William Montgomery Smith. He was a painter by trade and followed it up to a few years ago.

About two years ago Mr. Smith underwent an operation for the removal of a growth on his head and at that time his condition was critical. He appeared to recover from the effect of that trouble and enjoyed very good health. Mr. Smith was a member of the First Baptist church. He is survived by two sons, William Montgomery Smith and Ferdinand O. Smith, the latter of New York, and two daughters, one of whom resides in Orange. Announcement of the funeral will be made tomorrow.

CLERGYMAN TELLS OF EDINBURGH CONFERENCE.

The Women's Home and Foreign Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue church held the annual meeting yesterday afternoon. The customary address was made by Rev. Dr. J. H. Odell, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church of Scranton, Pa. and related to the Edinburgh conference in June, which he attended and participated in. The address was of absorbing interest.

The usual thank offering for missions was received at the close of Dr. Odell's talk and a social hour followed, during which tea was served.

ADROIT THIEF NABBED BY BOROUGH POLICE

Frank Brown, a young colored man living on West Fourth street, is locked up at borough police headquarters, charged by the police with stealing a gold watch and chain worth $40 from the home of James McKenna on Linden avenue. The prisoner denies the charge and swears by the sacred posssum that he is the victim of a magician or some sleight-of-hand artist who slipped the jewelry into his clothing. He wil be arraigned before Justice Snape tonight.

McKenna has just moved from Somerset street to his new address and this morning engaged John Smalley to move over a last load of trunks. The latter hired Brown to help him do the lugging. After the men had been at the house Mrs. McKenna discovered that her watch and chain had disappeared from a sideboard in the sitting room. The police were notified and Chief Weiss went looking for Brown.

The officer was standing in front of fire headquarters on Somerset street, shortly before noon, when Smalley's wagon came along. Brown was on the front seat and he was invited in the building. He stoutly denied taking the watch while a search of his clothes failed to reveal it. He was then taken to the police station where the chief started in to disrobe him. He had gotten pretty well along when a bulge in the lining of the man's overcoat attracted his attention. The watch came to light soon after, having been dropped down through a slit to the bottom of the garment.

It is said that the expression on Brown's face was a sight to behold.

"H-h-how did that get in there," he stammered. "Somebody did it when I wasn't lookin'. Yes, sir, some guy put it there to get me in wrong."

"Sure," assented Chief Weiss; and the guy's name was Brown. Back to cell No 3 for yours" and the victim of [illegible] magician was led away.

HE IS LUCKY GUESSER

J. H. Greene Jr. Came Within 63 of Guessing Boro's Exact Population.

MISS ELSIE HORN SECOND.

One predicted That North Plainfield's Population was 963, While Another Guessed 30,160.

If J. H. Green, Jr., of 609 West Seventh street will call at this office he will receive the five-dollar gold piece offered for the person who came nearest to predicting the actual population of North Plainfield. Mr. Greene's guess was 6,180, and, as published yesterday the actual population according to the 1910 census is 6,117. Mr. Greene was therefore only 63 out of the way. Several others guessed in the 6,000 class, but none came as near the correct total as Mr. Greene. Miss Elsie Horn, of 317 Park avenue, was close up having put her guess at 6,050, or within four of the winner's approximation. Next to Miss Horn was Mrs. M. C. Sutphen with a guess of 6,019.

One guess of 6,100, within seventeen of the actual number, was submitted by a reporter for The Daily Press, but as no one on the paper was eligible to the contest his guess was thrown out. The limits of the guesses were far apart. The lowest was 963 and the highest 30,160. Following is a list of the guessers and their figures:

A New Back for an Old One—How It is Done in Plainfield.

The back aches at times with a dull, indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back in this condition. You cannot reach the cause. Exchange the bad back for a new and stronger one. Follow the example of this Plainfield citizen.

Albert Naylor, 519 East Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Several years ago I was afflicted with a dull ache in the small of my back and sharp pains darted through me when I stooped or lifted. It was told that Doan's Kidney Pills were a sure cure for such troubles and procuring a supply at Randolph's Pharmacy, I began their use. Two boxes of this remedy fixed me up in good shape and I have often recommended it since to other persons suffering as I did."

The Secret Of It.

"Why do you always put a pitcher of water and a glass on the table before an orator?"

"That," said the chairman of many reception committees, "is to give him something to do in case he forgets his piece and has to stop and think."

CLEVER TRICK WORKED AND FILLED HOUSE

Working successfully a clever advertising dodge, the "Yankee Circus Company" succeeded Saturday in getting a big house to see a pretty poor show in Washington, N. J. Members of the company impersonated during the day a stage-struck girl who had run away from home, a devoted brother seeking her her, and two detectives who had succeeded in locating her as the leading lady of the company. It worked beautifully, and when the 'brother" was persuaded by the manager to permit his "repetant sister" to appear just once more at the evening performance, Washington fell for it and stormed the box office in a rush to buy tickets for the performance at which "the fifteen-year-old girl" was to appear.

The company drifted into town Friday night. The manager waited until the bills were posted Saturday morning and then he had three of his troupe visit the office of Justice of the Peace J. B. Lindaberry. One took the role of a devoted brother and the other two gave the name of a private detective firm in Jersey City and claimed to be detectives.

The "brother" stated that he was John D. Stiffens of Hoboken, and that on December 3 his sister, Miss Anna Stiffens, fifteen years old, had run away from home to join a show troupe. By the aid of the detectives he had located the missing sister in Washington and he swore out a warrant for her arrest and also for the arrest of the manager of the show for enticing her from home. Constable Charles Carling was given the warrant, and great care was taken to have the arrest made known to the employes of the factory where the constable is employed when not on official business for the district. It was also pay day at the factory. The girl was arrested at a hotel and taken before the justice of the peace.

There the "brother" pleaded with her to leave the company, even if it did leave the troupe without one of their best actresses. The "brother's" pleading and the fatherly advice given by the aged justice, who was an innocent party to the advertising scheme, melted the young girl's heart and with a flood of tears she promised to give up the stage and return to her Hoboken home at once.

She had large black eyes and dark hair and was decidedly attractive. She admitted to the justice that she was only fifteen years old. With the aged magistrate's fatherly advice ringing in her ears the girl left the courtroom with her "brother" and the detectives.

Then the manager pleaded that the "brother' allow the sister to remain for the evening performance and not break up the show. Of course, the consent was given, and it was noised around that the pretty brunette would be on the stage. Long before the performance began there was a rush at the box office and the house was soon filled, the audience not knowing it was a clever advertising scheme. The "child actress" was really about twenty-three years old, and the detectives and brother were better actors in the courtroom than they were on the stage. The troupe left yesterday morning to repeat the trick in some othertown. This was probably the same company which Mr. Sanderson would not allow to perform at the Plainfield theatre last week.

BASEBALL.

Although it is admitted by Manager McGraw, of the Giants, that "Rube" Marquard, the $11,000 pitching marvel purchased from Indianapolis several seasons ago, has failed to meet the expectations, there is no chance of him being disposed of to the Philadelphia Athletics, in accordance with a suggestion by Catcher Paddy Livingstone, of the world's champions. Livingstone caught Marquard at Indianapolis, and it was largely through his work that the elongated twirler flashed across the baseball horizon. Livingstone is convinced that Marquard has not been handled properly by McGraw, and says that were he with the Athletics, with himself to catch, "Rube" would be a tremendous winner.

Patsy Flaherty, the left-handed twirler who has seen service in the big show with Chicago American League and Boston, Pittsburg National League teams and Louisville club, is in New York to find out whether the Brooklyn club intends to give him a trial next season. Patrick expects to be presenter with his release in a few days, and when declared a free agent will go to Horace Fogel, president of the Phillies, and ask for a job. Flaherty worked for the boss of the Quakers for three weeks last season on trial and never received a cent of pay.

The annual meeting of the New York State League will be held at Albany, N. Y., during the third week in January. The batting and fielding averages are now nearly completed and will be ready for publication soon. Right Fielder William Kay, of Albany, again leads the league in batting.

It is understood that McGraw will make very few changes in his regular team next season, being satisfied with the material. He may add another pitcher or two and an additional catcher, but otherwise the aggregation will remain about the same as last year.

It is now supposed that the New York sporting writers, with a few exceptions, will tout Chase as the greatest manager-player known to history. As a matter of fact a few of the writers have succeeded in swelling the player's head until it is doubtful whether a hat can be found to fit him. It is the opinion of experts that Chase will be a failure as a manager. His act in deserting the Yankees and going to the Pacific Coast is still fresh in the minds of the fans and the "wonder of all ages" can be counted upon to do something just as freakish if things don't suit him.

GOLF.

Among the many problems presented to the St. Andrew's rules of golf committee are the following:

"In a stroke competition a competitor missed the ball on the first tee. While addressing the ball for the second stroke the ball fell off the tee. The competitor replaced it and drove off, counting two strokes played from the tee. Is this correct?"

Answer—Rule 2 (1) refers to a ball which is not in play. The competitor having made a bad stroke, his ball was in play. If the competitor grounded his club when addressing the ball for the second time, he incurred a penalty of one stroke, see Rule 12 (4), because the ball moved, and he should then have played the ball from where it lay. Provided he conformed to the conditions laid down in Stroke Rule 11 (1), he could tee the ball under a penalty of two strokes. If he did not conform to Stroke Rule 11 (1) the competitor is disqualified.

"On the day of a competition a competitor, before starting, rolled two balls toward the hole with his hand on two occasions. He had no club. Should he be disqualified under Stroke Rule 4 (2)? It is argued that, as no club was used, the rule cannot be applied."

Answer—The competitor's action is plainly contrary to the spirit of Stroke Rule 4 (2), and the rules of golf committee recommends that the competitor be disqualified.

HISTORY OF ALASKA TOLD BY JOHN M. WHITON

Alaska, its history, beauty and wealth, was the subject of the story told in a fascinating way by John M. Whiton, before the members of the Men's club of the Congregational church, last evening. The address lasted for an hour or more and it was followed by a social time at which refreshments were served.

Mr. Whiton spent nine weeks in our most northern possession last sumer and in addition to the entertaining account of his own experiences the club listened to descriptions of its features and possibilities. The speaker gave sketches of the two expeditions sent out by Russia to explore the land by Behring, the Dane, graphically depicting the struggles over a period of years involving loss of men and horses until the Sea of Okotsk was reached.

The second expedition brought back furs and skins showing that the country was rich in animal life and incidentally brought to light the immense trade with the Chinese indicating a source of great wealth. He described the founding of the Russia-American Fur Company and the fitting out of a Boston enterprise using a North river sloop for the purpose in whcih the navigators discovered the Columbia river and encouraged John Jacob Astor to start overland to this great fur country.

The treaty negotiated by Seward and the purchase of Alaska followed with stories of the value of the fishing and fur industries and the fabulous wealth derived by this country. Glaciers sixty-five miles wide, the great rainafll and snow storms. The salmon canning industry afforded some startling figures and the processes of preserving and shipping the popular fish. Mr. Whiton said that 30,000 acres in Alaska were homesteaded and they are growing an alfalfa which will stand seventy degrees of frost. The photographs of flowers, charming landscapes and rich valleys, proving that the country was not the uninhabitable place which has been pictured in old prints. Not the least interesting part of the entertainment was the exhibition of the handiwork of the indians of Alaska Baskets made of spruce roots, decorated totem poles and slim canoes and beautifully carved horn goods. All were hugely enjoyed. Mr. Whiton was given a rising vote of thanks.

Alex. Lusardi, accompanied by his two children, Adeline and Clementine, and his sister, Miss Nesa Lusardi, leave tomorrow morning on the French Liner, La Lorraine, for Genoa, where they will remain for an indefinite time. Mr. Lusardi says that he does not know when he will return to Plainfield.

Plainfield in .... The Olden Days.

Re-printed from
The Weekly Constitutionalist

June 19, 1873.

The contract for macadamizing Somerset street has been awarded to the Telford Pavement Company, of Orange, N. J., although competing against two other companies. The work will be commenced in about ten days, and will be pushed through to completion rapidly.

The work on the new Insane Asylum near Morristown is being pushed rapidly forward and it is hoped that the building will be roofed in before winter. The walls are up to the second story, and are progressing rapidly. * * * There are 130,000 bricks a week and 20 yards of stone a month used. Cars from the Morris and Essex Railroad run on a branch track directly to the building, bringing lumber, lime, and other building materials. * * * There are, in addition, forty teams employed and 350 men at work daily.

The Dime Savings Institution of Plainfield have declared a tenth dividend, an interest dividend, at the rate of six per cent. per annum, to be paid to all depositors entitled thereto on demand on and after the 10th of July. Dividends not withdraw will be added to the principal. Money deposited on or before July 15, 1873, will draw interest from July 1st.

Mr. Cornelius J. Ackerman was on Monday night last appointed captain of police by the Common Council. This appointment is a good one. Mr. Ackerman is the right man for the position, and under his management evil-doers may look out for themselves.

James Leonard, a young son of Mr. Oliver Leonard, of this city, while playing around the residence of his grandfather, Elston Marsh, Esq., last Saturday, fell from a fence upon which he had climbed, and broke his leg. He is a bright little fellow, and the accident is deplored by his parents and friends.

LITTLE LOST PUP.

He was lost!—not a shade of doubt of that:
For he never barked at a slinking cat,
But stood in the square where the wind blew raw,
With a drooping ear and a trembling paw,
And a mournful look in his pleading eye
And a plaintive sniff at the passersby
That begged as plain as tongue could sue,
"O, mister, please may I follow you?"
A lorn wee waif of tawny brown
Adrift in the roar of a heedless town.
O, the saddest of sights in a world of sin,
Is a little lost pup with his tail tucked in.

Well, he won my heart (for I set great store
On my own red Bute—who is here no more),
So I whistled clear, and he trotted up,
And who so glad as that small lost pup?

Now he shares my board, and he owns my bed,
And he fairly shouts when he hears my tread.
Then, if things go wrong, as they sometimes do,
And the world is cold and I'm feeling blue,
He asserts his right to assuage my woes
With a warm red togue and a nice cold nose,
And a silky head on my arm or knee
And a paw as soft as a paw can be.

When we rove the woods for a league about
He's as full of pranks as a school let out;
For he romps and frisks like a three-months' colt
And he runs me down like a thunder bolt,
O, the blithest of sights in the world so fair
Is a gay little pup with his tail in the air!

Opposes Annexation Now.

"Editor, The Daily Press.

"After reading Edwin S. Hooley's letter in your paper, I want to say that he expresses my views exactly and as we have nothing to offer to Plainfield at the present time but school houses ,and they are already annexed mostly on one block, and as Plainfield is well supplied with them, they would not help the annexation question. Why not finish one thing at a time, and that a problem of so much importance—sewage disposal. It is my honest opinion that this annexaiton question is simply brought up at this time to side track the sewage question. Do let us go ahead and get something to offer and Plainfield will be glad to hitch on, for the sewage question will soon be one for it to figure on as a vital matter."

OH, DEAR!

She took a course of First Aid to the Wounded, and, after long and anxious waiting, the street accident she had earnestly wished for took place. It was a bicycle picnic; the man had broken his leg; she confiscated the walking stick of a passerby, and broke it in three pieces for splints; she blushingly took off her underskirt for bandages, and she was enthusiastically chered by the crowd. When all was completed, she summoned a cab and took her patient to the hospital.

"Who bandaged this limb so creditably?" inquired the surgeon.

"I did," she blushingly replied.

"Well, it is most beautifully—most beautifully done," said the surgeon, "but you have, I see, made one little mistake."

She felt terribly self-conscious.

"You have bandaged the wrong leg," he said quietly.

Getting Away.

"Haven't you forgotten something, sir?" asked the anxious waiter, as the thrifty guest prepared to depart without bestowing a tip.

"No, I think not. Here's my hat and here's my cane. I don't think I have forgotten anything."

"But you've forgotten me," said the waiter in exasperation.

"Not at all," answered the other. "I saw you standing ther all the time. Bon soir, garcon; bon soir."

Blooming Alone.

The sweet young thing was being shown about Washington by her cousin, the noted correspondent.

"That is Senator Burton across there," he said, as he pointed out the Ohio statesman.

"He's the flower of the senate, isn't he?" gurgled the pretty dear.

"Flower!" repeated the correspondent. "What kind of flower?"

"The bachelor Burton," she coyly replied.

The Proper Size.

"For years," admitted the old bachelor, "I have made the mistake of hiding my light under a bushel."

"Yes," rejoined the young widow, "I have often wondered why you used a bushel for that purpose when a pint cup would have answered the purpose."

WITH A BUMP.

Clara—I've been skating on this ice until I'm fairly tired out.

Clarence—You shouldn't be tired. You sat down often enough, I'm sure.

A Tip From Papa.

He was poor but proud, and she was the only daughter of a wealthy tailor.

"I want you to love and trust me, dearest," he said.

"Oh," she replied, "I can love you all right, but papa says you are not to be trusted."

OFFICIAL MINUTES OF THE BOARD OF FREEHOLDERS.

The adjourned meeting of the Union County Board of Freeholders was held November 18, 1910, at 2:30 o'clock.

Roll call showed the following members present: Director Cady, Freeholders Adams, Crane, Darby, Doane, Garrison, Gruener, Hall, Haviland, Jones, Krouse, Meisel, Perry, Randolph, Smith, Thompson and Wilbur—17.

Absent—Jensen, Martin and Swain—3.

On motion of Freeholder Wilbur the reading of the minutes of the meeting of November 3 was dispensed with.

COMMUNICATIONS.

John N. Cady, Director of the Board of Freeholders, Summit, New Jersey.

My Dear Sir—Confirming our verbal acceptance of the Washington avenue and Edgar road connection, Union County, on October 13, 1910, I hereby notify you, and, through you, the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County, that the said road has been completed to our entire satisfaction, and is therefore accepted upon the part of the State.

Very truly yours,
FREDERICK GILKYSON,
Commissioner.

On motion of Freeholder Smith received and placed on file.

Hon. Benjamin King, clerk of the Board of Freeohlders, Union County, N. J.

Dear Mr. King—We are in receipt of your communication of November 4, and desire to thank you and the Board of Freeholders for their prompt and just action in the matter brought before them, concerning St. Elizabeth Hospital.

Our doors are always open to the worthy poor of Union county and any recommendation from a freeholder will receive prompt and respectful attention, but you can see the injustice of this case, in that a physician sent the patient to a specialist for his opinion; the hospital up to this time, never entered into the case at all; then when it came to the part of the hospital, the patient took a private room of his own free will. Then after all debts were incurred a letter from a freeholder was brought forth.

As business men, we know you will agree with us, that if they intended to take advantage of anything of this kind, they should have brought their letter at first, and then made arangements accordingly, a method which certainly would have been just and agreeable to us.

Thanking you again, we remain
Gratefully yours,
BOARD OF MANAGERS,
ST. ELIZABETH HOSPITAL.

On motion of Freeholder Wilbur received and placed on file.

COMMITTEE REPORT.

Gentlemen—Subject to confirmation of this board, I have closed negotiations with P. J. Ryan for the purchase of 25 Rahway avenue, the last of the three buildings in Rahway avenue not owned by the county, and which this board at its last meeting instructed the County Attorney to bring condemnation proceedings to acquire for the sum of $5,500.

Very truly yours,
N. R. LEAVITT,
County Collector.

On motion of Freeholder Jones received and placed on file.

NEW BUSINESS.

By Freholder Krouse:

Resolved, That the County Collector be and he hereby is authorized to pay to the owner of the premises, 25 Rahway avenue, in the City of Elizabeth, the sum of five thousand five hundred dollars, upon the receipt of a deed from the said owner to the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, for said premises; said premises to be purchased by the county for said price, subject to the taxes for the year 1910; further

Resolved, That the County Attorney proceed with the search of the title to said premises at once. Further

An Absolutely Fireproof Holiday Store.

Please, Let Us Do the Worrying

From the day after Thanksgiving the tide of Christmas shoppers has been rolling in heavier and heavier, until now it is at flood tide.

These holiday high waves test the store's bulwarks and bulkheads and prove our capacity to steer this mighty ship of trade thru the most troublous waters—and we welcome the opportunity.

Close to a thousand extra helpers are lending a hand in the management of the craft—and we're adding more of the crew every day—so with this force fortified with a mountainous stock of givable things for the holidays, we are eager for the everyday tasks that we have to cope with.

Please do not imagine that you are imposing upon our helpers by shopping here.

Our regular force is anxious to serve you up to the last minute of Christmas eve. Our extra salespeople are just as eager to demonstrate their fitness for the regular service and many will "make good" and secure permanent places with us.

Shop early if you can, but shop whenever it pleases you best.

It is our business to serve the public. Those who engage with us understand our purpose and appreciate our mission. So don't worry about the work you impose upon us. Without it we could not exist.

"Purity Candies"
BEST FOR CHRISTMAS TIME.

In these days of pure food agitation enough attention is not paid to the purity of the candies we feed our children, and tons and tons of worthless, really dangerous sweetmeats are fed to the little folks—and often they are bought by organizations who ought to know and ought to think better.

Our "Purity Candies" commend themselves to everyone because of their general excellence, and they are just as pure and good at Christmas time as they are thruout the year, so that you may buy them confident that you are getting candies perfectly safe to eat, at prices far below what you are asked for equal candies elsewhere.

Chocolates, 20c to $1 a pound.

MANY OF THEM SPECIAL PRICED

How much would you like to pay for a picture for a gift? It doesn't matter, for here in our Picture Galleries are so many patterns of so many kinds at almost any price you wish to pay that choosing will be easy.

We would ask your special attention to these remarkable pictures at $5, including landscape etching, pastel, marines and landscapes, and superb colored figure studies, all in rich gilt frames, and an unusual line including many celebrated pictures, hand-colored, like, for instance, "When the Heart is Young," many of which have never been offered before at the price now asked $5

OUR $1.00 PICTURES.

At this popular price we present a collection of large-sized pictures such as will be seen in no other store anywhere. Thousands of people seeking a showy gift that will be inexpensive will, doubtless, be delighted with these pictures.

Most of them are in color—reproductions of paintings, in gilt frames; others are in black and white, in oak frames. But it is useless in these busy times to attempt to describe them, for there are so very many different kinds of pictures at this one price $1

Christy and Fisher Pictures—more popular than ever they were, are here in a wide variety of subjects, including all the new and best ones, such as—Study Hour, Fudge Party, Lady of the Lake, American Girl, In Foreign Countries, Critical Moment, Her Pilot, Secrets of the Sea and Canoe Mates.

These are pictures of the sort that would naturally sell at $1.49, are beautifuly colored, framed in black, yet we are going to sell them for only 95c

A Merry Christmas, Truly Where There's a Victrola

An instrument that renders brass band and orchestral music, an instrument that sings with the voice of the prima donnas of the grand operas, an instrument that is just as capable of accommodating an evening party with a sonata, an oratorio or a bit of George Cohan's rag, is certainly up in the front row of things givable at Christmas time.

The Victrola
IS THE MARVEL OF THE AGE.

As a music-maker it has no peer, and as a source of pleasure in the home it is simply unrivaled, for all the family, from silver-haired grandmother down to prattling youngsters, find this flow of music good for the soul and all find equal delight in it.

Think—think a long while—and you will hardy conjure anything that will more surely "fill the bill" than the Victrola.

YOU CAN BUY THE VICTROLA

AT $10 A MONTH.

I have kept my securities in my safe at home, but now after observing what has happened to other people who have done the same thing, I have come to the conclusion that a

Such was the comment of a gentleman who recently rented a Safe Deposit Box in our vaults.

BIG LEAGUE MOGULS ARE IN NEW YORK

Baseball men from all parts of the United States, as well as many from Canada and Cuba, are gathered in New York, or on their way to that city, to be present at the gatherings of the moguls this week.

Within the next three days the club-owners of the three leagues—two of them major—will meet in annual convention, elect officers, discuss amendments to the rules and map out their plans for the season of 1911.

Two of the leagues—the National and the Eastern—will elect presidents. In the American, "Ban" Johnson still has nineteen years to serve of a twenty-year term at $25,000 a year. Thus far there has been little talk of any opposition to "Tom" Lynch, president of the Nationals, but there is no telling what will happen in the old organization. Ebbets, Murphy and Fogel are counted anti-Lynch men, and the change of owners of the Boston club may make some difference, though none is apparent.

Stanley Robison, of the St. Louis club, will come to the meeting in a receptive mood. Robison is a baseball politican of the old school. He is not committed either way, as far as Lynch is concerned, but he says he has a long string of grievances against the umpires, and is also an advocate of the 168-game schedule. That another fight for this unusually long championship season will be made there seems to be little doubt. Ebbets is confident that he can swing Robison, Murphy and Fogel with him, thereby causing a deadlock.

Although President Johnson has announced that the American League meeting will be short, it is understood that the younger organization is ready to advocate a change in the playing rules, calculated to increase batting. The American League men never advocated the foul strike rule adopted by the National League in 1902, but they were forced to accept the rule in the interest of harmony and in obedience to the provisions of the national agreement. The league will vote in favor of the proposition to reduce the number of called balls from four to three, or to increase the number of strikes from three to four, either rule being calculated to increase the hitting by curtailing the power of the boxman. But before these changes can be made in the playing rules the consent of the National League must be obtained, and that, of course means friction. Aside from these rule changes the American League men say they will transact very little business of importance. No feuds exist among them and the utmost harmony prevails.

When a thought flashes across the intellect does it effect any molecular changes in the cellular or muscular tissues composing the material substance of the cerebral mass, or does it operate merely in the realm of the spiritual ego, thereby leaving no trace subject to detection or classification in the domain of substantiality?

TO THE "GOOD FELLOWS" OF PLAINFIELD

TO THE GOOD FELLOWS OF PLAINFIELD:

Just about this time last year I told you my story. You listened to it—you did more—you followed its spirit out in a bang-up style. I'm not claiming any credit for my story; I'm claiming credit for knowing that there are many Good Fellows in this fine old town of ours—royal chaps who don't do much preaching but when it comes to doing a good turn, well, they're there with the goods. This is no sermon that I'm handing you, it's a heart-to-heart talk with men with red blood in their veins, and here it is off last year's reel:

Last Christmas and New Year's eve you and I went out for a good time and spent from $10 to $200. Last Christmas morning hundreds of children awoke to an empty stocking—the bitter pain of disappointment that Santa Claus had forgotten them. Perhaps it wasn't our fault. We had provided for our own; we had also reflected in a passing way on those less fortunate than our own, but they seemed far off and we didn't know where to find them. Perhaps in the hundred and one things we had to do some of us didn't think of that heart sorrow of the child over the empty stocking.

Now, old man, here's a chance. I have tried for the last five years and ask you to consider it. Just send your name and address to The Daily Press—address Santa Claus—state about how many children you are willing to protect against grief over that empty stocking, inclose a two-cent stamp and you will be furnished with the names, addresses, sex, and age of that many children. It is then up to you, you do the rest. Select your won present, spend 50 cents or $50, and send or take your gifts to those children on Christmas eve. You pay not a cent more than you want to pay—every cent goes just where you want it to go. You gain neither notoriety nor advertising; you deal with no organization; no record will be kept; your letter will be returned to you with its answer. The whole plan is just as anonymous as old Santa Claus himself.

This is not a newspaper scheme. The Daily Press was asked to aid in reaching the good fellow by publishing this suggestion and to receive your communication in order that you may be assured of good faith and to preserve the anonymous character of this work. The identity of the writer of this appeal will not be disclosed. He assumes the responsibility of finding the children and sending you their names and guarantees that whatever you bestow will be deserved.

Neither you nor I get anything out of this, except the feeling that you have saved some child from sorrow on Christmas morning. If that is not enough for you then you have wasted time in reading this—it is not intended for you, but for the good fellows of Plainfield.

Perhaps a twenty-five cent doll or a ten cent tin toy wouldn't mean much to the children you know, but to the child who would find them in the otherwise empty stocking they mean much—the difference between utter disappointment and the joy that Santa Claus did not forget them. Here is where you and I get in. The charitable organizations attend to the bread and meat; the clothes; the necessaries; you and the rest of the good fellows furnish the toys, the nuts, the candies; the child's real Christmas.

GOOD FELLOW.

The Daily Press, one year ago, investigated the "good fellow" who wrote the above, looked him in the eye and put its O. K. on the plan. The cold blooded, blase representative who saw him wrote: "He made me feel, personally, that it would be really worth while in satisfaction to carry a little happiness to some children who otherwise wouldn't get any on Christmas eve." "Good Fellow" is not a professional philanthropist, he takes a drink, and even goes out at night with the boys for a mild good time—but he has taken care of from fifteen to twenty children a year in Plainfield. He said that a year ago last Christmas day he wished he had curtailed his holiday joy-making with the good fellows even more than he did, so that he might have had more money to gladden childish hearts.

The Worthy Grand Master of the lodge of Good Fellows has laid his plans for securing names through the Charity Organization Society.

This is how you can join the lodge of Good Fellows. Write a letter to "Santa Claus," care of The Daily Press, something like this:

I live at No.———— Street. I will be Santa Claus to 6 children.

John Jones.

The letter will go to Santa Claus. He will indorse on your letter the names and addresses of six children. That letter will be remailed to you. Then you get busy. That's all. Come on in, good fellows.

G. O. P. ASSEMBLYMEN HOLD THEIR CAUCUS

Eighteen Republican members-elect of the House of Assembly met in caucus yesterday and went through the formality of selecting their candidates for speaker and other officers. There was little interest in the proceeding of the minority party in the lower house, but two incidents of the day were looked upon as both significant and interesting.

Thomas McCran, of Passaic county was selected chairman of the caucus by unanimous vote ,and will be floor leader of the Republicans. He comes from the home of Vivian M. Lewis, the recent Republican candidate for governor.

In addition to the sleection of J. M. McCran, the following officers were chosen by the caucus: Speaker, Albert De Unger, of Camden; clerk, Captain James Parker, of Passaic, named for the fourteenth time; assistant clerk, Upton S. Jeffrys, of Camden; journal clerk, George H. Johnson ,of Union; assistant journal clerk, Harry J. Gratton; supervisor of bills F. Mason, of Cape May; assistant supervisor of bills, Charles E. Heritage ,of Gloucester, and Harry Dease, of Camden; sergeant-at-arms, Harry G. Snyder, of Pasaic; assistant sergeant-at-arms, Paul L. Ludlam, of Cumberland, and Gratham Nevius, of Burlington ,bill clerk, Walter Benning, of Burlington.

The remainder of the officers were left to the steering committee, composed of Amos H. Radcliffe, of Passaic; George W. Whyte, of Camden; Lloyd Thompson, of Union; Mr. Mather, of Mercer, and Isaac Bacharach, of Atlantic.

The caucus inaugurated an innovation when it voted to hold the formal assembly caucus on the eve of the session of the legislature at Atlantic City, January 8, instead of meeting in Trenton Monday evening before the session, or Tuesday morning.

The Republican Senators will hold their next caucus next Tuesday when Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union, will be agreed upon as president. It is probable that Senator John D. Prince ,of Passaic, will be made majority leader, although several other Senators aspire to that honor. Selection as leader would place the incumbent in line for the presidency next year.

Chief Suggests Care.

Ordinary care in looking after doors and windows at this season of the year may prevent loss by sneak thieves and porch climbers. It is customary at this time for the police to warn people of the possibilities of thieves making away with Christmas gifts when access to them is had by a conveniently open window. While at present there are no suspicious characters in town and while the patrolmen are keeping a sharp lookout for such individuals, it is possible for one or more to slip in and rob the careless. Hence the warning.

Anchor Lodge Elects.

Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. & A. M., at a regular emmunication last night, elected these officers for the coming year: Master, A. J. Hamley; senior warden ,W. M. Maxim; junior warden, John M. Lewis; treasurer, J. Stephen Higham; secretary S. B. Joseph; trustees, O. T. Waring, J. T. Sutphen and F. R. Wynkoop. The rest of the officers are appointed and they will be announced later. The installation occurs on Tuesday night, December 27.

ON MAKING AMERICANS

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring Tells How it is Done From Arrival to Destination.

REGARD LIBERTY AS LICENSE.

Methods of Training Foreigners in Mission Work a Quick Solution to Problem of Making Good Citizens.

Under the auspices of the Missionary Study Class of the First Presbyterian church, Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, the minister of the church, delivered an illustrated lecture in the Sunday-school room, last night, on "Making Americans," illustrated with seventy-eight steroptican views which took in the immigrants' movements from the ship's arrival until their destination, whether in the East Side of New York City or the fields of the great West and held his hearers' attention from beginning to end.

Dr. Herring said in part: "There is no more important question that can absorb the attention of this nation nor is there one that is likely to arise for many years to come than the far reaching problem of immigration. It is not a consideration to be easily set aside for it affects the very life blood of America, deciding the character and power of the republic. To be indifferent to this subject is to be guilty of negligence, to pass it by is to be criminal to the hightest interests of the nation.

"These immigrants come in great ship loads at the rate of a million a year and are anchored out in New York harbor for examination, a sort of winnowing process which takes but a short time but which makes the later examination at Ellis Island easier. This examination physical and otherwise is one which than all others, prehaps is most important. And for the purpose trained, doctors who are experts must make no mistake when they O. K. the applicant who wants to make his home here. Many of those who come mis-translate the word liberty. They regard it as giving unbridled freedom and say 'liberty means license.' They have yet to learn the wholesome restraints of liberty.

Dr Herring took his audience through the purlieus of Ellis Island, and followed the trail of the immigrant from there to his various destinations, showing in the photographs thrown on the screen, people of every nationality under the sun, the process of elimination practiced to keep out the undesirable; and showed various groups of the kind of people America wants and one group of the worst class of what was termed the off-scourings of the slums of Europe and Asia.

From the dirty alleys and hidden places of New York, where it was shown many of the lower class of immigrants congregate, to the glowing western field, where immense armies of men, women and children have found not only refuge from tryanny at home, but a vertiable paradisein outdoor and free America. Views of the farms and the workers revealed the great contracts which exist between those who remain in the big cities and those who go to the farm land of the West and Northwest.

Following these were slides showing the actual work being done by the home missionaries and in connection with this Dr. Herring said: "Many immigrants have been church goers in their old homes, but if they are not looked after here and gathered into churches they become indifferent and drift into unbelief. Training those of foreign birth to work among foreigners is one of the quickest solutions of the problem. Many young men and women are being trained along these lines and they are giving splendid results. However, funds are greatly needed by the mission boards for every department of work among foreigners. It is found that by taking care of the childfen it is easy to reach the parents and thus build up for the country a desirable class of citizenship."

Among those who Dr. Herring mentioned as being among the foremost fruits of the civilizing force of Christianity among immigrants, was Jacob Riis, who is called the most useful citizen of New York; Carl Schurz, a national figure in American affairs for a half century; John Willis Baer, a man known in all denominations as one of the best sons of an immigrant that ever came to this country. "The making of foreigners into Americans offers the grandest mission work," concluded the speaker.

A. V. Searing, Jr., did admirably with the stereopticon, the pictures being clear and distinct.

DR. STANTON ADDRESSES LOCAL DENTAL SOCIETY

The Plainfield Dental Society held its quarterly meeting and banquet at the "Homestead," on Washington avenue, last night, the dinner being prepared and served by Mrs. Henry Johnson. After the dinner, the dentists listened to an excellent talk by Dr. Frederick L. Stanton, of New York, on the subject: "Orthodonthia or the Relation of the Malocclusion of the Teeth to the Development of the other parts of the Body." This was followed by a general discussion on the part of the dentists.

Among those present were Drs. F. S. Wells, Charles W. Moore, George Moore, W. E. Stelle, Charles G. Davis, R. W. Emerson, B. F. and C. W. Leonard, D. G. Atwood, Frank T. Clawson, E. A. Giddes, of this city. Dr. Hogan, of Dunellen, Dr. C. M. F. Egel, of Westfield. There were also representatives from Somerville and other nearby towns.

GIRL'S MOTHER MAKES DENIAL OF MARRIAGE

The marriage of Miss Margaret Watson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Watson, of Grant avenue, to John Watson, a cousin of Miss Watson, which has been rumored for the past two days, was positively denied today by the latter's mother and she requested this paper to make a denial of the rumor. According to the current report the couple eloped and were married on Wednesday and that the parents of Miss Watson received a telegram that day that the couple were going West.

When Mrs. Watson was asked about the matter today, she denied the story of the marriage, adding that her daughter has been home and is now at home. She further stated that she knows nothing about the actions of John Watson, but she wished to emphatically deny that he was married to her daughter. The couple is well known in this city. Miss Watson is about eighteen years of age and Mr. Watson is a few years her senior. The latter was employed as one of the local census enumerators this year.

BORROWED AN AUTO; ABANDONED IT LATER

Whether it was a joke or whether it was an ineffectual attempt to steal will probably never be known unless the person, or persons who took a Brush runabout belonging to Samuel Lounsbury, from in front of Carlton and Putnam avenue later abandoning the car at Watchung and Hillside avenues last night, come out and tell about it.

Mr. Lounsbury left the automobile on Carlton avenue while visiting friends at the corner of Putnam, but when he started to return to his home on East Seventh street his car was not in sight. After a fruitless search through the neighborhood he reported the car's disappearance to the police.

All patrolmen in the city were notified to be on the lookout for the machine and along about midnight Patrolman Wicht found it deserted and "cold" at the corner of Watchung avenue and Hillside. He reported his find and the car was recovered by the owner.

It is believed that a couple of hoodlums took the car for a ride about town and becoming frightened at what they had done abandoned the machine where it was found.

Funeral of Mrs. A. K. Kampman.

The funeral service of Mrs. Annie Katherine Kampman, widow of Joseph Kampman, were held yesterday afternoon at the late home on Madison avenue and was private. Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, of which Mrs. Kampman was a member for many years, officiated. The remains were taken to Bethlehem, Pa., yesterday afternon for burial in the family plot.

"A Man's Job" His Subject.

"A Man's Job," will be the subject of the discourse by Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring at the First Presbyterian church, Sunday morning. The sermon will be somewhat in line with a movement to form a Men's Conference Bible class at the church, similar to the one at the First Baptist church, taught by H. W. Herrman.

Suppers at Y. W. C. A.

The Young Women's Christian Association will commence this evening to serve supper for girls detained at the local stores on account of holiday trade. A substantial meal may be had between 5 and 7:30 from now until Christmas.

Clan Mackenzie was formally organized in the office of Robert Murray on East Front street, last night, when about fifteen Scotchmen met for that purpose. The organization is a branch of the Order of Scottish Clans and the name was chosen in honor of Edmund L. Mackenzie, who was present and thanked the members for the honor conferred upon him.

After the meeting was called to order, John M. Donaldson made a motion, which was adopted, that the organization be named Clan Mackenzie. Mr. Murray then spoke a few words upon the name of Mackenzie, giving a short history of the Mackenzies of Kintail Estate, Scotland, of which Mr. Mackenzie is a descendant.

Another meeting will be held Saturday night in Coward Hall on Park avenue, at 7:45 o'clock when the organization will be completed and officers will be elected. This order is thirty-two years old, having been started in St. Louis. It has paid out over two million dollars to widows and orphans of deceased clansmen. At the coming meeting an opportunity will be given all who may wish to join as charter members. Several officials of the order will be present and explain the benefits of the organization.

Jeremiah F. Garretson, baggagemaster at the North Avenue station, is detained at home with an attack of acute indigestion. He was reported today as being improved. During his absence, William Wilson, his assistant, is in charge of the work.

ACCUSED AS EMBEZZLER HELD IN $1,000 BAIL

Charged with embezzling $500 Julius A. Davis, manager of Max Schwartzman's fur store on East Front street, was held in $1,000 bail this morning by City Judge William N. Runyon for a hearing tomorrow morning at 9 o'cock. State Senator Silzer has been retained by Schwartzman to push the case and W. S. Angleman will look after the interests of Davis, the accused man.

Davis is about twenty-nine years old and has been manager for Schwartzman since September 1 and Mr. Schwartzman alleges that he has managed to dispose of property worth considerably more than the amount stated in the complaint during the past three months. He mentions specific amounts which have disappeared at certain times and claims that either the goods or money has been taken by Davis.

Owing to the fact that Senator Silzer was not notified of the case until late this morning he was unable to be present when Davis was arraigned. George W. Bird, who was first called by Davis and who learned of the charges against him declares his belief in the innocence of Davis and thinks that a mistake has been made. According to what can be learned of the alleged embezzler he bears a good reputation and came well recommended from friends of Mr. Schwartzman in New York.

POLICE CONFISCATED MANY SLOT MACHINES

Penny-in-the-slot machines of a variety which come under the head of gambling devices are under the police ban and yesterday a raid was made in various parts of the city and a half dozen of the machines taken from stores to headquarters. It has been learned that boys have been the greatest customers of the machines in trying to win a quarter for a cent. One boy on West Third street is known to have expended seventy-five cents, for each of which he received a piece of gum, but nary another prize.

It is the belief of the police that the gambling instinct is fostered by these machines and it is the intention to put a stop to their use in the city.

The six men who were haled to court this morning on a charge of running the machines all claim that they were put in their stores by an agent whose name they do not know, but who has his headquraters at Perth Amboy. Chief Kiely and others tried with upward of a hundred cents to make the coin drop into some other slot than the cent section but without success. All the other machines of this kind found in the city will be confiscated.

SENATOR SILZER'S VOTE TO BE CAST FOR MARTINE

Senator George S. Silzer, of Middlesex county, yesterday made a statement in which, while not mentioning James E. Martine by name, indicates plainly that he will vote for that gentleman for United States Senator. Mr. Silzer says he has not changed his views on the primary expression act, which can have no other meaning than that he stands with Governor-elect Woodrow Wilson in the matter.

The Senator said:

"I do not know why you ask me where I stand. My position has never been in doubt. I am publicly on record in the Senate and elsewhere. Why should I change now?

"I have many weaknesses, but I do not think that political instability is one of them."

Mr. Silzer declined to say anything further, believing that these words fully outlined his position.

The Senator helped to draft the Senatorial primary act and has been regarded as one of its most emphatic champions. Therefore his declaration that he has not altered his views can indicate nothing but a determination to vote for Martine.

FAVORS MERGER DEBATE

Recorder C. N. Dolliver Suggests That Consolidation Question be Debated.

BY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

"I Believe Plainfield and North Plainfield Will Be Ultimately Greater Plainfield," He Says.

Another borough official declares himself in favor of the consolidation of North Plainfield and Plainfield, Recorder Charles M. Dolliver, in response to a request from this paper for his views, stating that he is unequivocally for a merger. He shares the view of Mayor Newton B. Smalley that now is the time to effect a consolidation.

Recorder Dolliver says:

In responce to your request asking my opinion as to consolidation as some automobile manufacturers call their cars, "the ultimate car," so I believe that Plainfield and North Plainfield will be ultimately Greater Plainfield. Sometime—somewhere Maybe, "when the mists have rolled in splendor," & etc. So much has been said on the subject that there seems to be nothing more to add. Like the tariff, consolidation has been a prolific matter of discussion. For eight years or more it has been "before the people."

"I am in favor of the proposition It seems to be the logical conclusion of the matter. Yet there are sides taken. Our new Chamber of Commerce could well afford to have a good old fashioned debate on the subject. Get out the old maps and tables of figures, & etc., that were exhibited before the election in the Borough on the question, and see just what the objections were. Then, if advisable, have an act passed similar perhaps to the statute providing for the consolidation of the town of Irvington to the City of Newark as shown in the laws of 1908, page 537. Educate, and then vote and if a majority are in favor in the Borough the next step would be to ask the Mayor and Common Council of the city of Plainfield to consent thereto.

"Annexation would be a good topic to consider after consolidation is disposed of, if consolidation consolidates. If not—then something else."

GOOD FELLOWS ENLIST TO MAKE XMAS REAL

When Good Fellow was shown a letter addressed to Santa Claus this morning which read "I thoroughly enjoyed it last year and am very glad it is to be continued," he said: "That's what I call a man; I'd like to slap him on the back and tell him that the red corpusles are thick in him!"

Another charter member wrote that he would take care of ten children this year; and another said likewise. Three other red blooded fellows promised to provide for five poor little tots. And so it goes merrily on.

What's it all about? Read the letter to the Good Fellows of Plainfield published today on page three. And then act!

Shirley, Lemuel B. Woolston, F. A. Duttenhofer, D. W. Littell, J. V. E. Vanderhoef, Morris C. VanArsdale and John Ulrich.

Brown Held In $300 Bail.

Frank Brown, the local colored youth arrested in the borough, yesterday, on a charge of stealing a gold watch and chain from the home of James McKenna on Linden avenue, was arraigned before Justice Snape, this morning. He admitted his guilt and was held in $300 bail to wait the action of the grand jury. He was unable to secure the amount and was taken to the county jail this afternoon.

Columbus Club Inspection.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Monroe Avenue church, will give an informal reception and social for its members and friends tonight in the Epworth League house.

EASTERN STAR MEMBERS SURPRISE WORTHY MATRON

Lydia Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, gave a surprise party to the worthy matron, Mrs. C. H. Rugg, of Mercer avenue, last night. About sixty members of the organization and others formed the gathering.

The participants first met at Nagle's pharmacy and then proceeded to the house. Mrs. Rugg was entirely unprepared for their coming and was so greatly surprised it was several minutes before she could regain her composure.

The self-invited guests proceeded to make merry and enjoyed an informal program af dancing, games and music. Vocal selections were given by Mrs. C. M. Nagle and Mrs. W. W. Warnock and piano selections by Mrs. Herbert Woodard. Refreshments were served in conclusion by a committee composed of Mrs. A. E. Force, Mrs. W. W. Warnock and Mrs. Maragret Wilson.

EARLY MORNING FIRE IN WASHINGTON VALLEY

A barn on the farm occupied by Clarence Kellogg, and located on the Washington Valley road near the Moldenke castle, was totally destroyed by fire shortly before 6 o'clock yesterday morning. The contents included four tons of hay an a quantity of farming machinery, none of which were saved. The flames were plainly visible in the city and borough.

Mr. Kellogg was in bed when the fire broke out and was apprised of it by a neighbor. He believes that tramps are responsible as they were in the habit of sleeping in the place. It was located across the road from his house.

The place is owned by Mrs. George Giebelhouse, of West Front street, and her loss will be about $700. Kellogg's loss is placed at $300, without any insurance. His stock is kept in another building on the place. J. W. Gavett, the local crockery man, formerly leased the farm as a summer place.

PHOTOGRAPH SCHEME CAUSES POLICE ACTION

Photographs on the "chance" system, which means that it is a gamble whether you get your photographs after buying an innocent looking envelope, is being developed by a glib-tongued individual about five feet high and good looking, who claims to hail from Newark. While the pictures one gets may be of a high order the method is distinctively the police say, against the moral code and persons are warned against biting at the proposition.

Several complaints have come in to police headquarters about the scheme but as yet the police have been unable to catch the man who is generous enough to give away photographs, (if you are lucky). It would be better to shoo the man away if he comes to your door.

Knights of Columbus Elect.

Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, at its meeting this week elected these officers: past grand knight Francis J. Blatz; grand knight, H. P. Greenwood; deputy grand knight, C. W. Fogarty; chancellor, D. B. Doyle; recorder, Robert J. Bourke; financial secretary, Wilbur H. Schaeffer; treasuger, Miles Wilson; warden, George Taylor; advocate, Francis J. Blatz; inner guard, T. J. Parent; outer guard, Joseph Kennedy; trustee for three years, John C. Traynor; delegates to State convention, H. P. Greenwood and Francis J. Blatz; alternates, C. W. Fogarty and Wilbur H. Sscaeffer.

Planning Inaugral Ball.

Provided military etiquette prevails at the Inaugural Ball, January 17, when Governor-elect Woodrow Wilson takes office, he will lead the grand march with Mrs. Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, wife of the president of the Senate. There is every likelihood that there will be no change from this arrangement, as the ball is to be strictly a military affair the officers of the guard being in full dress uniform.

Christmas at Borough Schools.

The pupils at the North Plainfield schools are busy preparing for the customary Christmas exercises. They will be held a week from tomorrow at various times during the day. The members of the High school department will be addressed at 8:20 by Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church.

STATE SCHOOL PROBERS LISTEN TO SUGGESTIONS

Senator Frelinghuysen's Committee Welcomed Some Good Ideas of Plainfield's School Board

The Senate investigating committee appointed by the last Legislature to probe into the methods existing in the public schools of the State, of which Joseph S. Frelinghuysen is chairman, sat this morning in the Board of Education rooms in the High School and the result of the session proved that conditions in the Plainfield schools were such as to meet with the heartiest approval of the entire committee and instead of probing here they were willing to accept suggestions from our board for improvements which may later be made in schools throughout the State. Among the suggestions to which great attention was given were two by Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, that of compulsory vaccination and the other establishing free clinics at Muhlenberg Hospital, where those too poor to pay for medical attention might be treated free.

State Senator Frelinghuysen, Chairman State School Probers' Committee.

With Senate Frelinghuysen were State Senator William J. Bradley, Assistant State Superintendent of Schools J. B. Betts, Samuel St. John McCutchen, member of the State Board of Education, and John P. Murray, counsel for the committee. The committee were in convention from 10 until 12 o'clock and retired to North Plainfield for similar investigation at noon.

The first topic taken up by the committee was that of the disposition and location of school moneys deposited with the First National Bank. Mr. Arnold was sworn and said that in addition to receiving a salary from the city as its treasurer he also received $550 a year from the city as custodian of the school funds. He described the method of borrowing and stated that the city pays to the board each year the amount of the school tax at the end of each month. In December of each year the city pays to the board out of a contingency fund the difference between the school tax actually collected and the amount which was to be raised by means of the school tax. For the year 1909-10 an amount between $1,700 and $2,000 was so paid.

SMITH SUPPORTERS BEATEN IN BERGEN.

With only two members of the Bergen county committee dissenting a resolution was passed, Tuesday night indorsing the attitude of Governor-elect Wilson on the contest for United States Senator. The two recalcitrants were former Senator Henry D. Winton and John J. Hoey, treasurer of the county committee.

Mr. Hoey declared that James Smith, Jr., was responsible for the success of the Democratic party in the last election and should not now be turned down. He insisted that a more capable man than James E. Martine should represent the people in the United States Senate.

It was Mr. Winton's idea that the county committee was going too fast in passing such a resolution. It was time enough, he said, when the Legislature met to consider the Senatorship. As for Mr. Smith, the Bergen man said that the former United States Senator was a good man for the position.

The resolution follows:

We approve of going on record to do all in our power to uphold the hands of Governor-elect Wilson in his effort to carry out the pledges of the Democratic party made to the people, placing special emphasis on his attitude in the matter of the United States Senatorship.

The Wilson men were fought hard by the "old guard" adherents in the selection of county chairman, but succeeded in electing Robert Sibbald, county registrar-elect, over former Prosecutor Peter W. Stagg, by a vote of 18 to 15. A. Spencer Smith was chosen vice-chairman; William Rogers, secretary, and John J. Hoey, treasurer.

FORMER U. S. TREASURER CONVICTED; FRAUD CASE.

James N. Huston, former Treasurer of the United States; Harvey M. Lewis, of Buffalo, and Everett Dufour, a Washington lawyer, were convicted by a jury at Washington, D. C., Tuesday night of conspiracy to use the mails to defraud.

The three men have been on trial for about three weeks. The government produced evidence showing that they were connected with the National Trust Company, a concern incorporated in Delaware, the alleged object of which was to guarantee the stock and bond issues of corporations. The indictments followed a raid by postoffice inspectors upon the trust company. The government showed at the trial that the company operated through another company, the latter alleging that it was in a position to sell stock and bond issues if they were guaranteed by the National Trust Company at Washington.

Huston took the stand in his own defense and said that as soon as he learned that the company had a questionable reputation he withdrew from it, but that its scheme of guaranteeing stocks and bonds was feasible. Huston was prominent in the campaign which led to the nomination and election of President Harrison. After Harrison's inauguration he was appointed Treasurer of the United States and served a couple of years, resigning to engage in business in New York. Before entering politics he was a banker of Connersville, Ind.

Each of the convicted men may be sentenced to a term of not more than five years in the penitentiary. All were released on bond pending the hearing of a motion for a new trial.

Growth of Methodism.

The entire membership of the Methodist Episcopal church increased 63,047 last year, according to a statement made yesterday to the Chicago Methodist Ministerial Association by Rev. David G. Downey, corresponding secretary of the Board of Sunday schools. The secretary added: "We have ceased to expect accessions from the regular church and Sunday school meetings. We find that we can increase our membership only by occasional spectacular and sporadic meetings. We will have to have more spiritual character building work in our Sunday schools. We find we are getting nowhere by grading our classes and following the methods of public schools."

BASEBALL.

Dan McGann, one of the most noted baseball players in America and long with the New York Nationals, was found dead, shot through the heart, at Nic Bosler's cafe in Louisville, Ky., on Tuesday. The chambermaid went to the room to awaken him, but could not arouse him. In the afternoon she reported to the proprietor of the hotel, who went at once to see if McGann was sick. Not receiving an answer to his knocks Bosler broke the glass in the transom and pushed a hallboy through. The door was opened and the body of McGann was found lifeless on the bed.

Since the close of the baseball season McGann, as was his custom for many years, went to Louisvolle to spend the winter. He had several large checks, one for $9,000. His brother immediately took charge of the money.

Dennis L. McGann first played in the big league in 1899, when the Brooklyn National League Club drafted him. One year after he had played with Brooklyn the St. Louis Nationals purchased the fast infielder and after one year with the St. Louis club he went to the New York Giants. For six years he played with them and was captain of McGraw's pennant winning team.

GOLF.

The secretary, at the annual meeting of the Metropolitan Golf association at Sherry's Tuesday night, began his report by calling attention to the fact that a year ago there were fifty-nine clubs enrolled on the association's membership list, as against sixty-one now. During the year the Brooklyn Forest Park Club and the Manhattan Golf Club were admitted to the association, which is larger at present than at any time in its existence. In his reference to the Lesley cup competition the secretary spoke in part as follows:

"Although the Massachusetts team won the decisive match from the Metropolitan team, 10 points to 5, the contest was much closer than the score would indicate. In the singles three of the ten matches were carried to the last hole, one match was decided at the nineteenth hole and one was decided at the twentieth hole. In the afternoon two of the five matches were carried to the last green. So it will be seen that a few strokes might have changed the result, as in all cases except two the matches carried to the last green and extra holes were won by members of the Massachusetts team."

The treasurer's report showed a balance of $1,035.17, as compared with $961.13 last year. This is regarded as an exceptionally good showing, in view of the fact that the association for the first time financed the metropolitan open championship tourn[illegible]ent.

HERE AND THERE.

The Grand Lodge of Good Fellows of Plainfield wants you to read this:

Two youngsters, one a boy and the other a girl, both with stockings tumbled half way down to the shoetops, huddled close to a window in front of a Chestnut street store yesterday, says the Philadelphia Record. Their eyes were so close to the big plate glass and the Christmas display within that they did not notice that one of the crowd had stepped from the sidewalk procession and was listening to what they said.

"Who makes all dese 'ere scrumptious winders?" the little girl asked.

"Makes? Day aint maked. Dey just is, like everything else. Dey's just like de city hall and all t'other big buildings," the boy answered.

"But what's dey fur?" Dey ain't allus here, is dey?"

"Why, dey's here fur people to buy, course. What d'ye's s'pose, to look at?"

"But who buys 'em?"

"Why, de rich people. Dey buys 'em fur the kids to play wid."

"Sure, no, not kids like us'ns. Rich kids, I'm tellin' yer; kids whose old man's got more money 'n you an' me never seen. Rich kids, dey is."

"I wish I was rich," sighed the little girl as she flattened her nose against the pane and peered at the big doll that occupied the centre of the window. Then the boy pulled his companion by the arm and they dodged through the crowd to the next window.

The Boys' Battalion of the First Baptist church will hold its regular drill tomorrow night. In the near future the battalion will give an exhibition drill.

The chorus choir of the First Baptist church has begun the rehearsal of special music for Christmas, under the direction of Howard M. Case, organist and choir director.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet tonight and continue the nomination of officers.

TO THE "GOOD FELLOWS" OF PLAINFIELD

TO THE GOOD FELLOWS OF PLAINFIELD:

Just about this time last year I told you my story. You listened to it—you did more—you followed its spirit out in a bang-up style. I'm not claiming any credit for my story; I'm claiming credit for knowing that there are many Good Fellows in this fine old town of ours—royal chaps who don't do much preaching but when it comes to doing a good turn, well, they're there with the goods. This is no sermon that I'm handing you, it's a heart-to-heart talk with men with red blood in their veins, and here it is off last year's reel:

Last Christmas and New Year's eve you and I went out for a good time and spent from $10 to $200. Last Christmas morning hundreds of children awoke to an empty stocking—the bitter pain of disappointment that Santa Claus had forgotten them. Perhaps it wasn't our fault. We had provided for our own; we had also reflected in a passing way on those less fortunate than our own, but they seemed far off and we didn't know where to find them. Perhaps in the hundred and one things we had to do some of us didn't think of that heart sorrow of the child over the empty stocking.

Now, old man, here's a chance. I have tried for the last five years and ask you to consider it. Just send your name and address to The Daily Press—address Santa Claus—state about how many children you are willing to protect against grief over that empty stocking, inclose a two-cent stamp and you will be furnished with the names, addresses, sex, and age of that many children. It is then up to you, you do the rest. Select your won present, spend 50 cents or $50, and send or take your gifts to those children on Christmas eve. You pay not a cent more than you want to pay—every cent goes just where you want it to go. You gain neither notoriety nor advertising; you deal with no organization; no record will be kept; your letter will be returned to you with its answer. The whole plan is just as anonymous as old Santa Claus himself.

This is not a newspaper scheme. The Daily Press was asked to aid in reaching the good fellow by publishing this suggestion and to receive your communication in order that you may be assured of good faith and to preserve the anonymous character of this work. The identity of the writer of this appeal will not be disclosed. He assumes the responsibility of finding the children and sending you their names and guarantees that whatever you bestow will be deserved.

Neither you nor I get anything out of this, except the feeling that you have saved some child from sorrow on Christmas morning. If that is not enough for you then you have wasted time in reading this—it is not intended for you, but for the good fellows of Plainfield.

Perhaps a twenty-five cent doll or a ten cent tin toy wouldn't mean much to the children you know, but to the child who would find them in the otherwise empty stocking they mean much—the difference between utter disappointment and the joy that Santa Claus did not forget them. Here is where you and I get in. The charitable organizations attend to the bread and meat; the clothes; the necessaries; you and the rest of the good fellows furnish the toys, the nuts, the candies; the child's real Christmas.

GOOD FELLOW.

The Daily Press, one year ago, investigated the "good fellow" who wrote the above, looked him in the eye and put its O. K. on the plan. The cold blooded, blase representative who saw him wrote: "He made me feel, personally, that it would be really worth while in satisfaction to carry a little happiness to some children who otherwise wouldn't get any on Christmas eve." "Good Fellow" is not a professional philanthropist, he takes a drink, and even goes out at night with the boys for a mild good time—but he has taken care of from fifteen to twenty children a year in Plainfield. He said that a year ago last Christmas day he wished he had curtailed his holiday joy-making with the good fellows even more than he did, so that he might have had more money to gladden childish hearts.

The Worthy Grand Master of the lodge of Good Fellows has laid his plans for securing names through the Charity Organization Society.

This is how you can join the lodge of Good Fellows. Write a letter to "Santa Claus," care of The Daily Press, something like this:

I live at No.———— Street. I will be Santa Claus to 6 children.
John Jones.

The letter will go to Santa Claus. He will indorse on your letter the names and addresses of six children. That letter will be remailed to you. Then you get busy. That's all. Come on in, good fellows.

INVESTIGATE SCHOOLS

auditing the bills and the general system of conducting the financial transactions of the board." Leander N. Lovell, president of the board, suggested a change from the present system of awarding the school money from the State tax on the railroads. Mr. Lovell said that the money from the railroad taxes did not come in until December in each year, which necessitated the borrowing of money which cost the board interest at the rate of five per cent. He suggested that some measure be taken to make this money available earlier, thus making a saving and at the same time obviate a certain amount of trouble and time wasted.

DR. B VAN D HEDGES

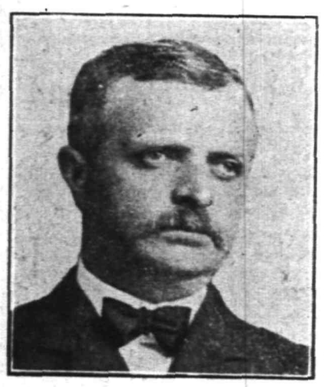
W. S. Tyler said that he favored the abolition of the present system of procedure regarding the distribution of State school funds. It goes through too long and roundabout way to get to its destination. And as a matter of fact he declared his belief that the payment of taxes for school purposes was more a matter of sentiment than anything else as the money comes out of the people indirectly through increased railroad fares.

Dr. Hedges said that he favored a law compelling vaccination. By this means it would be possible to prevent epidemics where such might be threatened and further would insure the children against diseases which might affect them at the most inconvenient time. Another suggestion offered by the doctor was that after the report of the examining physician is made a nurse follow up the case and see to it that the physician's recommendations are carried out. In cases where limited means prevented the engagement of a physician by the parents of the pupil he suggested the establishing of a free clinic at Muhlenberg Hospital where just such cases might receive attention. Going further Dr. Hedges said that the pupils suffering from adenoids and enlarged tonsils are backward from two to three years in their studies and he suggested operations for the relief of this class. An open air school, he thought, would be a splendid thing for this city. It has proved a blessing in Montclair and Orange and if a sufficient number of anemic pupils could be found in the local schools it would be a good thing to give them the open air treatment. He also said that at least 25 per cent. of the pupils' eyes were defective in some way.

James F. Buckle said relative to



Floyd T. Woodhull,
Member of Board of Education.

the selection of members for the board he favored the elective rather than the appointive system as in vogue in this city. There would be no advantage in an appointive board here. It might do in other places.

Superintendent Henry M. Maxson in reply to questions said that he had been superintendent for nineteen years and his experience had shown him that the recommendations of the medical examiners were worthy of the highest consideration. He was heartily in favor of Dr. Hedges' suggestions regarding the following up of medical treatment when recommended. Dr. W. J. Schaffluer, of Lakewood, who was present during the session, declared that Plainfield deserved the congratulations of the entire State for the splendid physical condition of the pupils. He said that he had found by a careful investigation that only two per cent. of the pupils of the schools were sub-normal, which is remarkable. In no place so far probed have things been found in so healthy a condition as in this city.

Superintendent Maxson submitted a thorough report of the dental examiners and made a comparative statement with the conditions existing last year. The report showed a distinct and gratifying improvement all along the line. So great was the showing that the entire investigating board retired showering congratulations upon the board for the excellent conditions found.

DEATH DUE TO PNEUMONIA FOLLOWING AN ACCIDENT

The funeral service of James M. Smith will be held at the undertaking parlors of A. M. Runyon & Son on Park avenue, at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and the burial will be in the family plot in Evergreen cemetery on Plainfield avenue.

Mr. Smith, as stated yesterday, died on Tuesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Theodore L. Craig, in Montclair, where he had been living since he suffered a stroke of paralysis a year and a half ago. He was practicaly an invalid, although with assistance was able to get about the house. Last Thursday, during the night he went to the bathroom alone, against his physician's orders, and fell. He lay there for some time before he was discovered and assisted to his room. Pneumonia developed and this caused his death.

Mr. Smith, who was seventy-five years old, was born in New Brunswick. He spent his boyhood days in Brooklyn, and for fifty-five years resided in this city. His home was on Elmwood place, where he lived with his son, William Montgomery Smith, since the death of his wife many years ago. He was a member of the First Baptist church. By trade he was a painter. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Theodore L. Craig, of Montclair, and Mrs. Clara Fuller, of Newark; also two sons, William Montgomery Smith and Ferdinand O. Smith.

SOMERSET TAX-BOARD MEETS IN THE BOROUGH

The Somerset county Board for the Equalization of Taxes met in the borough Council chambers this morning for the purpose of receiving petitions for reduction of assessments or complaints of taxes. The full board was present, comprising Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of the borough; P. V. D. VanDoren of Millstone, and S. A. Kenney, of Somerville. Assessor J. H. Cooley and Collector George F. Brown were also present.

About forty petitions were received in all, most of them for erasement of poll tax and several errors in levies. The following reductions on assessments were allowed: D. R. Weaver, $50; Augustus Smalley, $150; J. W. Dodge, $50; J. Y. Martin, $150; R. Elliott, $100; Israel Lewis, $100. These tax reductions were made. George C. Worth, bank stock sold a year ago $20.60; Chas. Lines, personal tax, left town, $4.12; estate John Tappin, duplicate real estate, $96.82; Egbert Scribner, error sidewalk, seventy-five cents; Edward Baker, Jr., duplicate personal, $3.06; William F. Campbell duplicate personal, $14.42. The poll tax was removed from twenty-five applicants on the ground of being old soldiers, exempt firemen and deaf mutes, and not of age.

PLAN FOR HUNDRED-YEARS' PEACE CELEBRATION.

The American Peace Society is planning to celebrate in December, 1914 ,100 years of peace betwen the United States, Great Brtiain and Canada. Opinoins of the plan have been solicited from educators and publicists in all three countries, and there appears to be a unanimous desire for such a celebration. The main difference of opinion are in regard to the form and method of the celebration so as to make it of lasting historical value and moral effectiveness in the national character of the countries interested. Hon. John W. Foster, former Secretary of State, thinks that lasting benefit can be secured by inaugurating a movement for a "permanent treaty of arbitration of an unlimited character." Senator Elihu Root is not prepared to say what form such a celebration should take, but that "it would have to be a matter of consultation between the representatives of the United States and Great Britian and her American colonies." Professor L. S. Rowe, of the political science department or the University of Pennsylvania, suggests an international conference of Canadian and American universities and colleges as fitting the occasion. Walter Camp, of course ,wants something in the way of international athletic meets.

Lord Courtney ,of Penrith ,England, president of the International Peace Congress, London ,1908 urges the carrying out of disarmament on the Great Lakes of the American continent, and to use influence to neutralize other waters. An English authority on international law, Professor Thomas J. Lawrence, suggests the wide circulation of a record of the development of the arbitral process between these countries, and a "vivid representation by tableaux or otherwise of the great deeds done by pioneers of civilization on both sides of the frontier during the past century." Judge J. W. Longley, Halifax, N. S., thinks the celebration should be intellectual. "The tendency of the age is towards the spectacular," he says, "but I think that more permanent results could be attained by noble utterances of great representative men of the two countries—Great Britain being included—than by the organization of mere Callithumpian show." The Mayor of Halifax,Joseph A. Chrisholm, strongly expresses himself as follows: "War between people speaking the same language, drawing the best blood largely from the same common sources, and devoted substantially to the same political and social ideals, is so utterly repugnant to our civilization that we may confidently hope that the first century of peace between Britain and the American republic may be followed by another and another. and that between them there shall be no more war."

Touching Memories.

There were introductions all round. The big man stared in a puzzled way at the club guest. "You look like a man I've seen somewhere, Mr. Blinker," he said. "Your face seems familiar. I fancy you have a double. And a funny thing about it is that I formed a strong prejudice against the man who looks like you—although, I'm quite sure, we never met."

The little guest softly laughed. "I'm the man." he answered, " and I know why you formed the prejudice I passed the contribution plate for two years in the church you attended."—Everybody's Magazine.

Our Great Adviser.

"I suppose your wife still writes to the Woman's Home Journal for advice on different questions that come up in the management of your home?" asks the man with the stringy white whiskers.

"No, sir," replies the man with the diffident eyebrows. "She writes to Mr. Roosevelt now."—Judge.

Meats and Serials.

"Dr. Wiley says the reduced meat prices are fictitious."

"They certainly are novel."—Exchange.

Hastily Amended.

"Do you and your wife agree?"

"Oh yes, always—at least, I do."

GETS $100 AS A BALM FOR BEING ASSAULTED

Adolph Limon, who formeryl worked as hostler at Maul's Hotel, at Watchung, obtained judgment for $100 in the Somerset District Court, before Judge Isaac P. Runyon, at Somerville, at this week's session of the court, against Peter Fugleman, for an assault alleged to have been committed on him by Fugleman on May 29, last. Counsellor W. S. Angleman represented Limon, and Counsellor S. S. Swackhamer, of Codington & Swackhamer, represented Fugleman.

Limon claimed that Fugleman assaulted him in the barn of Maul's Hotel, the last Sunday evening in May, when he objected to Fugleman taking away some pigeons, and that as a result of the assault he had been severely bruised, his eyes and nose damaged, and that he had lost a tooth. Dr. Albert Pittis, of East Front street, attended Limon, and testified to the injuries.

Counter charges of criminal assault were made, Limon made a charge against Fugleman before Justice Hughes, who held Fugleman for the grand jury. Fugleman made a charge against Limon before Justice Snape, who dismissed the complaint. Fugleman was indicted by the grand jury at the September term of court, and at first pleaded not guilty but later changed his plea to non vult, and was fined $50 by the court.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Robinson, of 640 West Third street, are the proud parents of a little girl born on Tuesday.

BAKING POWDER

NOT YET, BUT SOON.

The friends who late
Beside the sea
Tripped back and forth
So daintilee
Are kissing good-bys
To the foam,
And packing all
Their trunks for home;
They'll tell of
Lovely times they've had,
Of fish they caught,
And of how glad
They were when night
Came with the moon,
And they could sit
Outdoors and spoon
Beside the ever
Spoony sea;
And they'll believe
All this they tell—
After their skeeter
Bites are well.

WHY HE LINGERED.

Wise—Old Boozer has been hovering at death's door for nearly a week.

Sharpe—Guess he can't find the keyhole.

From Day to Day.

One day a mighty scarehead tells
How Zeppelin's great airship flew,
Next day we read how a gay breeze
Sideswiped and tore the thing in two.

In Spite of It.

The foolish season isn't really due yet, but in the east they are passing around the question: "Does it hurt a girl's chance of marrying if she graduates from a college?"

Perhaps it might be well right here to paraphrase Speaker Cannon's reference to the handicap of a university education—a great many girls are marrying in spite of it.

A Safe Lead.

"I hear Lem Boggs Sundayed with ye, deacon?"

"Ya'as."

"Goin' to lose yer darter, eh?"

"I reckon, but not to Lem. Zeb Higgs Mondayed, Tuesdayed, Wednesdayed and Thursdayed with us. I judge Zeb is the luckyman."—Success Magazine.

Her Own Orthographer.

"Have you an unabridged dictionary?" inquired the professor, who was writing a letter.

"Certainly not," replied Mrs. Cumrox, "I examined one and saw at a glance that the book is intended for people who don't know all about orthodoxy and entomology."

He Had More.

The Old Gentleman—For heaven's sake, young man, point that gun the other way and be careful how you handle it. First thing you know it will go off.

The Young Hunter—Aw, dat's all right. I don't care ef it does; I got plenty more cartridges.

More Natural Facilities.

"So you like the seashore better than the mountains?"

"No, indeed; I prefer the mountains."

"Then why are you goin to the seashore?"

"Because it is easier there to get into the swim."

BOOMING THE BUSINESS.

Jim—I wonder why that girl always tells a fellow when he kisses her that he needs a shave?

Jack—Her father is a silent partner in the barber shop next door.

How It Happened.

"I'm down and out," he muttered low,
And sadly dropped his chin.
"A friendly deal went in the air,
And I was taken in."

The Angel Crab.

Borrowby—The scheme would be a howling success if I could secure the proper backing, and——

Grimshaw—The only backing I am doing this year is out.—Puck.

At Times.

"A farmer's life is often hard, isn't it?"

"Yes; at times it is harrowing."

Quite a Relief.

"She spoke to me very coolly."

"You ought to be grateful to her. It's a hot day."

NEW ROUGH WOOLS.

Materials For This Winter's Suits Are of Very Light Weight.

Though Coarse Faced, They Are Surprisingly Soft—Odd Coats and Belts of Various Shapes and Styles Give Unusual Grace.

With the return of rough faced wools come some new materials of astonishing lightness in weight. Ratine, one of the first to arrive, is the apotheosis of the knotted faced chinchilla, but is as light in weight as some silks. In fact, this wool promises a big run once it becomes possible to buy it by the yard. As yet it is scarce and has been seen on very few counters. It first came over in imported suits this fall. The weave is an old one, but in its former vogue it was heavy of weight and not the supple fabric it is in its transformation.

It is a puzzle to any one feeling these new, thick, coarse faced wools to find them so light and soft. Even the tweeds, cheviots, homespuns and worsteds and all the rest of the sturdy suitings are reduced to a minimum of weight. And every one is soft and falls limp without effort.

The tweeds are uncommonly lovely this year—the tweeds and homespuns. All the beautiful low toned colors are found in them—the wood browns, dun grays, old purples, dull tawny yellows and old blues. In the suits and sumptuous coats of the day, with their big revers collars sometimes covering the entire front, these suitings are passing effective.

The suit in our drawing is made of one of the mixed tweeds with the broken stripes introduced to give variety of line. The hat with the suit is made of the same material trimmed with ribbon and shaded feathers.

Odd belt arrangements are a feature of new suits. They encircle the entire waist or crop out wherever the designer sees fit to bring them into view. Many of the coats made of sturdy wools are very short, of mere hip length, and they run into odd little variations in the peplums and fronts. Necks are furnished with collars and big lapels or with bretelle effects, with collarless necks and even with military collars. The collar may be almost anything that the wearer wishes.

The outlining of the coats with braid and other trimmings at the bottom is one of the pretty features just now in ready to wears. Hercules braid several inches wide is the most used trimming, though soutache still appears, but usually in conjunction with the wider braid. Quantities of embroidery are employed on suits intended for dress wear. And there are original little waistcoat effects for open fronts.

Storm Coats.

The season for traveling is not yet over, but the maid who ventures forth now must look out for storms and rough weather. For her benefit has been revived the old fashioned storm coat of rough serge or cheviot, with long "waterproof" cape and wide kimono sleeves. The coat is long, reaching entirely to the bottom of the dress, and is double breasted as a further protection against rain and cold, being fastened by a double row of big buttons. It has the advantage of being perfectly adaptable to home make, since it is simple in cut and plain in appearance. As an idea of the amount of material required it may be said that a thirty-six bust measure, an average size, requires about five and one-quarter yards of fifty-four inch material.

To Clean Hairbrushes.

Dissolve some soda in a little hot water, then fill up the bowl with cold. Dip the bristles of the brush in, take out and shake well. Repeat this several times until the brush is quite clean. The water, being almost cold, will prevent the bristles turning yellow, and if the bowl is wide the back of the brush will be kept dry.

KING COAL.

While He Lives His Throne Is Fixed In the United States, Thus Insuring Peace With All Nations.

The part played by coal in the world's affairs can well be illustrated by assuming the available supply to be suddenly cut off. The huge railroad systems of America would stop at once. So also would the electric power and lighting in all cities and suburbs. Steamship service would cease everywhere. Transit facilities would be dead. Factories, manufactories and shops would close down. Vast industries like steel, iron, copper, etc., would cease. Armies of laborers would be thrown out of work. Mails, schools, the navy, newspapers, foreign and internal trade—all would cease to exist. The trilogy governing commercial advance, heat, light and power, except a negligible amount of water, oil, etc., would be annihilated—all this until some other form of power could be developed. The possibility of such a cataclysm is not imminent, for coal will reign for some time yet and is destined to become a power whose capabilities have as yet been comparatively felt only more faintly than would a feather on the hide of an elephant.

The world needs coal. The United States has that coal to deliver. It will be wholly natural that so potent a necessity will make for continued peace and understanding among the powers of the world.

The coal mines of Europe are sunk about 3,000 feet deep. Coal is still being quarried on the banks of the Ohio, and the mines of Europe are nearing the limit of commercial possibility. The manufacturing supremacy of the old world is passing to the new. Coal is king, and while he lives his throne is fixed forever in the United States.—Metropolitan Magazine.

EARLY CARICATURES.

Quaint Art and Humor of the Ancient Egyptians.

The fables of Aesop prove that the ancients were not without a liking for fun, and the remains of ancient art tell the same story. Examples of artistic humor are more common than is generally supposed.

A drawing on a tile in the New York museum represents a cat dressed as an Egyptian woman of fashion. She is seated languidly on a chair, sipping wine out of a small bowl and being fanned and offered dainties by an abject looking tomcat with his tail between his legs.

The cat figures largely in the ancient comic groups of animal life. In a papyrus in the British museum a flock of geese are being driven by a cat and a herd of goats by two wolves with crooks and wallets. One of the wolves is playing a double pipe.

There is in Turin a papyrus roll that displays a whole series of such comical scenes. In the first place, a lion, a crocodile and an ape are giving a vocal and instrumental concert. Next comes an ass dressed, armed and sceptered like a pharaoh. With majestic swagger he receives the gifts presented to him by a cat of high degree, to which a bull acts as proud conductor. A lion and a gazelle are playing at draughts, a hippopotamus is perched in a tree, and a hawk has climbed into the tree and is trying to dislodge him.

Another picture shows a pharaoh in the shape of a rat drawn in a carriage by prancing greyhounds. He is proceeding to storm a fort garrisoned by cats having no arms, but teeth and claws, whereas the rats have battle axes, shields and bows and arrows.—St. Louis Republic.

An Elixir of Life.

"An annuity is the best elixir of life I know of," said the examining physician of an insurance company. "It sometimes seems as if annuitants never die. We have lots on our books who top eighty, ninety and even ninety-five years. I have passed many a sickly and decrepit old fellow as a good annuity risk—the sicklier they are, you know, the better risk they make—and the next year he has turned up to collect his annuity rejuvenated, rosy, spry as a boy. The secret? The secret is that financial worry, fear of the poorhouse, ages and kills off more people than all the deadly diseases combined. Release an old man by means of an annuity from all this worry, and he throws off his years and walks erect and happy and fearlessly young."

Hatmaking In the East Indies.

The making of bamboo hats is one of the chief industries of the natives of the East Indies, and quite often the children are more expert than their mothers in weaving the strips together and forming the designs, their fingers being younger and more supple. In transporting the long stalks of bamboo to the factory the natives tie the ends of two stalks together, spread them apart a short distance forward of the center, tie a crosspiece between and carry them on their shoulders.—Popular Mechanics.

Soused.

Wife—My husband came home from the club last night with such a swelled head that I haven't been able to arouse him today. Neighbor—Why don't you try pouring a pitcher of water over his head? Wife—I did that very thing, but the only thing he did was to call out for an umbrella.—Fliegende Blatter.

Love Taps.

Mrs. Jawback—I suppose you consider your judgment far superior to mine, Mr. Jawback—No, my dear. We proved the contrary when we chose to marry each other.—Cleveland Leader.

No one who cannot master himself is worthy to rule.—Goethe.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 18, 1910.

Topic.—If we really love Jesus.—John xiv, 15-24. Edited by Revs. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

In the Christian life, how much depends upon our really loving Christ? We may think we love Him or profess that we love Him when we really do not. If so love for Christ is not genuine and we cannot claim the promise of the New Testament based upon the real, genuine love of Christ.

There may be some professing Christians who doubt whether we can tell if we really love Christ. But such a doubt is absurd. We have no trouble in deciding whom we love among our earthly friends. We delight to be in their company, to tell them the secrets of our life, to receive confidences from them and to keep them, to do anything we can to make their life better and happier. This may seem more like friendship than love, and perhaps it is, when between members of the same sex, but otherwise it is love.

But love applied to other things, such as king or country, is determined practically upon another basis, and that is our willingness to obey them. If a man really loves his country and it is in danger he will obey the call of sovereign and be willing, if necessary, to sacrifice his life for its protection or preservation. Christ thus makes obedience the test of our love to Him. "If ye love Me," He says, "keep my commandments." We are to manifest our love by our obedience to Him, and the reverse is true, "He that hath My commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth Me." It is not only true that if we love Christ we will keep His commandments, and, on the other hand, if we keep His commandments it is proof that we do love Him and are His friends and disciples. "Ye are my friends if ye do whatsoever I command you."

The relation of Christ to man is most unique. It differs from any other relationship that exists in life, whether it be our loved ones by nature or our friends or our relation to other forms of creation. He is our Saviour and thus demands our love. He is our supreme King, our King of kings, and therefore has a right to our absolute obedience. We must love Him above father, mother, sister or brother or country, and above them we should love Christ or we are not worthy of Him. If country calls to that which is contrary to the laws of God "we ought to obey God rather than man." He who would not leave father or mother for His sake does not know what real love for Christ is. As He is supreme in our lives, so we must render a supreme loving obedience to Him.

Loving Christ and obeying Him results in blessings to us. We abide in His love. God's love is extended toward us. The blessing of the presence of the Holy Spirit in our hearts is another derived benefit from real love to Christ and the keeping of His commandments. Love inspires love as iron sharpeneth iron. "We love Him because He first loved us." He not only loved us, but gave Himself for us. Let us therefore love Him and prove it by the test of obedience.

BIBLE READINGS.

Deut. vi, 4-7; x, 12, 13; Matt. xxii, 17-22; Mark xii, 28-33; Luke x, 25-28; John xv, 8-14; Acts v, 25-29, 41; Rom. viii, 29; Phil. i, 29; Heb. xii, 1-3; I John iv, 19-21.

Two Australian Projects.

The Victoria (Australia) Christian Endeavor union has just established a "paper exchange." Many able papers on Christian Endeavor subjects are read at the various meetings. The idea of the exchange is to get copies of such papers and supply them to such societies as may request help of this kind. In this way addresses would be given again and again. This same union is getting up "a complete list of work for each committee." The societies are asked to send in lists of work done by the various committees. From this information a list of work for each committee will be compiled. When any committee wishes to know what similar committees have done an application for the list of work will bring the information.

An Anti-slang Brigade.

Last November seven Intermediate Christian Endeavorers of the Lodi (Cal.) Congregational church organized an anti-slang brigade. Today the membership is more than forty, and it is growing fast. Their motto is, "Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth but that which is good to the use of edifying, that it may minister grace to the hearers." There are no pledges or fines. The brigade is interdenominational, and its members are largely drawn from the high schools. Bimonthly meetings are held, and members tell of progress in getting rid of their slang. The brigade has an emblematic pin, a shield with the letters "A. S. B." A president, a vice president and a secretary are the only officials.

AN ENDEAVOR DAY.

At light of day
A lift of prayer
To chase away
A word of care;
At noonday's hour
A calm retreat
To break the power
Of some defeat.
Thus with the eve
Is falling ever
The benediction
Of Endeavor.
—John R. Clements.

The Gentleman in the Straw Hat

By Philip Kean

(Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.)

"It's the gentleman in the straw hat, miss," said the little maid.

"It's a most inconvenient time to see him," Catharine said.

"But he insists."

Catharine trailed the snowy lengths of her satin gown toward the door. "I suppose I shall have to see him," she said. "Did he give any name?"

"No," the maid replied, "but he is the same gentleman that came the other day. I knew him by his straw hat. It seemed sort of strange for a gentleman to be wearing a straw hat in winter."

"Yes, it does," Catharine said, and went downstairs.

Catharine greeted the stranger somewhat coolly. She had suspicions of a book agent, although a second glance at the man before her rather dispelled this idea. He was shabby. He came to the point at once. "I want to paint your picture," he said.

Catharine looked at him haughtily. "Why, I don't know you." Her voice had in it a note of anger, but he did not seem disturbed.

"I want to paint your picture," he repeated. "You are the most beautiful woman I have ever seen."

Catharine stood up. "You have not seen me long enough to call me beautiful."

"I have seen you many times," he said, "and last night as you came out and crossed the snowy pavement on the way to your motor, I was standing on the steps. You were wrapped in white furs and there were diamonds in your hair. I thought of the 'Snow Queen' about whom I used to read in my fairy books."

Catharine leaned toward him eager with interest. "I remember," she said, "but how cruel she was."

"Yes," he agreed, "yes; but your beauty—the wonderful white of the snow, the white of your furs—I want them on my canvas—I must have them."

But again Catharine repelled him haughtily. "I do not know you," she said.

His head went up. "I have no reputation," he admitted, "and I am poor and struggling for recognition, but I love my art. I know I am asking much, but no one will ever paint you better than I shall paint you."

It was said with the calmness of one who knows what he can do, and in spite of his shabbiness, in spite of the peculiar circumstances of his coming, Catharine felt herself drawn by some irresistible force into acquiescence.

"Of course I could not come alone," she said.

"I do not wish you to come; I have no sudio. I want to paint you here."

His demand was made so quietly, with such perfect assurance that it would be granted, that again she gave in weakly. When he had gone, however, and she told at the table of the strange circumstance her mother exclaimed against the unconventionality, and her father spoke of the danger of admitting an unknown man to the house. Her cousin, Betty Barnes, however, who was spending the winter with her, thought it something of an adventure.

"It has been so deadly dull lately," she said, "just teas, receptions and things. Can we all come in and see him paint you, Catharine?"

"Of course you can," Catharine answered, "but he won't interest you, Betty. He is the shabbiest man you ever saw."

But as Catharine learned to know the painter she found that it was not poverty alone that made him wear a straw hat. So completely was he wrapped up in his art that he thought little of the things that rule the average man.

Gradually under his hand the picture was taking on great beauty. While he painted he talked to her. He had been everywhere, seen everything. She listened, and, when he left, wished that she might listen still.

"You are falling in love with him," Betty accused her.

Catharine's heart beat quickly, but outwardly she was as calm and cold as the lady in the picture. "As if I could love a man who wears a straw hat in winter," she said.

"I could love a man like your painter," Betty said.

It was when the picture was almost finished that the artist demanded something more of Catharine.

"Tomorrow," he said, "will be my last day here with you—it will be my last day of happiness."

She looked at him, her eyes shining, her cheeks flushed. "Why should it be your last day of happiness?" she asked.

"Because I must leave you," he told her.

For a moment they looked at each other and the eyes of the girl told the man something that he knew her lips would not utter. He took a quick step toward her, then stopped. "You would never marry me," he said, "even if I dared ask you. I have called my picture 'The Lady of the Frozen Heart.' It is not that you have no heart—but you are cold."

She caught her breath quickly. The look had died out in her eyes. "I am glad you know me so well," she said, and presently she left him and went away. He painted until dark came, and then sat there without the light, dreaming in the big chair near the fireplace.

Presently some one came in softly. It was Betty Barnes. She came over and looked at him. "I have found you out," she said slowly.

His eyes tried to pierce the dimness, as he laughed softly. "Oh, Betty Barnes," he said, "who told you?"

Betty touched the button and turned on the electric light. "Let me look at you," she said. She surveyed him while he smiled down at her. "It was your pointed beard and the tan that deceived me," she told him confidentially, as she settled herself in another big chair. "I had seen some one who looked like you, but it wasn't until yesterday that I traced the resemblance to the picture that hung over my brother's desk at college."

The artist nodded. "Yes, I poured tea for you the time that you came on to see Jack's room. I have been abroad since them and have learned to paint, and I fell in love with Catharine at the opera. I did not know a soul to present me to her. I did not dream that you were here, and I was bound that I would paint her picture. So I made up my mind to come here in an eccentric costume, so that she might think that I was some dreamy artist whom she could admit because he fancied himself a genius and because she might help him to fame."

Betty laughed. "And now you are afraid to 'fess up.'" she said.

"Do you think she would ever forgive me? She is so distant, so cold, so hard to touch."

"That shows how much you men know about it," Betty said, scornfully. "She is dead in love with you right this minute."

But he would not believe it. "There was a look in her eyes today that made me hope for a minute."

"It's a man's place to let a girl know that he cares."

But even wise little Betty did not know Catharine, for the lady of the frozen heart was in her room, dreaming with her eyes on her own little fire, the flames of which cast shadows over her thoughtful face. "He loves me," she said to herself, "but he is poor and afraid to tell me." So a little later she crept down to him.

Betty had gone after an admonition. "Don't tell her how rich you are, at first," she said, "or it will spoil the romance for her."

As Catharine entered the room she found the man who loved her gazing at the picture he had painted. She crept up behind him softly. "I want you to paint another," she said.

He turned to her quickly. "Another picture?" he stammered.

"Yes," she said, "I want you to paint me as the 'Lady of Dreams.' I don't want any snow or ice or frozen things, but flowers and sunshine. You have made me a thing of ice and hardness—I want you to paint me as a woman who can love."

He stood silent before the beauty of her surrender. "Could you even love a gentleman in a straw hat?" he asked.

"I could love—you."

After a time, when they had said all the wonderful first things that lovers must tell, he explained his deception. "There was no necessity for the straw hat," he told her, "nor for the shabby clothes." But he did not let her know that he was rich, he wanted first to paint her as his "Lady of Dreams" and to feel the happiness of the man who knows that not because of his position, not because of outward things, is he beloved, but because of his own true worth.

A Bishop's Conversion.

At a London (Eng.) East End temperance demonstration in the People's palace quite recently, the Bishop of Stepney related how he was converted last summer to total abstinence.

It was, he said, when he was working in the hopfields of Kent. He had always been, he hoped a very moderate drinker, but for four days in the hop gardens he had tasted the pleasures of total abstinence, drinking tea and lemonade. At the age of fifty-six he tried this experiment, and he had gone on with it ever since. As a total abstainer he had been quite as well as he ever was before. He went to a doctor, who was not a total abstainer, and said: "Should you advise me to go on?" The doctor asked him two questions—"Are you sleeping as well as ever?" and "Are you eating as much?" He replied that he was doing both rather better, and the doctor said the practise could be judged by its results.

HOW THEY MET

Edward Pemberton was scanning a newspaper at his club when his eye lit upon the following death notice:

Fairweather.—Augustus C. Fairweather. Funeral from his late residence, 74 Du Post avenue, at 11 a. m. Thursday, April 14.

"Singular," mused Pemberton, "that there is no age put in. I suppose I must go. His mother would never forgive me if I stayed away."

He looked at his watch and, seeing that he had just time to reach the house before the ceremony, left the club and proceeded thither, arriving as the obsequies were beginning. Directly opposite him sat a very pretty young woman, on whom his eyes were riveted all through the services. When they were over and the family and intimate friends were entering the carriages to follow the dead to the cemetery Pemberton saw the lady who had caught his fancy handed into the last carriage in the train. He stepped to the carriage, was ushered in by the attendant, the door was closed and the carriage driven away. There was no one inside except the lady and Mr. Pemberton.

It is not to be supposed that a lady and gentleman will drive several miles alone together without a word. In this instance it was incumbent on the lady to speak first, and she did so.

"I noticed," she said, "that the age of the deceased was omitted from the death notice. Do you know how old he was?"

"I noticed that myself," replied Pemberton, a bit flustered. "Gus was always sensitive about his age, and I dare say he left it out on purpose."

The lady looked at him wonderingly. "I mean," added Pemberton hastily—"I suppose that the family, knowing of his preference in the matter, omitted it."

"One of the Fairweathers wrote a delightful novel, I believe, 'Her Conquest.'"

"Martin Fairweather. He had great talents. It's a pity he was cut off while entering on a brilliant career."

"Was 'Her Conquest' a posthumous work?"

"No," replied Pemberton; "he was forming plans how to follow up the situation. "I think he wrote it before he died."

Again the lady looked up suddenly, and Pemberton explained that he meant the book was published while the author was yet living.

"Are you an intimate friend of the family?" she asked.

"No, Gus' mother and mine are very dear friends. I have known Gus fairly well, but not intimately. And you, I suppose you are close to him?"

"A very distant relative, though I confess I scarcely know them."

On the way home Pemberton ventured to ask permission to call upon the lady, which was granted. She introduced him to her family as an intimate friend of the Fairweathers whom she had met at Augustus Fairweather's funeral. It happened that several friends who saw her with her new devotee asked her where she had met him. Stories grow by telling, and at last she explained that he was a friend of her cousin, poor Gus Fairweather, who had recently died.

But a few months had passed before there was an engagement between Pemberton and Miss Anita Brown, the lady he had met at the Fairweather funeral. The courtship being short and Mr. Pemberton being known to very few of Miss Brown's friends, the engagement occasioned great surprise among them. The first question always was "Where did she meet him?" and the reply always was: "He was a bosom friend of Gus Fairweather, and the Fairweathers, you know, are close kin to the Browns. They first saw each other while poor Gus was being lowered in the grave. Wasn't it a melancholy meeting to result in such a happy event?"

One day some months later Pemberton and his wife were walking together when suddenly the former stopped and stood stock still. He was white as a sheet and trembled all over, looking straight before him.

"Edward!" gasped his bride. "What is it?"

Pemberton put his hand to his brow. "Am I all right? Do I dream?"

"Oh, Edward!"

Meanwhile a young man approached and called: "Hello, Pemberton! How are you? This is the lady, I suppose. I've heard all about it. Met at my uncle's funeral. Am glad the old duffer brought some happiness before he died. He never did while he lived."

"W-where were you when—your uncle—died?" stammered Pemberton.

"In Europe. Didn't know anything about it till I got home. And how do you suppose I first heard it? Why, at being told of the romantic attachment that had been started between Ned Pemberton and Miss Anita Brown while weeping over the old fellow's grave!"

"There was no age mentioned in the notice."

"Age? Nobody knew. He was old as the hills!"

By this time Pemberton had regained his equanimity, and Mrs. Pemberton, who had never seen Fairweather, knew that a mistake had been made.

"Come and see us," she said.

"Do," added her husband.

"We shall always feel an interest in your uncle's demise," said Pemberton, "since his interment was the means of bringing us together."

The trio became very intimate, but Fairweather never knew that the Pembertons had supposed they had attended his own f[illegible]

LIKES WILSON'S ATTITUDE

Henry Van Dyke Believes Governor-Elect's Attitude Right.

ON SENATORIAL SITUATION.

Signally Fair and Honorable Says Eminent Scholar—Brave, Upright and Forward-looking.

That Governor-elect Woodrow Wilson's attitude in relation to the senatorial situation has met with the approval of such an authority as Henry Van Dyke is shown by the subjoined letter to the New York Times.

To the Editor of The New York Times:—

The position of Governor-elect Wilson of New Jersey in regard to the Senatorial contest has an interest for thoughtful men of all parties. It involves one of those moral issues which raise questions of mere politics to the level of polit-ethics. As a matter of fact, the issue has been invoked by those who have attacked Dr. Wilson's position as unfair and treacherous. The ground on which it is to be defended, the ground on which it seems to me admirable and praiseworthy, is not that it is a prudent or a politic position, but that it is signally fair and honorable.

It represents the action of a man who feels bound by the only pledges that he made in his campaign—his pledges to the people whom he asked to vote for him on the basis of certain assurances. It was on these pledges that he won a sweeping majority. Democrats voted for him because they wanted a better Democracy. Republicans voted for him because they thought the experiment worth trying under his auspices. Now he stands up and acts like a man who considers his pre-election promises really binding. It was precisely such action that brought Grover Cleveland into trouble—and ultimately into honor and glory.

This is not a political letter. I am not even a passive candidate for any office, and have not the advantage of acquaintance with either of the leading candidates for the Senatorship from New Jersey. Nor is this an academic letter. It has no connection with Princeton University, which as an institution of learning, is and ought to be free from all partisan bias or activity. This is a personal letter on a question of public morals, on which any citizen has a right to form and express his opinion without reference to his ecclessiastical, academic, or political connections. Churches will decay, universities wither, and parties rot, if plain moral questions are twisted, obscured, or smothered.

Here is a concerte case. Dr. Wilson was elected on a platform which indorsed the principle of direct primaries in Senatorial nominations. Under the law approved and supported by his party, an overwhelming majority of those who chose to exercise the privilege thus conferred upon them expressed themselves definitely in favor of a certain Democratic nominee for the Senatorship. It is idle and silly to talk, in this connection, of those who did not choose to vote. They may be counted next time, if they wish, but not this time. The only ones to be considered this time are those who voted. And they have a moral right, irrespective of the wisdom or unwisdom of their votes, to expect their party to keep faith not only with them but with all the people of the State, and to give effect to the result of the primary.

How could Governor-elect Wilson keep silent on a question like this without lying? It is true that it will not be his duty to take part in the voting of the Legislature which sends a man to represent New Jersey in the National Senate. No doubt he is glad of that. It is equally true that it is his duty now to oppose any attempt of his party to disregard the promises which were made to the people before election. No doubt he is not exuberantly glad of that necessity. It is not what you would call a radiant and restful recreation which is presented to him. But none the less it is inevitable. Dr. Wilson did run for the Governorship only. He ran also, publicly and avowedly for the leadership of his party in the service of the State. All those who voted for him in both parties understood what he was running for. He got it. An immense majority of his fellow-citizens expressed their judgment that he was fit both to govern the State and to lead his party. In refusing to forfeit that leadership by a consenting silence in a crisis which involved the honor of his party he is only keeping his word. In keeping his word he acts well and wisely, and justifies the hopes which elected him, not to be the figurehead of a pussillanimous and perfidious Democracy, but to be a real man of courage and integrity in the front of public affairs.

His ordeal by fire has come to him, earlier than usual, at the outset of his political career. He meets it, as far as we can judge, with calmness and fortitude and justice, without violence or abuse. Much will depend for the future, upon the backing which his fellow-citizens give him in this first trial. And I, as one of them, expecting soon to leave the institution where my humble judgment has forced me to disagree frankly with him on a detail of academic policy, am all the more glad now of this opportunity to express, in the only way open to a mere writer, my sincere admiration for Dr. Wilson's attitude as Governor-elect. It is the position of a brave, upright, and forward-looking man, and it is worthy of the support of those who believe in what is fair and honorable.

Dec. 10, 1910. HENRY VAN DYKE.

Disabled.

In a certain camp a battalion was being instructed on "How to take a convoy through an open country." One company was told to represent a convoy, the men being instructed that they were to represent horses, cows and wagons.

After being halted a short time the advance signal was given and the convoy moved on, but the major noticed that one man continued to lie down, and, galloping up to him in a rage, said:

"Man, why don't you advance?"

The soldier replied: "I can't sir."

Major—You can't? What do you mean?

"I'm a wagon," said the soldier, "and I've got a wheel off."—Tit-Bits.

PEDAGOGUES TO GATHER

Plainfield to be Represented at Annual Session of State Association.

ATLANTIC CITY DEC. 27, 28, 29.

Union County Has Paid During Year $136.25, of Which Plainfield Contributed $29.75—Financial Statement.

The fifty-sixth annual meeting of the New Jersey State Teachers' Association, to be held in Atlantic City on December 27, 28 and 29, is attracting unusual attention this year among Plainfield pedagogues. It is expected that the number that will attend from this city will be larger than at any previous convention.

During the convention the association headquarters will be at the office of the superintendent of school of Atlantic City, which are in the high school building. The treasurer's headquarters will be in the secretary's office in the same building on the same floor and opposite the entrance to the auditorium. All members of the association will be requested to register their names and addresses in a book provided for this purpose in the treasurer's office. The members of the association will have especial reason for gratification at the convention for the reason that the long-standing debt of the association has been paid. The fiscal year, closing on June 30, it is stated, ended with unexampled prosperity.

The State treasurer's statement for the fiscal year shows: Receipts, $152,087.51; disbursements, $86,802.24, of which $86,648.81 was paid in benefits; surplus on the year's business, $65,285.27, and assets, cash and investments at the end of the year, $193,641.49.

Union county and Plainfield have done much toward contributing to pay the debt and to meet current expenses. Union county has contributed $136.25, it standing fourth among the counties. Essex, Hudson and Passaic come first in the order named.

The contributions from Union county are divided as follows: Elizabeth, $88,; Fanwood, $1; Plainfield, $29.75; Summit, $9; Union, $2; and Westfield, $6.50.

From the formation of the association to June 30, Union county has paid $14,613.15 toward thirteen annuities. Two of these are annulled because of deaths, which leaves 11 annuities to the value of $4,199.50. Of these Elizabeth has granted four annuities to the value of $1,632.50, the total anuities being paid amounting to $5,604.82. There have been no deaths among members in this city, so that the members and value of the annuities remains the same as those granted.

Many one-time members, it is stated, have forfeited membership by giving up teaching in New Jersey. These teachers are either teaching in some other State, have taken up some other vocation, or are married. Teachers of this class who have resumed service as teachers in the State have been recognized as members which, it is stated, under the law, they are not. It is also stated that they are not eligible for membership. It is held that all teachers are ineligible to membership who haveat any time prior to January 1, 1908, been employed in the public or State schools as duly licensed or certificated teachers under a regular monthly or yearly appointment and salary and who did not before January 2, 1890, making written application for membership. A member must, on changing place of employment, give notice to the new Board of Education that he or she is a member of the Teachers' Retirement Fund, and must send copies of such notice to the State treasurer and the secretary of the board of trustees. The validity of a member's claim on the fund may depend on his faithful observance of this requirement.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Christian Endeavor Society will have charge of the prayer meeting tonight at Hope chapel. Willard H. Cook will be the leader.

Rev. Dr. R. S. Campbell, of North Plainfield, will preach at both morning and evening services at Hope chapel, Sunday, December 18. The Sunday-school session begins at 3 o'clock.

The quarterly meeting of the Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Following the regular order of business, which will be important, the topic will be suspended in order that the members may listen to Miss Harriet Halloway speak on "Missions."

Dr. Austin Scott Foreman.

Dr. Austin Scott, formerly president of Rutgers College, is foreman of the grand jury, Middlesex county, December term, which was sworn in before Justice James J. Bergan, Tuesday. Charles Berkheiser is the Dunellen member of that body.

Frederick Harrington and family, who have resided in their home on Rockview terrace for a number of years, have removed to Central avenue, where Mr. Harrington has purchased another property.

DEPOSITS OF NON-RESIDENTS IN NEW YORK SAVINGS BANKS TAXABLE AT THE DEATH OF THE DEPOSITOR.

Deposits of non-residents in New York Savings Banks are subject to a New York State inheritance tax at the death of the depositor. Both convenience and expediency should prompt residents of Plainfield to keep their savings account here. 4% interest is paid in our Special Department. NEW HOME IS INSPECTED

Several Hundred People Visit Columbus Club's Handsome Quarters Just Completed.

FORMAL OPENING NEXT WEEK.

Building Furnished on All Floors in Strikingly Tasteful Manner—Committee Receives Hearty Congratulations.

The handsome new clubhouse of the Columbus Club, formerly known as the Lindsey property on West Front street, was opened for public inspection last evening. Fully 300 people, half of whom were women, availed themselves of the opportunity to visit the building. The building committee members acted as escorts and showed the callers through the spacious and handsomely furnished rooms. The one expression heard oftenest was "splendid," and the men who had worked hard to bring about the present state of affairs felt fully repaid for all their efforts. The inspection lasted from 8 to 12.

The clubhouse was originally a plain brick building, but it has been completely transformed. The outside has been ornamentally stuccoed, a roomy sun parlor, 19 by 30 feet added on the east side and the interior made over on all three floors. The furnishings and decorations have all been placed with a view to harmony and it was noticeable to all.

The reception hall opens directly off the main entrance and the staircase to the upper floor is at the far end. The newell post is graced by a handsome bronze statue of Christopher Columbus. To the left of the reception hall is the parlor and back of it the music room. The library is in the east room at the rear and leads to the sun parlor. This comprises all of the first floor. The parlor and music room are all in mission style, every thing throughout corresponding, even to the exposed mission beams overhead. The music room is equipped with a handsome player piano of corresponding design. The library is in chestnut, while mission rockers and tables grace the sun parlor. The latter is entirely enclosed in glass and steam heated. It can be used winter or summer for euchres, receptions, dances or similar affairs.

The second floor is taken up by a pool and billiard room which runs the full length of the building on the west side, and a ladies retiring room. The last named is furnished with white wicker furniture and green velvet carpet. The card rooms four in umber, are on the third floor, al of them being fitted up with a view to comfort and convenience.

The front of the building is graced by French windows and a marquise overhangs the entrance. The view from the east side of the sun parlor extends all the way up West Front street to Park avenue. In the rear the property extends 276 feet to Green brook, affording plenty or room for future building needs.

The work of securing the original house and planning the club as it stands devolved upon the building committee composed of Theodore J. Shirley, Arthur A. Cannon, J. J. Kenney, M. D. O'Keefe, John C. Traynor and Patrick Traynor. They were warmly complimented for their work. This committee turned over everything last night to the newly appointed house committed composed of Andrew E. Kenney, C. L. Kling, C. W. Fogarty, Clinton A. Shannon, Thomas F. Carty, Jr., David B. Doyle and Francis J. Blatz. They will have full charge of the formal opening of the clubhouse next Monday night.

Exempt Firemen's Annual.

The Exempt Firemen's Association held the annual meeting Wednesday night, and elected the following officers: President, Thaddeus O. Doane; vice-president, William H. Addis; secretary, Guillermo Thorn; treasurer, William Townley. The treasurer submitted his yearly report, showing the finances to be in excellent condition.

"GRANDMA" WHITENACK, AGED 100 YEARS, DEAD

Death yesterday claimed "Grandma" Marie Whitenack, of East Millstone, at the age of one hundred years and sixty-eight days. The aged woman had several friends and relatives in this vicinity and she was well known not only here, but throughout the entire State. She was born at Belle Mead and had lived in that section of the State all her life. She was a devout Christian woman and the greater part of her life was a faithful member of the Reformed church at East Millstone.

"Grandma" Whitenack always adhered to the primitive style of dress, even to the poke bonnet, and the hoop skirt, which she continued to wear until feeble health prevented her from getting about the house. Her mind remained clear and she was able to converse intelligently with her friends and neighbors on current topics of the day.

She is survived by a son, Thomas J. Cooper, by her first marriage, with whom she lived. He is seventy-eight years old. There are also two sisters, Mrs. Sarah Randolph, aged ninety-nine and Mrs. Katharine Kershaw, aged eighty-three.

GEORGE THATCHER GETS OVATION AT PROCTOR'S

George Thatcher, the famous minstrel, so well-known to theatregoers, was given a big ovation when he appeared at Proctor's theatre, yesterday, in a black-face monologue. That the dean of minstrels still has a warm place in the hearts of Plainfielders was shown last night by the applause that greeted him; also by the presentation of a large bouquet of roses by George O. Stevens on behalf of a large number of friends, including many Elks.

Mr. Thatcher made a happy response. He thanked the audience for its kind applause, adding that "no doubt you all remember my father, George Thatcher, when he appeared here in a minstrel show several years ago." The joke was received with great laughter. Clinton Amoss & Co., in "Mrs. Scareit's Burglar;" Ward and the Regina Sisters, in songs and dancing; and Fitzpatrick and Long, the Irish dancers and the bag-piper, complete the excellent bill.

IONA COUNCIL ELECTS AND PLANS FOR A BALL.

Officers were elected by Iona Council, Degree of Pocohontas, at its meeting, last night, and it was also decided to hold a ball some time before Lent, a committee being appointed for that purpose, comprising Mrs. John Ludgate, chairman; Miss Ella Sebring, Walter Wilson, Charles Meyer, Jr., and Charles F. Holstein.

These officers were elected for the coming year: Prophet, Mrs. Henry Angleman; Pocohontas, Mrs. Julia Hallard; keeper of records, Mrs. Lavinia Holstein; collector of wampum, Mrs. Rue Mattis; keeper of wampum, Mrs. Sadie Bowman; Powhatan, Charles Meyer, Jr. The installation will take place on Thursday night, January 5, when the appointive officers will be announced. Following the business of the evening refreshments were served by a committee appointed for the purpose.

Mrs. Susan A. Thackray.

Mrs. Susan A. Thackray, widow of Isaac Thackray, aged 75 years, died this morning at the home of her nephew, H. W. Davis, 25 Grandview avenue, following an illness of a year with chronic bronchitis, diabetes and other complications. Mrs. Thackray was an old resident of Bridgeton, and was a member of the Baptist church there. She had been living with her nephew about three years. Her husband was an officer in the Civil War. He died several years ago. The funeral and burial will be at Bridgeton.

Rev. Dr. Johnson Will Preach.

Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson, of New Brunswick, will occupy the pulpit at Trinity Reformed church, Sunday morning and evening in the absence of the pastor, Rev. John Y. Broek, who was called to Grand Rapids, Mich., by the serious illness of his mother. Dr. Johnson is well-known here among the members of Trinity church, having served that congregation as a supply prior to the call of Mr. Broek as pastor.

Rev. Dr. Eaton to Lecture.

Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist church, New York, will give a lecture at the Park Avenue Baptist church, Thursday night, February 2, instead of February 12, on "Widening Horizons in American Life."

MUSIC LOVERS PLEASED

Second McIntyre Concert Greeted by Large and Fashionable Audience.

MME. HISSEM DE MOSS SINGS.

Trio by Arensky and Two Movements of Haydn's Opus 32 Warmly Received—David Bispham Here Soon.

The second of the series of McIntyre trio concerts given in the High School auditorium last evening resulted as did the first in pleasing a big audience. What has often been said of these concerts of chamber music may be repeated without fear of contradiction. They furnish to the music lovers of Plainfield the true symbolism of all that is elevating in the art without the necessity of straining after effect. In the assisting artist, Mr. McIntyre produced a soprano of known ability and who was in no way a disappointment to the audience. Mme. Hissem de Moss has a voice of superior flexibility and showed its careful training to best advantage in the aria from Mignon, "I Am Titania," Thomas. However Mme. de Moss showed her best with her group of songs in English and was forced to respond to an insistent encore, and it may be said that in singing the dainty bit, "My Shadow" she completely won her audience.

Too much cannot be said of the ensemble playing of the trio. It goes without saying that Mr. McIntyre, Messre. King and Britt entered into their duties of interpreting Arensky's trio, opus 32, in Dominor, with an earnestness which marks all their work and at the end were compelled to acknowledge the plaudits of the audience which figuratively rose to its combined feet. They played the four parts with a devotion which only masterpieces can demand. Mr. McIntyre being particularly brilliant in the technic of the Scherzo while Mr. King was master of the intricacies of the finale.

Haydn's trio, of which only the Cantabile and Rondo were given, showed the trio to splendid musical advantage. The music with its tuneful theme was rendered with absolute fidelity. Of Mr. Britt's solos it can only be said that this artist is fast approaching the pinnacle of his highest ambition. He was particularly pleasing in the Gavotte by Pepper. This sprightly composition demands absolute fidelity to technic and received it at Mr. Britt's hands. As an encore Mr. Britt played with magnificent feeling and expression the meditation from Thais.

Plainfielders will now look forward to the visit of David Bispham who it is promised will appear with the trio on January 12.

LADIES' AID SOCIETY SOCIAL FOR NEW MEMBERS.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church held a social and entertainment at the church, last night, for the purpose of welcoming the new members. There was an informal program, comprising piano selections by Miss Bessie Gunzelman; recitations by Mrs. F. H. Bogel, of Cranford; vocal solos by Miss Nellie Lawton.

There was also a sale of aprons and handkerchiefs in charge of Mrs. I. P. LaRue. Mrs. I. E. VanArsdale, Mrs. Robert Lee and Mrs. F. W. Wenzel comprised the reception committee. Mrs. John Lant arranged the decorations and Mrs. F. W. Wenzel, Mrs. John McCormick and Mrs. J. C. Pierson served the refreshments.

It Was a Gale.

A fifty knot gale which sprang up just before 7 o'clock last evening brought with it a snow flurry which for a few minutes had all the earmarks of a North Dakota blizzard. So thick was the snow that trolley motormen were unable to proceed and in consequence some of the cars on the main line were from twelve to fifteen minutes late. The schedule was not resumed until after 8 o'clock. Branches and dead limbs were blown from trees in many streets and the thermometer dropped seven degrees in less than an hour.

Year's Course of Bible Study.

Dr. B. VanD. Hedges has taken up with his Sunday school class of young men at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, a course in "Studies in the Gospel of the Kingdom," having for its subject, "Living Social Problems in the Light of the Gospel of Jesus Christ." The course is prepared under the supervision of an interdenominational committee of which Dr. Josiah Strong is chairman.

Present Your Bills.

All persons having bills against the city are urged to present them to the city clerk by Monday night to insure payment at the next meeting of the Common Council.

POILLON WANTS EFFECTS

Former Plainfielder Seeks to Recover Property Bequeathed by Wife.

SUIT AGAINST HIS DAUGHTERS.

Poillon Had Quarreled With His Wife Who Left Him Before Her Death In 1899—Her Estate to Daughters.

John J. H. Poillon, a former resident of this city, whose litagation with his wife, Frederika M. Poillon, attracted much attention in 1899 and the years immediately following, has again taken up one of the old legal disputes. The wife died on May 1 last in this city. Mr. Poillon is now reviving an old action in conversion and is suing his daughters, who are the executors of his wife's estate, to recover the Poillon family diamonds, bronzes, furniture, rugs and other furnishings once used in the Poillon home on Riverside Drive, New York. The total value of the property is about $15,000.

The original action for conversion brought by Mr. Poillon in 1902 was finally dropped from the calendar. He already had brought suit in replevin to get possession of the property, but his wife said that she did not have it in her possession. In her will, Mr. Poillon alleges, his wife specifically bequeathed the property in question to her daughters.

Albridge C. Smith, Jr., of 141 Broadway, New York, Mr. Poillon's attorney, appeared before Judge Geigerich in the Supreme Court of New York last Friday with a motion to renew the action and on Monday argued a motion before Justice Amend to have the case put on the calendar. Ellery Mann, of New York, appeared for the executors, Mrs. Louise Poillon Mann and Mrs. Rachel Poillon Larter. It is alleged that when the couple quarreled in 1899, Mrs. Poillon removed from her home in this city, taking the disputed property with her.

VanEmburgh, Mrs. Virginia Chickering.

At the close of the election a social time was enjoyed by all, refreshments being served by Class No. 24 of the school, of which Henry P. Seader is the teacher.

Constables Prefer Charges.

Marshals Clemen and Berthaun, of North Plainfield township, appeared before Justice Snape in the borough, yesterday morning, and preferred charges against two Italians at Watchung for violations of the game laws and resisting arrest. The constables asserted that one of the men had threatened to brain one of the officers with an axe when he called at his home to take him in custody. The men complained of were brought into court and trial was set down for this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

GOOD FELLOWS ENLIST

"It is Fine Work" Writes One Red-Blooded Man Who Helps it Along.

JOY FOR THE POOR CHILDREN.

Some Questions Answered and Explanations Made—One Gives Fifty Boxes of Candy for the Tots.

Here's a letter from a typical Good Fellow; the fellow who likes to do good and does do good for the joy of doing good—and who doesn't do it for free advertising:

"I will take care of five children and you can count upon me for three or four more if you find that all are not cared for. It is a fine work and I am glad to see it continued."

Such is the expression of a charter member of our order. In every mail the Good Fellow receives similar encouragement. If you do not know what this is all about it will pay you to read the letter to the Good Fellows of Plainfield, published again today on page 7.

Among the inquiries received today is one requesting information as to how the names of the poor little ones are obtained. The answer is—from the best source, the Charity Organization Society. It's only fair to say right now that this Good Fellow scheme would never have been, could never be, a success were it not for the part this society plays in it.

Note was made on Wednesday of one who had missed the real spirit of the proposition. Here's an instance of another good soul who has done likewise:

"Enclosed please find one dollar. It is but a small sum but it will be a little towards helping to cheer and glad some little ones on Christmas morning. As you undoubtedly know more about these poor children than I do who they are and where they are, I leave it altogether with you to do just as you please, feeling assured that you are just the one that will see to two or three of these poor children for me. All I want to know is that I have tried to make some little hearts happy and joyful."

This letter is signed by "One Who Is In Love and Sympathy With the Work."

No money, nor toys should be sent, for that would spoil the plan. If the good woman from whom the dollar has been received will kindly let "Santa Claus, care of The Daily Press." know her name the amount will be returned in order that she may realize the joy of personally making some poor little tots happy.

Again, we say, read Good Fellow's letter on page 7 today. And then, govern yourself accordingly!

There is no real Christmas for any little man or woman without some candy. This thought must have been in the mind of a royal fine fellow whose generous offer this morning was promptly accepted. He has given fifty half-pound boxes of candy such as the children love and his contribution will help to make fifty poor little ones happy when they wake up on Christmas morning.

Congratulated Borough Schools.

The Senate investigating committee, after its session at the Plainfield High School, yesterday morning, visited the North Plainfield High School in the afternoon, meeting Superintendent H. C. Krebs, Dr. J. H. Cooley and A. B. Laing, members of the Board of Education and Albert Steiner, the clerk. The committee spent three-quarters of an hour at the school putting the usual questions to the officials of the school. At the conclusion the committee congratulated the board, adding that the school is doing fine work.

An Approaching Wedding.

Mrs. Helen Thomas, of Spooner avenue, has issued invitations for the wedding of her daughter, Miss Marie Emma Thomas, to Charles A. Frederickson, son of Police Captain Christian Frederickson. The ceremony will take place at Mrs. Thomas' home, on Saturday evening, December 31, at 8 o'clock. Both young people have many acquaintances in the city and borough.

Died While He Was Praying.

Samuel Ball, aged 92 years, died at his home in Westfield, Tuesday morning, while in a praying attitude. He was a highly respected citizen of Westfield, and was an uncle of Mrs. E. D. Moffett, of Orchard place, this city. He is survived by one daughter.

In the Toils Again.

James Harvey, 22, who has been on probation for several weeks, was arrested again yesterday, for not reporting to the probation officer and on suspicion of being implicated in the theft of a watch. He was remanded until tomorrow morning for a hearing.

SMITH DEFIES WILSON; SENATORIAL CANDIDATE

Former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., who has been secretly working for the senatorship since the Democrats won the legislature in November, today announced his candidacy. He was forced into the open by Governor-elect Wilson, who has taken up the fight in behalf of James E. Martine, whom the Democrats nominated at the senatorial primaries.

Smith refused to enter the primaries, insisting that the senatorship was entirely a private matter between himself and the legislators, in which the voters had no right to interfere.

Doctor Wilson's friends say that Smith promised the governor-elect before the campaign began that he would not be a candidate for the senatorship. Doctor Wilson is expected to make several speeches against Smith, in which he may relate some of the pre-election agreements.

Smith's announcement is in the form of a letter to each of the eleven Democratic assemblymen-elect from Essex county.

HOW TO HELP THE RED CROSS SEALS TO BE A CURE

Every consumptive uncared for is a public danger. Yet only one-tenth of the cases are in the hospitals and sanitariums of the country. That means that nine-tenths of the victims are fighting the dread enemy in their homes, either intelligently or otherwise. But in both cases there is tremendous need for help.

The plan of the Christmas seal inaugurated in this country by the Red Cross means a great recruiting for the army already enlisted to battle with the plague. It is good fighting, for it shoots straight at the mark. It means a certain cure for many who would have gone uncured because the pennies and the dollars spent this season for seals will be tansformed speedily into life-saving milk and eggs.

Above all, the plan is admirable, because it is educational—because it will help to teach both old and young that to life the burden of tuberculosis which it is the duty of one and all to help, weighs upon the whole community.

Those are the practical material merits of the Red Cross stamps. But there is another side. Those little "Merry Christmas" squares are gifts that not only will do good, but will do the giver good. Each of us will be enriched by what is given.—Philadelphia North American.

Will you help along this plan?

Your Christmas letters and gifts will carry added cheer and happiness if you will decorate them with Red Cross Christmas seals. No package too big to carry the Christmas seal, and none too small to be without one.

Warning to Christmas Shoppers.

Realizing the danger during the holiday rush in the local stores, Chief T. O. Doane, of the fire department, as issued a warning to mothers who take their baby carriages into the stores while they do their shopping. In case of fire or a panic of any kind in the crowded stores during the holiday season, it would be very dangerous to both the child and mother, as well as the general public adn Chief Doane sincerely hopes that mothers will heed the warning and thus assist in preventing any catastrophe.

HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Julius P. Davis, Accussed of Embezzling $500 Must Face Charges.

MAX SCHWARTZMAN'S CLAIMS.

Fur Dealer Says Stock Was Reduced Without Producing Money Equivalent—Davis Makes Denial.

Julius P. Davis, manager for Max Schwartzman's fur store on East Front street, this morning denied the accusation made against him by Schwartzman who accused him of embezzling upward of $500 between September 1 and December 14.

Mr. Schwartzman declared on the stand that when he installed Davis in the store, he gave him stock amounting to a trifle over $3,500, and that when he took stock on December 11, he found that about $900 worth of furs had been disposed of for which there had been no cash return. When cross examined by Mr. Angleman, Davis' counsel, Schwartzman said that he had entered his place of business on December 11 without the knowledge of Davis, obtaining the keys from Dr. Pittis, the owner of the store. He denied that he had surreptitiously taken any of the stock away at that time.

According to the contract between the two men it was understood that Davis was to receive a stated salary of $10 per week and at the end of the term of the contract the profits of the business were to be equally divided. Schwartzman said he had received about $400 from Davis and had frequently paid him his wages by check, although Davis was empowered to help himself from the receipts of the business up to the amount of his salary.

The actual difference and what Schwartzman claims to be a shortage is about $900 but Davis claims to have paid this money to Schwartzman but apparently has no receipts to show for it. Neither could he produce receipts for goods alleged to have been taken by Schwartzman to his other stores in Trenton and New Brunswick.

After hearing the evidence which took until nearly noon Judge Runyon held Davis in $1,000 bail for the action of the grand jury. In an interval between the examination of Mr. Schwartzman and the appearance of Davis on the stand, Counsellor Angleman asked for the dismissal of the complaint saying that it had not been proved that Davis had embezzled any money from the complain-

Mr. Schwartzman is represented by State Senator Silzer.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The election for fire department officers is still nearly a month away. However, both companies are beginning to lay the lines for the success of their company's ticket. Bucket and Engine Coepany's candidate will be the present chief, Charles Meyer, and while they intend to hustle, they say that they have no fear of defeat as the company has increased in membership during the past year to such an extent that they now outvote their old rivals, Excelsior Hook and Ladder Company, by a safe margin. On the other hand Excelsior is "saying nothing but sawing wood." No candidate has been announced although it is said that they will put a strong ticket in the field. Chief Meyer has made good notwithstanding the kick made at time of the election regarding his being a resident of North Plainfield, the department is in good shape and will compare favorably with departments of much larger towns.

The Boys' Club, which was organized several weeks ago, is in an encouraging condition for a youngster. The boys have shown an interest in the club and the membership has increased until the organization looks like a permanent one. The club rooms in the postoffice building, which were donated by the trustees of the Baptist church, are centrally located. Electric lights have been put in and the rooms present a cozy appearance for the boys these cold nights. The new pool table arrived yesterday and will be set up within a few days. Other attractions will be added as the club prospers. During the summer months out-of-door sports will be enjoyed.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Rev. W. A. Knox, pastor of the Methodist church, demonstrated yesterday that he possesses nerve of the right sort as well as pulpit ability. He had just left the office of the Dunellen Coal and Supply Company at North and Washington avenues, when a huge rat popped half way out of a hole in the sidewalk. The rodent turned to go back when it saw Mr. Knox but the clergyman made a hurried grab and caught the rat with his bare hand. Before it could turn on him, he had dashed it to the flagging and ended its existence. It was a feat that few people care to attempt and Mr. Knox was warmly congratulated for his display of nerve. The rodent was a most immense fellow and would easily have weighed several pounds.

Famous Expert Tells

How Fat May Be Removed Rapidly by a Simple Home Remedy Without Causing Wrinkles, Disturbing the Diet or Necessity for Exercise.

"Fat is nothing but unused energy," says a prominent physician, and the man or woman who is burdened with it can easily get rid of it if they wish. All they need is 1-2 ounce of Marmola, 1-2 ounce of Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 3 1-2 ounces of Peppermint Water; all of which they can get at any good drug store for a few cents. Then let them take one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime until they are down to the weight they want to be.
